Zioncheck Leaps Five Stories to His Death

2 Spanish Cities Fired By Rival Ships' Guns; 2 Consulates Leveled

Algeciras and Gijon Are Shelled; 370 Dead, Scores Wounded.

Citizens in Panic, Abandon Property

The Spanish Revolt.

The rebel-held port of Algeciras, Spain, was in flames after a day of shelling from Loyalist warships.

Seventy were killed and 60 wounded in the bombardment. The wife of the British vice consul was among those wounded.

The British and Argentine consulates were destroyed, and a rebel gunboat fired.

The Loyalist seaport of Gijon was aflame after a two-day bombardment by a rebel warship. Three hundred were reported dead.

Two loyal Spanish warships bombarded Laroche, Spanish Moroccan seaport on the Atlantic coast. Casualties were believed heavy.

Great Britain warned Loyalists and rebels that British warships will return fire in event of further "accidental" shelling of British ships and property at Gibraltar.

Agitation grew in Berlin for collective action to put an end to the "Red specter" in Spain.

A German ultimatum was expected to follow the Reich's strong protests to Spain as a result of execution of four German citizens and the shelling of a German steamer by Spanish Loyalists.

Diplomats believed Italy would back any action by Germany in the Spanish crisis, as European war fears mounted.

Cities in Flames.

By the United Press.

Algeciras, Spain, Aug. 7.—Algeciras was in flames tonight after a day of shelling from Loyalist Spanish warships, which killed 70, wounded 60, destroyed the British and Argentine consulates and the rebel gunboat Dato.

Meanwhile, a rebel warship shelled the Loyalist seaport of Gijon, setting the city aflame. Gijon was reported on the verge of collapse after a two-day bombardment and 300 were said to have died.

Laroche, Spanish Moroccan seaport on the Atlantic coast, also was bombarded by two loyal Spanish warships. Casualties were said to be heavy. Most of the civil population fled from the city.

The dead at Algeciras included a woman and a child and among the wounded was Mrs. E. C. Beckingsdale, wife of the British vice consul.

Flames, originating aboard the Dato, spread to the town. Skies were filled with smoke. Wharves and buildings already riddled by shell fire were burned.

Thousands of bales of cork, awaiting shipment to England, were ablaze. Damage could not be estimated because the fires were still burning, but it was expected to mount into many thousands of dollars.

Electric Plant Paralyzed.

The bombardment paralyzed the Algeciras electric plant, but there was no need of electric illumination, so many fires were burning.

Revolt to Involve All Europe, Spectator of Fighting Predicts

Lowe, of Georgetown U., Returns to District From Majorca.

All Europe will inevitably become embroiled in conflict as a result of the revolution in Spain, James T. Lowe, jr., instructor at Georgetown University, is convinced after observing the revolt at uncomfortably close range and after studying its relation to the European political situation.

"War is bound to come. It may break next week," he said yesterday, 12 hours after he returned to his home at 1309 Floral street, from Majorca where he was caught in the thick of the fighting before a British merchant ship rescued foreigners from the island.

Several Americans and Britishers chose to stay "just for the fun of it," but Lowe decided he'd had enough. He had already been through two bombings, had seen bystanders fall as Fascist youths tried to bring down loyalist planes with pistols, and had felt bayonets against his ribs.

"I never could tell which side to be on when I was stopped and asked for the password," he explained.

The most tragic part of the whole trouble, he feels, was the lack of necessity for a revolution.

"Why didn't the insurgents wait until the next election? The Leftist

Neutrality Pact Seen Doomed; War Fears Rise

Reich Protest to Slayings May Be Followed by Ultimatum.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Rome, Aug. 7.—International repercussions from the Spanish civil war multiplied swiftly tonight and foreign diplomats here feared that the gravest European crisis since 1914 might result.

Germany's protest to Madrid against the execution of four German citizens which, it was rumored here, will be followed by a more strongly worded note approximating an ultimatum, greatly increased European anxiety.

Diplomats believed that Italy will support Germany's action, thus further straining relations between Germany and Italy on one side and France and Russia on the other.

Neutrality Pact Imperiled.

In view of this atmosphere of mistrust and suspicion, the conviction was fast growing that France's non-intervention appeal was doomed to failure.

Meanwhile, British warships were authorized to open fire on Spanish vessels or airplanes in case of an actual attack. However, they are banned from returning fire as mere retaliation for an accidental hit.

As the British government issued its second warning of the day through authorities at Gibraltar, officials in London made it clear that retaliatory measures will be taken on the spot against any further attacks.

Carried to Gen. Francisco Franco, insurgent leader, was a protest from Gibraltar that rebel airplanes had fired on H. M. S. Basilisk.

Request Sent Madrid.

Madrid received the British request that the Leftist regime must keep its ships clear of Gibraltar, to prevent endangering British life and property.

Officials revealed that Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister and son-in-law of Premier Benito Mussolini, plans to proceed to Berlin

Bar Committee Says New Deal Invades Liberty

Administration Recognizes No Duty to Citizen, Report Holds.

By Felix Bruner.

A special committee of the American Bar Association charged yesterday that there is no indication that the Roosevelt Administratic "recognizes any obligati whatever to protect the individual citizen in his constitutional rights."

The committee, which was named to study Federal legislation and policies as affecting the rights and liberties of citizens, found, on the other hand, that the Supreme Court in its unanimous decisions has established the right of citizens to be protected against unconstitutional legislation.

The committee was divided four to three in its report, the minority holding that such a pronouncement would embroil the association in bitter partisan political discussion and internal dissentions. The reports will be presented to the association convention at Boston August 24.

Aim at Permanent Changes.

"Laws specifically proposed as emergency measures with limited life have been declared by important members of the Administration to be beginning of permanent changes in national policy," the committee majority found. "There has been a continuing conflict between such officials as to whether a new social and economic order is in the making or the old institutions are being perfected so that they may be preserved."

The report attached great importance to the fact that the Supreme Court has refused to accept a new theory of the extent of Federal legislative power under the interstate commerce clause of the Constitution.

The committee revealed that it had made inquiries of deans of the law schools of the country and had received responses showing "a growing belief that the courts cannot

Drought Talk By Roosevelt, Landon Is Set

Kansas Governor One of Group President Will Consult on Tour.

Meeting Is Probable Late This Month; Report on Losses Awaited.

By Robert C. Albright.

President Roosevelt will meet his principal opponent for re-election, Gov. Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, for a conference on the crucial drought situation during the President's tour through the sun-bitten dust bowl probably late this month.

As the drought spread nearer a crisis, President Roosevelt announced at Hyde Park that he will invite the Republican candidate for President, along with the Governors of Iowa, Nebraska and Oklahoma, to confer with him somewhere west of the Mississippi.

The invitations have been sent, but Gov. Landon's reply to questioning newspaperment at a Topeka press conference, was immediate.

"If there is any meeting, anywhere at any time, of benefit to Kansas, I will attend as Governor of Kansas," Landon said. "Kansas has co-operated in every instance with the Federal Government and all its agencies dealing with any emergency or relief measures."

To Be Second Meeting.

The conference, which would be held some time between August 26 and September 10, will mark the second meeting of two major party candidates for the Presidency. The first was at a White House conference in 1933, during a meeting here of oil State Governors.

The development came as the drought committee and other emergency agencies attempting to cope with the Nation's worst drought in recorded history awaited estimates of the crop reporting board on Monday to disclose the full extent of the damage to the country's depleted corn and wheat crops.

The board is expected to predict a wheat crop threateningly below the 638,000,000 bushel July 1 estimate and a serious drop in corn prospects, estimated by the trade to be around 900,000,000 bushels short of normal production.

Concern already has been manifest here over mounting wheat imports. This country formerly was one of the five great wheat exporting nations. During the first six months of this year, wheat imports jumped nearly 8,000,000 bushels over a year ago. July imports alone reached more than 3,731,000 bushels.

Aid Is Rushed.

Extension of aid to drought sufferers meanwhile is being feverishly rushed by emergency agencies. One group is studying a plan to extend irrigation by tapping unused waters and conserving others. It will be laid before the President at a Western drought conference. The WPA yesterday raised its quota of jobs for distressed farmers to 96,500. It already has 45,000 at work. The total now receiving aid from all agencies is 75,000.

President Roosevelt casually announced his intention to invite the Governor of Kansas along with the heads of other drought States, at a Hyde Park conference. According to Associated Press reports, correspondent gasped a startled "Kansas?" and the President in turn wanted to know "Why not?"

Observers attempting to read political significance into the move found a precedent, but by no means a parallel incident, in Roosevelt's two meetings with Herbert Hoover at the White House in November and January, 1933, while Hoover was still President. These conferences were on depression measures, and Roosevelt was later charged by critics with failure to co-operate with the outgoing President.

Landon in Topeka, however, indicated that in participating in any such meeting it would be as "Governor of Kansas" and emphasized the willingness of Kansas to co-op-

Carter Girl Flees, Dyes Hair Red, But Is Recaptured

Gloria Elaine Carter, missing from home here for two months, was lost again yesterday, found again yesterday and she is again en route to her Washington home with her parents.

Found Wednesday in Asheville, N. C., after a Nation-wide police search, the pretty blonde was hustled into her parents' car under their watchful eyes, and the three sped back through North Carolina's mountains toward the Nation's Capital.

They got to Hickory, N. C., across three of four ridges of mountains from Asheville and stopped for breakfast. Gloria darted out of the room and said:

"I'm going to powder my nose."

She kept on powdering her nose until her parents, frantic for two months over her disappearance, decided to look for her.

But she wasn't powdering her nose at all. She was dying her curly blonde hair red, it later was learned.

She was discovered several hours later. Her red hair didn't fool the searchers.

Ely's Forces Split on Plans To Aid G.O.P.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Aug. 7.—Democratic anti-New Dealers meeting here appointed a committee tonight to draw up an outline of their views after Southern opposition to an outright indorsement of Gov. Landon, the Republican nominee for President, had developed.

Chairman of the committee was Joseph B. Ely, former Democratic Governor of Massachusetts, who earlier had said he would not only support Landon but speak in his behalf, and had asserted that Alfred E. Smith would make a speech in Boston opposing the New Deal.

Ely was one of a group of men formerly prominent in Democratic circles who furnished the leadership for today's meeting. When word came from New York that Smith had described his announcement as unauthorized, he reiterated his assertion that the 1928 Democratic Presidential nominee would make an anti-Roosevelt speech in the Bay State.

Breckinridge a Member.

Another member of the conference resolutions committee was Henry Breckinridge, who opposed President Roosevelt in several State Presidential primaries, and since has declared himself for Landon.

Other members were Joseph W. Bailey, former Democratic member of the House from Texas; Graham Wright, of Georgia, and H. R. Conte Rose, of Baltimore. James A. Reed, former Democratic Senator from Missouri, chairman of the meeting, was a member ex officio.

Ely at the outset of the meeting, held in executive session, proposed that the conference indorse Landon. His proposal promptly met with opposition from the participants from the South.

Favor Backing Landon.

The conferees devoted themselves, spokesmen said, to shaping an organization through which Democrats opposing the New Deal might speak against the re-election of President Roosevelt without doing so under Republican sponsorship.

Many of those present favored indorsement of the Republican nominee as the most effective way of expressing the anti-Administration Democratic opposition.

A proposal that the conference place a Constitutional Jeffersonian Party in the Presidential race rapidly lost favor. Many members of the group opposed it and Ely characterized it as impossible at this time.

"It's too late," he added.

The move to indorse Landon encountered opposition from members of the group from some sections of the South. Some conferees said the objections were not extensive and predicted the Southerners eventually would agree.

Joseph W. Bailey, jr., Democratic former members of the House from Texas, came to the conference from a meeting of Texas anti-New Deal Democrats, which indorsed Landon. He urged that such a course be followed here.

Ely, who with Smith, Colby, Reed and former Judge Daniel F. Cohalan, of New York, signed a plea to the Democratic convention to put President Roosevelt aside, said today he was "not here to malign the President and not here with any feeling of personal animosity."

Asserting he would support Landon, Ely added:

"So far as I am concerned, I am

REPRESENTATIVE ZIONCHECK.

Pacifist on War Path, Traps U.S. Aid in Ambush

Woodring Suffers 'Feather' Barrage, but Officers Even the Score.

Woody Hockaday, who goes about half naked and pelts persons with feathers in his crusade against war, was in Gallinger Hospital for mental observation last night, after a tumultuous peace putsch against the War Department.

A cunning strategist, Hockaday made his way into the office of Assistant Secretary of War Harry Woodring, who probably was thinking of ways to improve Uncle Sam's fighting machine.

The stealthy Hockaday, naked except for a pair of shorts and an Indian war bonnet, let out a war whoop.

"Feathers instead of bullets!" he cried.

The War Department called Inspector B. W. Thompson, chief of detectives, who concluded that the peace advocate distinctly had disturbed the peace. He ordered the following flash sent out over the police radio:

"Look out for and arrest white man, last name Hockaday, painted like Indian, long hair, clothed only in G string."

The lookout was heard by Policemen J. S. Titus and C. F. Thompson, who were riding in a Third Precinct scout car.

They sighted their quarry on Seventeenth street near the Pan American Building. He sighted them about the same time, and started running.

Hundreds of curious had gathered by this time, and looked on in amazement as Hockaday, his body smeared with red paint, streaked across the Pan American Building lawn. The policemen, having jumped out of their auto, were on his heels.

One of the policemen finally brought Hockaday down with a flying tackle.

Hockaday, a native of Wichita, Kans., who calls himself "Chief Pow Wow," loosed a couple of more war whoops as he was being taken into detective headquarters.

Inspector Thompson readily grant-

Williams Wins Olympic Crown For 400 Meters

By Alan Gould.
Associated Press Sports Editor.

Berlin, Aug. 7.—California's dusky Archie Williams climaxed the Sepia Saga today, winning the 400-meter championship and giving the United States her first flat-racing sweep through 800 meters in the Olympic games since 1912 while three Western stalwarts exceeded Americans' fondest expectations by occupying the first three places at the halfway stage of the decathlon competition.

Bob Clark, of San Francisco, and Glenn Morris, Fort Collins, Colo., world record holder, set a record-smashing pace through the first five events of the two-day battle for all-around honors. Each captured two events and finished only two points apart at the end of the day-long grind. Their totals were, Clark, 4,194; Morris 4,192, while their surprising teammate, Jack Parker, of Sacramento, Calif., was third with 3,888 in the field of 24 survivors.

Finnish Runner Wins.

On the other side of the picture, Finland, as was expected, furnished the winner of the 5,000-meter whirl in Gunnar Hoeckert, who struck off the distance in 14:22.2, 7 8-10 seconds faster than the 1932 record hung up by another Finn, Lauri Lehtinen, who was runner-up this time. Lehtinen and John Henry Jonsson, of Sweden, who ran third, both ran under the former mark while little Kohei Murakoso, of Japan, fourth, equaled it.

Louis Zamperini, 19-year-old Torrance, Calif., who ran a dead heat with Don Lash, of Auburn, Ind., in the final American tryouts last month, outran the Indianan, taking eighth place in 14:46.8 as Lash came in fourteenth among the 15 finishers.

Morris Favorite to Win.

The American trio so completely overwhelmed the decathlon show there appeared no doubt that they will keep the title, won in 1932 by Kansas' jarring Jim Bausch, as well as the world record safe for the United States tomorrow.

Morris, who set the world standard of 7,880 points in try-outs at Milwaukee in June, all but closed the gap between him and Clark by running 400 meters in 49.4 seconds, the fastest ever recorded in any decathlon competition, in the day's fifth event after Clark had turned in a 50 seconds flat performance.

These feats entrenched the Americans so far in front with Holland's Reindert Brasser the nearest European, trailing by 321 points, and Finland's mighty Akilles Jarvinen fifth, 407 points back, there seemed that nothing but an accident or a shotgun could halt their sensational scoring flight.

Townsendite Leads In Congress Race

By the Associated Press.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 7.—Richard M. Atkinson, indorsed by the Townsend Plan organization, held a commanding lead tonight for the Democratic nomination to the Congressional seat of the late Speaker Joseph W. Bryns.

With only six precincts missing in the tabulation from yesterday's Fifth District primary, Atkinson had 12,789 to 11,739 for Will T. Cheek and 11,000 for J. Carlton Loser.

Tennessee's two Republican and six Democratic incumbents in the National House of Representatives were renominated.

Congressman Leaves Note; His Wife Sees Fatal Plunge

Body Almost Hits Man on Sidewalk

Battle Against 'Unfair Economic System' Is Cited in Message.

The stormy career of Representative Marion A. Zioncheck (Democrat), of Washington, ended in a violent death in Seattle last night.

The 36-year-old lawmaker, after writing what amounted to an epitaph, leaped from his fifth floor office in a Seattle building, landing on the sidewalk before the eyes of his bride of four months.

Mrs. Zioncheck—who before her marriage was Rubye Louise Nix, a WPA stenographer in this city—was sitting in an automobile waiting for Zioncheck.

When he struck the sidewalk, head first, she screamed and fainted and later had to be taken to the hospital.

Clear Case of Suicide.

Coroner Otto Mittelstadt, of Seattle, said it was a clear case of suicide.

Zioncheck, whose name had become a synonym for clown in America, summed up his political philosophy in the note he wrote just before his spectacular leap. It said:

"My only hope in life was to improve the conditions of an unfair economic system which held no hope and left not even a chance to have——"

He was interrupted in his writing by William Nadeau, his brother-in-law, whom he had left outside in the automobile with Mrs. Zioncheck.

Nadeau had been told by a physician to keep an eye on Zioncheck and had followed him to the office. He found the door locked and had the janitor open it.

Nadeau persuaded him to stop writing and join Mrs. Zioncheck below. They were scheduled to attend a meeting of postal employes.

Went in Other Room.

"You've got a hat, haven't you?" Nadeau asked Zioncheck.

"Yes," said Zioncheck, "it's in the other room."

Nadeau saw him no more. In the other room, Zioncheck took off his coat and plunged through the window.

His body almost struck W. H. Macfarlane, a loan broker, as it fell.

"It was horrible," said Macfarlane. "I was walking along and the first thing I knew, he landed at my feet."

Zioncheck's tortured brain drove him out of the window shortly after 6 p. m. Pacific Coast time (9 p. m. Washington time).

News Spreads Rapidly.

Here in Washington the news of the young law-maker's death spread swiftly. The reaction was far different from what it might have been three or four months ago. At that time Zioncheck was regarded as something of a public enemy in the District. He had driven his 12-cylinder roadster through the streets at 70 miles an hour, endangering lives in what seemed to be a callous fashion.

In time, however, Washingtonians came to know that Zioncheck was mentally sick. His colleagues in Congress said he had worked too hard. Whatever the cause, psychiatrists at Gallinger Hospital put him down definitely as a psychopathic case.

When he came to Congress on the crest of the Roosevelt landslide of U. S. to Use 50 Armored Trains To Haul $10,600,000,000 Gold

By the Associated Press.

Well-informed sources said yesterday that 50 or more armored trains may be required to move the bulk of Uncle Sam's $10,600,000,000 gold hoard into the strong box now nearing completion at Fort Knox, Ky.

Although the new depository will not be ready for use until after September 15, plans for the huge shipment already are being drafted secretly at the Treasury.

The transfer of the precious metal to the Fort Knox vault is part of a long-term program to shift gold reserves from seaboard cities to points far in the interior. Last year more than $2,000,000,000 in bullion was moved from San Francisco to a vault at the Denver mint, where the Government considered it would be safe from any threat, including invasion by a foreign foe.

It is presumed that most of the bullion to be stored in the Kentucky hills will be sent from New York and Philadelphia.

Each of the armored trains mentioned as likely to haul the gold probably will include six coaches—three bullion cars, two Pullmans and a diner. They are expected to move on special schedules slower than an ordinary passenger train. Each express coach would hold from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 worth of gold bars about the size of ordinary building bricks.

Secret Service operatives and even the Army may be called upon to help guard the transfer to Fort Knox. Local officials will be warned in advance when the cargo will move through their towns, and requested to keep a close watch on all suspected criminals.

Although the new depository will be guarded primarily by Treasury employes, it has been placed on a military reservation where 1,400 troops are stationed normally. The garrison includes mechanized cavalry and artillery units.

The treasure house itself combines the most modern construction with a few characteristics of the medieval castle. Its outer walls are rough granite; inside, it is built of steel and concrete.

Two water-filled moats will circle the building. At the touch of a button, their water can be released to flood underground vaults, where the yellow bars will be hidden.

Wife Convicted of Plot to Kill Husband by Wrecking Train

By the Associated Press.

Milton, Fla., Aug. 7.—Mrs. L. W. Vann, 40-year-old grandmother, received without emotion today the verdict of a six-man jury convicting her of conspiracy to wreck a train piloted by her engineer-husband.

The jurors stayed up all night deliberating a decision in the case of the woman charged specifically with being "an accessory before the fact in a conspiracy to commit murder."

Mrs. Vann and two colored men, who pleaded guilty previously to a part in the plot, face prison terms of from 1 to 40 years.

Vann, who provided the bond for his wife when she was arrested last April, declined comment.

Mrs. Vann was just as calm when the jury announced its verdict as when the State accused her of planning with Earl Travis, 35-year-old carpenter, to kill her husband, collect his life insurance and marry.

Travis, who did not attend Mrs. Vann's trial, also is charged with conspiracy to kill the husband. He was granted a separate trial to be held later.

Hamilton Bids G. O. P. Accept Bolting 'Foes'

Party Welcome to Group Leaving Roosevelt Is Urged in Talk.

By the Associated Press.

Couer d'Alene, Idaho, Aug. 7.—Republican National Chairman John D. M. Hamilton issued an invitation to "that great group of Democrats who are leaving Mr. Roosevelt" to enter Republican ranks as he carried his campaign tour into north Idaho today.

"The Republican Party hasn't any monopoly on citizenship; every red-blooded citizen has a right to join a cause to save America," he told a Republican workers' audience.

Referring to "that great group of Democrats who are leaving Mr. Roosevelt," Hamilton counselled, "take them in. Don't hold them off just because you disagreed with them on some little thing years ago."

Referring to what he termed Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's exceptions to his "suggestions that some of the agricultural policies of the Roosevelt Administration have resulted unfortunately for the American farmer and cattleman," Hamilton, of the Republican National Committee, said in a statement:

"Mr. Wallace picked the wrong day for his statement.

Cites Import Rises.

"At the very time he was condemning me, the United States Commissioner of Customs issued an official statement that a record total of 113,000 cattle over 700-pound weight has been imported from Canada into this country since January 1, 1936, the date on which the Canadian trade agreement went into effect.

"It might have been a revelation to Mr. Wallace to have learned from this report that imports of wheat from Canada for July of this year amounted to 4,750,000 bushels as against 600,000 from the same month last year."

"I have a suspicion that some day that famous old book, 'Alice in Wonderland,' will be supplanted in its popular appeal with a new work entitled 'Wallace in Blunderland.'"

Hamilton voiced assurance to the Pacific Northwest, construction scene of gigantic power and reclamation projects, that its people needn't fear any abandonment or let down" of the projects.

"We would not abandon any useful projects," he declared.

Coefield Gets Post.

Chicago, Aug. 7 (AP).—Appointment of John Coefield, of Washington, D. C., as an assistant to William Hutcheson, head of the Republican National Committee's labor division, was announced today by Arthur M. Curtis, assistant to the Republican national chairman.

Coefield, president of the United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters of America, will be in charge of the labor division's Eastern activities, Curtis said.

Hutcheson, visiting Chicago for the first time since his appointment as director of the labor division, said he doubted that anyone could predict accurately the possible effect of the organized labor dispute on the Presidential election.

In an interview at party headquarters, he said the break which caused the American Federation of Labor to suspend 10 affiliated groups led by John L. Lewis was confined to union matters with no definable political significance.

factions declared a one-day truce in Barcelona so the streets could be emptied of the dead, the threat of a plague was so great. And it would have saved the other countries in Europe from lining up on one side or the other, ready to jump at each other's throats."

Lowe was in Palma de Majorca when the revolt began with a Fascist coup on Saturday night, July 18. He knew nothing about it until the next day when he was stopped on his way for a swim by a young man with a bayonet and was thoroughly searched.

"The city was quiet and peaceful all that day. The Fascists had taken charge and the inhabitants of the island didn't seem to mind. About the only change in their routine was the cancelling of the bull fight which had been scheduled for that afternoon," the American said.

Guard Bought Off.

Later he learned the civil guard had been bought off by the Fascists and its members walked around as though nothing had happened. The fighting began the next day when Loyalists tried to wrest Palma from the insurgents. On Tuesday the bombing began and continued sporadically throughout the week. On Saturday the Georgetown instructor boarded the British ship Oranto, which took him to Plymouth. He then sailed from England to the United States on the Manhattan.

Lowe believes the rebels will eventually be victorious.

"But they are poorly organized," he pointed out. "The navy is so divided that the flagship of the fleet fired on the other Spanish ships. We later learned the Fascist seamen had mutinied and after locking up the admiral had directed their gunfire on the rest of the fleet."

Before he went to Majorca, Lowe spent three days in Barcelona. He had planned to return there on July 20 and then proceed to Madrid to discuss legal affairs with several authorities. He went to Spain on a Carnegie fellowship in international law.

"But I wouldn't have missed the revolution for anything," he declared. "It was a lot more fun than talking about law. However, I was ready to leave when the Oranto came along."

Police Quell Funchal Riot.

Funchal, Maderia Islands, Aug. 7 (AP).—Police rushed to several nearby villages tonight, restored order after riots protesting new agricultural relations for this Portuguese-owned island. Two butter factories were wrecked in the country, but there were only minor disorders here. The rioting, the government stated, was provoked by resentment against an increase in the price of milk and butter.

Mayor Lee Schroy of Akron, Ohio, ordered the entire police department out to disperse street repair strikers gathered at the city garage. About a dozen pickets were injured. The mayor also suspended an acting police chief and the chief of the fire department for insubordination, for having failed to carry out similar instructions he issued earlier when pickets were blocking the city garage.

'Shake-Down' Of Contractors Denied by Ickes

PWA Chief Calls G. O. P. Charge False; First Lady Speaks.

By the Associated Press.

A Republican National Committee assertion that the New Deal was putting "pressure" on Indiana contractors on PWA projects to pay for "propaganda" was termed "unqualifiedly false" yesterday by Secretary Ickes.

Referring to the committee's assertion as a charge "that the Public Works Administration is engaged in a 'shake-down' of Indiana business men," the PWA admnistrator said the committee had "made itself look foolish."

"Even this early in the campaign," he added, "it appears that Chairman John Hamilton will have to 'shake down' his irresponsible publicity department for the second time within a few months."

In its statement, the Committee said:

"Despite revelations of the Roosevelt Administration's plans to shake down contractors, architects and material men in certain sections of the country to pay for advertisements lauding the Public Works Administration of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and the New Deal, this program continues.

"New Deal pressure is being put on Indiana business men having contractual relations with the PWA to pay sums ranging all the way from $50 to $250 to defray the cost of propaganda to be distributed in that State in the guise of PWA advertisements."

Ickes replied that:

"A thorough investigation of the absurd charge shows that a Republican newspaper, the Indianapolis News, an ardent supporter of Gov. Landon, has solicited advertising from contractors who held contracts with various Indiana municipalities for the construction of public works projects.

"The Public Works Administration has no control over this Republican newspaper or its agents and solicitors."

Boosts Good Neighbors.

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told New York members of the Good Neighbor League today, "I feel that being a good neighbor at home and abroad is probably the most important thing any of us can be today."

The First Lady was guest of honor at a luncheon of the leaugue which Dr. Stanley High founded as an outgrowth of an address in which President Roosevelt stressed the good neighbor ideal.

Today Dr. High urged the members to "vote their convictions rather than their party affiliations this fall."

Headquarters of the league, in a statement issued at the luncheon, said, "* * * the Good Neighbor League feels that the re-election of President Roosevelt is the best guarantee and assurance that the social policies implied in the good neighbor idea will be continued."

Mrs. Roosevelt said: "I know a great deal more about my neighbors than I did three years ago, and I'm glad—although it makes us uncomfortable sometimes to know things are not always as good as we would like to have them in our own country."

Political Arena

Chicago, Aug. 7 (AP).—Dr. D. Leigh Colvin, the Prohibitionist Presidential candidate, in an interview today, asked the Republican Party how they "can be depended on to uphold the national Constitution if they disregard the State constitution in Kansas?"

"I dislike knocking candidates," he said, "but I feel the people should know the record. Gov. Landon and the Republican forces in Kansas violated the mandate of the people who, in 1934, voted to retain prohibition by a vote of nearly 90,000."

"The people expected the beer traffic would be stopped, but it was not. The Governor did not see that it was."

Newburyport, Mass., Aug. 7 (AP).—Andrew J. ("Bossy") Gillis, several times elected "bad boy" mayor of this city as a Republican, today became a Democrat.

Gillis filed papers tonight for the Democratic nomination to Congress in the Sixth District. The post was left vacant recently by the death of Representative A. Piatt Andrew (Republican), of Gloucester.

The red-headed mayor, who has been outspoken in his attacks upon the Administration, said tonight:

"I still don't agree with the way things are going, but if the Democrats will support me I will do my part. I expect a great desertion from Republican ranks around here."

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—James Redfern, organizer of the Hicksville, Long Island, unit of Father Charles E. Coughlin's National Union for Social Justice, said tonight the unit had refused to indorse the candidacy of William Lemke for President of the United States, on the Union Party ticket, or any other candidates for President and Vice President.

He charged the national leaders of the organization with "sacrificing the principles of the union in indorsing a third party candidate."

"We are intensely interested in Father Coughlin, so long as he remains a man of doctrine," Redfern said. "But the minute he becomes active politically, we cannot support him."

Providence, R. I., Aug. 7 (AP).—Frederick L. Jenckes, of this city, tonight telegraphed the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin he would be willing to limit a $25,000 Lemke-Landon voting bet to Rhode Island, and gave the radio priest until August 18 to raise his share of the wager.

When Mr. Jenckes first wired acceptance of Father Coughlin's offer last Sunday to bet 3 to 2 on Lemke against Landon, Jenckes understood the bet was to be on a Nation-wide result. Father Couglin wrote, however, that he meant to wager on the Rhode Island vote. Mr. Jenckes now accepts Father Coughlin's terms, provided the priest will state under oath that his offer releated only to Rhode Island.

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, promised today that Josh T. Lee, the Democratic nominee as Senator for Oklahoma, would be one of the party's leading speakers in the Presidential campaign.

He called him "one of the best orators in the party." Lee reported to Farley there was no doubt the Democrats would carry Oklahoma.

Zioncheck Plunges to Death

1932, Zioncheck immediately impressed House leaders as an energetic and ambitious young statesman. The late Speaker Joseph Byrns, then majority leader, took a fancy to Zioncheck and appointed him to a responsible post—that of watching private bills on the calendar.

Byrns and other leaders predicted that Zioncheck would go far. Then, almost over night, he became a "wild man."

In a six-month period, beginning with last New Year's Day, Zioncheck was arrested five times—twice for disorderly conduct, twice for speeding, and the last time for mental observation—eloped to Annapolis and was married; caused a furore on his honeymoon in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands; announced on his return that he had invented a drink called the "Zioncheck Zipper;" threw his landlady out of his apartment in Harvard Hall; posed for pictures with an ape in the Zoo, and finally was clapped into Gallinger Hospital when he called at the White House to leave a bag of empty beer bottles for President Roosevelt.

On the advice of Gallinger psychiatrists, the District Commissioners ordered Zioncheck to face a lunacy trial.

His family circumvented this by having him transferred to the Sheppard and Enoch Pratt Hospital in Towson, Md. He escaped from there, took refuge in his suite in the House Office Building, and then, guarded by Capitol Police, went to Union Station and started back to Seattle.

Recently he announced that due to the illness of his mother he would not ask re-election to the House. This week, however, he filed for renomination.

Under the law, Mrs. Zioncheck, as a congressional widow, is entitled to a pension of $10,000.

Born in Poland.

Representative Zioncheck was born in a little Polish village in 1900. When he was 3 his father brought the family to the United States, settling first in Chicago, and later moving to Seattle.

It was no easy boyhood that Zioncheck had. His family was poor, and he helped by selling newspapers, catching rats, herding cattle and peddling fish.

When he was a youth, the family moved to Olympia, Wash. There Zioncheck went to high school and worked on the side as a jeweler's apprentice and as a laborer in a shipyard.

Entered Washington U.

He entered the University of Washington in 1919, but was forced to quit before the end of the first term because of lack of money. To insure a completion of his course, he worked for four years as a lumberjack in the Northwest woods, a period that gave him the strong physique that later was to astound the National Capital.

In college he preached campus democracy and assailed the snobbish fraternities. Once he was kidnaped by his enemies and given a ducking in Lake Washington.

Graduated in 1928.

He was graduated in 1928 with a law degree and immediately opened an office. His debut in court as a lawyer was characteristic. He called a witness a "scab" and was fined $25 for contempt of court.

He was thrown into politics during a battle over municipal ownership and operation of public utilities. In 1932, when the depression struck the Puget Sound country, Zioncheck ran for the House. He cried out against the "bloated plutocrats" and promised to fight for a $5,000,000,000 fund for public works.

He was elected in the Roosevelt landslide of that year and re-election in 1934.

On Naval Committee.

In his first term he was a member of the Naval Affairs Committee. In the second he was promoted to the important Appropriations Committee, Majority Leader Byrns being convinced by this time that he was a promising and useful member.

At the same time, he was appointed to represent the leaders on the floor and guard against bills which they did not approve. This meant that he had to be familiar with every bill on the calendar. He worked day and night to familiarize himself with these measures.

At the last session, Zioncheck clashed with Representative Thomas L. Blanton, of Texas, over the latter's "Red rider" to prevent the teaching of communism in District schools. For a time it appeared that Zioncheck and Blanton would come to blows, but colleagues intervened.

To Name Committee.

By the Associated Press.

Expressing deep grief at the death of Representative Zioncheck, last night, Kenneth R. Romney, sergeant at arms of the House, said he expected Speaker Bankhead, of Alabama, would name a committee of Representatives today to attend the funeral.

Romney, who assisted Zioncheck in every possible way during his troubles here, said he was "deeply grieved at the Reprsntativ's dath.

Father-in-Law Shocked.

Texarkansas, Ark., Aug. 7 (LP).—T. N. Nix, father-in-law of Marion Zioncheck, was shocked tonight when he received word that the Washington Representative had committed suicide.

"I can't understand why he should do that," Nix said.

"I guess it is just one of those things which can never be explained."

Banker Urges Uniform Rules In Trust Sales

Tells SEC Standardized Accounting Is Needed to Halt Deception.

By the Associated Press.

From the lips of a Wall street investment banker, Morton H. Fry, the Securities Commission yesterday heard a proposal that uniform accounting standards for investment trusts should be set up to prevent "window dressing" and "deception of shareholders."

Testifying at the commission's inquiry into investment trusts, the gray-haired, heavy-set, former president of two New York investment corporations, was plain-spoken in suggesting what regulatory moves should or should not be undertaken.

Coincident with his testimony, commission officials disclosed they were checking up in another field of regulation to determine whether underwriters have been "jumping the gun" on registration statements by offering securities before expiration of the 20-day "waiting period."

Under the law, securities can not be sold until 20 days after a registration statement is filed. Officials said 50 New York firms were being studied, largely in an effort to determine the extent to which underwriters have ignored this provision.

Fry, under questioning by Commission Counsel James Austin, said that through trick purchase and sale of securities, investment trusts could bolster income accounts and "deceive shareholders." Uniform accounting methods, he said, would remedy this.

Neutrality Pact Seen Doomed; War Fears Rise

Reich Protest to Slayings May Be Followed by Ultimatum.

shortly, ostensibly to attend the closing days of the Olympic games.

It was believed here that the two opposing political regimes, Fascism-Nazism and Socialism-Communism, will be so involved in the Spanish affair on opposite sides before the difficulties of a neutrality pact can be ironed out that only a miracle can save Europe from an explosion.

Italians believed that Russian and French Leftists were using the Spanish civil war as a means of launching a desperate attack against Fascism which may end in a war between the two blocs.

Italians maintained that France, before attempting a neutrality project, should observe neutrality herself. According to Italian accounts from Paris, France is constantly violating neutrality by giving material and moral support to the Spanish Reds.

Italians Resentful.

Italian newspapers, although still refraining from inspired editorial comment during Mussolini's absence from Rome, show great resentment against foreign criticism of Italy's conditional acceptance of France's neutrality appeal.

They insist that Italy is not attempting to delay or prolong negotiations, but rather to clarify an ambiguous situation under which nations like Russia and France could declare "official neutrality" while permitting private citizens to aid the Spanish Popular Front government by every means at their disposal.

Subscription of 36,500,000 francs ($2,409,000) in Russia for Madrid and enlistment of French volunteers in the Popular Front militia are particular targets of Fascist venom.

Newspapers did not comment on Germany's protest to Madrid, apparently waiting for Mussolini to decide how far Italy will go towards aiding a Fascist victory in Spain. This would strengthen Italy's and Germany's position in the Mediterranean and North Africa, but it also might precipitate a European conflict.

Nazi Resentment Stirred.

Berlin, Aug. 7 (AP).—Powerful voices were raised in Nazi Germany tonight for collective action by European powers "to put an end to the Red specter" in Spain.

While the government of Adolf Hitler was represented as still considering possibility of an eight-nation neutrality pact in the Spanish crisis, reported execution of four German citizens in Leftist Barcelona stirred Nazis to fierce resentment.

The National Zeitung, official newspaper of the Nazi party and edited by Air Minister Hermann Goering, called for international action.

Bitterly condemning what it called "murder" of the four Germans "by a revolutionary tribunal," Goering's paper questioned whether the Spanish government was capable of controling any longer "the terror regime of Communist hordes."

Fears Are Expressed.

What is transpiring in Spain is "disintegration, anarchy, insanity through which Europe will be demolished unless sensible foresighted nations put an end to the Red specter with all means at their disposal," the paper stated.

Some headlines announced "Soviet volunteers are en route to Spain." There were charges Soviet Russia was encouraging "bolshevization" of Spain, and France was criticized for "moral support" of the Madrid regime.

Der Angriff, Minister of Propaganda Joseph Paul Goebels' newspaper, asserted:

"The idea of nonintervention presently occupying Europe's diplomats is given an entirely new aspect by the death of these four Germans."

The paper also condemned what it called the "two-faced" neutrality policy of France "for it was at least her moral support which strengthened the courage of the Madrid gamblers."

Hitler, Staff Confer.

A foreign office spokesman added his pronouncement of "murder" in discussion of the executions of the Germans, and Chancellor Hitler conferred with members of his staff throughout the day.

Stern diplomatic protests to the shootings and the "unprovoked" shelling of the German steamer Sevilla off the Straits of Gibraltar were dispatched both to Madrid and Barcelona.

Germany's naval fleet was reported redistributed to permit prompt action if necessary. One squadron in the northern group, including the cruiser Koeln and several torpedo boats, were assigned to the Asturian coast.

The second group, including two battleships and a torpedo boat flotilla, were sent to the Mediterranean.

Official sources said three other German citizens, in addition to the four reported shot at Barcelona, were believed to have been killed in the Spanish civil war.

A 7-year-old girl, Johanna Illhof, was reported among the casualties.

Remarking on this, the Nazi Voelkischer Beobachter said, "the internal hatred of a nation for Bolshevism, which does not even spare children, brought death to these young Germans."

Paris, Aug. 7 (AP).—Adolf Hitler's stony silence tonight seriously delayed completion of France's proposed general European agreement for neutrality in Spain's civil war.

Germany's failure to answer French overtures to join a nonaggression pact was considered in some diplomatic quarters an indication the Nazis intended to keep the way open for help to the fighting Spanish rebels as long as possible.

French Ship Bombed.

Tangier, International Zone, Aug. 7 (AP).—The French steamship Roubaisien was reported bombarded today by an unidentified airplane 5 miles from Gibraltar.

It was undamaged.

The plane dropped three bombs that fell within 200 yards of the steamer which was en route to Antwerp from Algiers.

The German warships Deutschland and Luchs passed Tangier during the morning en route to the Mediterranean. They were reported to have stopped at Cadiz.

17-Year-Old Check Pays Dental Bill

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 7.—A patient asked Dr. W. D. Myers, local dentist, the amount of his bill and was told it was $30. But that is 17 years ahead of the story.

On May 7, 1919, Dr. Myers gave a local citizen a check for $13 for some work the man had done. At the time the man remarked he needed some dental work and might use the check to pay the bill.

Recently, the man decided to have the dental work done. Dr. Myers informed the man his bill was $30. The client dug into his pocket, pulled out the $13 check dated 17 years ago and paid the balance of the bill in cash.

Shells Wreck Consulate; Wife Of Briton Hurt

mounted between Tarifa and Algeciras were destroyed. Gun crews, totaling 50 men, were killed.

The civil population was in panic. Many were rushing wildly to the hills, abandoning their property.

The British-owned Hotel Cristina was badly damaged.

Government airplanes dropped bombs on the city as the Loyalist warships Jaime Primero, Libertad and Cervantes drew close into the port and opened a terrific broadside.

Turrets in the Algeciras barracks, from which field guns barked replies, were struck.

Fearing the Jaime Primero would attempt to put a landing party ashore, a detachment of rebel Moors lined up on the Quayside. But the battleship cruised about 500 yards off-shore. After reconnoitering it released its salvos and steamed off in an easterly direction.

Wife of Consul Wounded.

Mrs. Beckingsdale was slightly wounded in the arm when the British consulate was telescoped by a shell.

Lord Faringdon, owner of the Cristina Hotel, suffered heavy losses. His hostelry was damaged beyond repair.

All of the main roads along the Algeciras coast were blown up. While the Argentine consulate was partly blown up nobody there was injured.

Towns Are Captured.

Madrid, Aug. 7 (AP). — Loyalists claimed capture of several small towns tonight, but there was nothing to indicate any major break in the apparently deadlocked Spanish civil war.

Dispatches from Morocco stated Gen. Francisco Franco had assembled 4,000 rebel troops at Ceuta for another crossing to the mainland. He was believed already to have ferried 8,000 men across the Gibraltar Straits.

The Catalan government at Barcelona said loyal troops were marching on Huesca and had captured several villages on the heights overlooking the town.

Valencia dispatches announced transports were taking 3,500 militia on an expedition to rebel Majorca, in the Ballearic Isles. Bombing planes also were ready to take off from Valencia.

Advance in Mountains.

Loyalist troops reported a 4½-mile advance against the rebels in the mountains outside Madrid. Rebels renewed bombardment of Gijon, northern seacoast city.

In northern Aragon, government armies claimed new victories at Tardienta and Graner. To the south, they reported occupation of Aicolea, 3 miles from Cordoba and Baena, 37 miles distant from the rebel-held city.

The government tonight still held an apparently firm grip on Madrid, the Mediterranean and Bay of Biscay coastline, and the central area of the country.

Rebels clung to the key cities of the inland north, Burgos and Zaragoza, and were powerful in the southern sector.

The government repeated tonight its experiment of throwing the capital into complete darkness as a precautionary practice against possible air raids.

Landon Issues Part Itinerary For 4-State Trip

By the Associated Press.

Topeka, Kans., Aug. 7.—An incomplete itinerary of Gov. Alf M. Landon's first Eastern campaign swing, embracing a score of platform appearances in four States within two days, was issued tonight by the Governor.

Starting from Denver August 20, the Republican nominee will make four stops in Colorado, seven in Nebraska, including an overnight stay at Omaha; seven in Iowa and three in Illinois.

Today's chart of the cross-country political trek toward West Middlesex, Pa., for his initial Eastern speech, carried Landon only as far as Chicago.

Aids said no appearance was planned at Chicago, which would be reached at 10 p. m. (Central standard time), August 21, but that the special train would strike out from there for Ohio and Indiana.

The itinerary for the remainder of the trip, which includes speeches at Chautauqua, N. Y., August 24, and at Buffalo, August 26, as well as that for the return, was under consideration.

Most of the platform appearances listed between Denver and Chicago were for from three to five minutes. Aids said a few ten-minute stops probably would permit Landon to say a few words.

As mapped, Landon's march toward the big Eastern voting areas will take him across parched Nebraska and Iowa farm lands less than a week before President Roosevelt is scheduled to start West for a series of drought conferences. To one of these meetings, in Iowa, Mr. Roosevelt said in Hyde Park, N. Y., today the Governor of Kansas would be invited.

There were few callers at Landon's office today.

News Guild Gets A. F. L. Charter; Broun to Quit

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 7.—The American Newspaper Guild received its charter from the American Federation of Labor tonight and at once found itself in the midst of the dispute over the craft or industrial union form of organization.

William Green, president of the Federation, who presented the charter, asserted that the issue at stake is preservation of the rule of the majority within the organization. He promised a continuing fight by himself and other officers against the Committee for Industrial Organization headed by John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America.

Immediately after Green's address Heywood Broun, president of the guild, announced his resignation, effective tomorrow, on the ground that he was favorable to the industrial organization plan.

Broun, saying he spoke as an individual rather than chairman of the meeting, made his proposal to resign "because I favor a hearing for the C. I. O." He agreed to defer his action until tomorrow at the insistence of Carl Randau, president of the New York Guild, and Jonathan Eddy, executive secretary of the National Guild.

Meanwhile Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, said tonight that his party was "100 per cent" behind the Committee for Industrial Organization, which the executive council of the American Federation of Labor is trying to have disbanded.

'Red' Army Attacks In Army's Games

Fort Knox, Ky., Aug. 7 (AP).—Heavy gunfire swept the vicinity of Grahampton late today, renewing mock hostilities in strategic warfare of "red" and "blue" forces over four widely scattered fronts of the second Army maneuvers.

Mobilizing his red mechanized force near Elizabethtown, Col. Bruce Palmer, in his armored command car, led swift but indecisive attacks repeatedly at the slower-moving more numerous infantry and artillery of the blues.

Following a strategic plan laid out by Army tacticians, commanding generals of both sides prepared to shift their positions during the night. The red nation theoretically consisting of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware, was to declare war on the blues at midnight, forcing the blues to protect a theoretical bridge near West Point.

4 Leaders Protest Greek Dictatorship

Athens, Greece, Aug. 7 (AP).—Four Greek political leaders, including former Premier George Caphandaris, called at the palace today to protest to King George against what they termed the dictatorial abrogation of constitutional government.

Their statement followed by only 24 hours a pronunciamento by members of the Liberal Party formed by the late Eleutherios Venizelos that the King had broken a solemn promise of constitutional government when he established Premier John Metaxas as military dictator August 5.

A convulsive upheaval might result under the dictatorship, they warned, and the once exiled King might have the scepter taken from his hand by popular demand.

Dr. Wise Deplores Concealing Race

Geneva, Aug. 7 (AP).—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress, today criticized Jews who look on their Jewry "as a mournful fact to be concealed and minimized."

Outlining the work before the World Jewish Congress opening here tomorrow night, Dr. Wise urged members of his race not to be what he called weak-kneed by hiding their race and religion but confident that by unity they could solve their problems.

"Our congress is not an improvisation," he said in a statement. "It is not a council of desperation, but one of hope."

The world congress will have 75 delegates from the United States. It was called for the announced purpose of discussing the economic and political status of the Jewish people.

All told about 300 delegates will attend from 32 countries.

Starvation, Day-by-Day, Is Described in Diary

York Mountain House, Alberta, Aug. 7 (AP).—A scribbled diary told the story today of 60-year-old Olaf Olson's death by starvation.

Constable J. H. Leyland, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, found the diary beside Olson's body in his lonely trapper's cabin, 60 miles northwest of here.

Until July 16, Olson had written of his privations and then marked off the days until July 26.

July 14 was marked: "Feeling sick and remained in bed all day."

July 15: "Getting weaker."

July 16: "Very weak, eyes get dull."

Burial Monday For Robinson, Tax Unit Chief

Sub-Section Aids to Serve as Pallbearers; Rites in Arlington.

Funeral services for Lieut. Col. Henry Bingham Robinson, 56, chief of the audit review division, income tax unit, Bureau of Internal Revenue, and former Army officer, will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the Fort Myer chapel. Sub-section chiefs who served under him in the audit division will be honorary pallbearers. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Col. Robinson died Thursday night of a heart attack at his home, 1547 Forty-fourth street northwest.

Active in a number of Masonic and other organizations here, he had been in Government service in Washington since 1919. He was a native of Dellroy, Ohio.

Spanish War Veteran.

Serving with the United States Army in the Spanish-American War and Philippine Insurrection, he remained in the Philippines as an auditor and treasurer for the Philippine government.

During the World War Col. Robinson returned to the States, and in 1917 went to France as an Army captain. Subsequently he was appointed a major in the Quartermaster Corps. He later served with the Herbert Hoover relief expedition in Europe. He was commissioned a lieutenant colonel in the Officers' Reserve Corps after his retirement from active Army duty.

His Masonic memberships were in the Albert Pike Lodge, No. 36, F. A. A. M.; the William R. Singleton Chapter, Royal Arch Masons; the Southern Cross Lodge in the Philippines, and the Ionic Club, a Treasury Department Masonic club.

Member of War Orders.

He was also a member of the Kenneth H. Nash Post, American Legion; Nelson A. Miles Camp, United Spanish War Veterans; the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Military Order of the Carabao, and the Sons of the American Revolution.

Col. Robinson is survived by his widow, Mrs. Helen R. Robinson, and a daughter, Miss June Robinson, both of Washington, and a sister, Mrs. Burr Northrop, of Los Angeles, Calif.

Bodies of Family Found on Farm

By the Associated Press.

Wabash, Ind., Aug. 7.—Authorities late today recovered the unclad bodies of Mr. and Mrs. John Felding Wesley and their 12-year-old daughter from a pit beneath a barn on their farm near here, where they had been buried by Harry Singer, 25, former convict farm hand, who confessed to murdering them on July 21.

The victims of the triple slaying were Wesley, 56; his wife, Mrs. Viola Wesley, 31, and their daughter, Marjorie, 12.

Singer, who had been employed by the Wesleys, was arrested yesterday at North Manchester when he attempted to obtain automobile license plates for his car under Wesley's name.

Deputy Sheriff Vere Howell said Singer confessed to the murders after three hours' questioning and claimed he killed the Wesleys because they "mistreated him."

Key West, Fla., Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Three hundred dissatisfied Works Progress Administration workers walked off their jobs tonight in Government-supported Key West.

Two Hurt in Plane Crash.

Hundred, W. Va., Aug. 7 (AP).—A new 14-passenger airplane crashed today injuring two men seriously. The injured are Charles Gehrin, of Columbus, Ohio, pilot, and John Dexter, of Wheeling, a passenger. Witnesses said the plane tumbled over while landing on a new airfield, and plunged down a 100-foot embankment.

5 Ex-Policemen Get Prison Terms

Barton, Fla., Aug. 7 (AP).—Five former Tampa policemen were sentenced to four-year prison terms today for the kidnaping of Eugene F. Poulnot, one of three unemployed labor organizers tarred and feathered following a political meeting last November.

The one-time officers—C. A. Brown, jr., Sam E. Crosby, John P. Bridges, F. W. Switzer and C. W. Carlisle—appealed immediately to the State Supreme Court.

Miss Levy Dies Here; Services Set Tomorrow

D. C. Resident for 20 Years Was Active in Many Private Charities.

Miss Annie Levy, 76, a resident of Washington for nearly 20 years, died unexpectedly yesterday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Helen Brylawski, 3513 Thirty-fourth street northwest.

Miss Levy was an aunt of Mrs. Mark Lansburgh, wife of the secretary of Lansburgh & Bro., local department store.

She was born in St. Michaels, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, the daughter of Abraham and Hanalah Levy. Her father, a plantation owner, suffered financial losses in the economic crisis after the Civil War and the family moved to Baltimore, where Miss Levy spent most of her life.

Miss Levy devoted much time to private charities.

Surviving her are two sisters, Mrs. Ira Berman, of New York City, and Mrs. Helen Brylawski, of this city; four nieces, Mrs. Alexander Wolf and Mrs. Mark Lansburgh, of Washington, and Miss Isabelle and Miss Hortense Levy, of Baltimore, and three nephews, Julian and Fulton Brylawski, of Washington, and George Levy, of Baltimore.

She also leaves eight great-nephews and one greatniece, in Washington. They are Michael and Thomas Lansburgh, William and Alexander Wolf and Julian, jr., Alan, Henry, Edward and Helen Brylawski.

Funeral services will be held at her home at 9 a. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Baltimore.

80th Division Veterans Hold Memorial Rites

Richmond, Aug. 7 (AP).—The first serious note in a gala reunion of 1,000 members of the Eighteenth Division Veterans Association was sounded late today at memorial services at the Carillon here.

Informal gatherings of organization groups of the division and campaigning for various candidates for the post of national commander to succeed Harry E. Newman, of Wheeling, W. Va., occupied the visitors throughout most of the day.

The annual banquet was held at the Hotel Jefferson tonight, after which the veterans were guests at a special midnight movie.

Soviet Fliers Delay Again.

Seattle, Aug. 7 (AP).—Sigismund Levanevsky and Victor I. Levchenko, Russian fliers, postponed their planned hop today to Juneau, Alaska, on another leg of their 10,000-mile California-Moscow flight because of bad weather on the northern British Columbia Coast. They set their take-off for 9 a. m. tomorrow.

Transfusion of Own Blood Saves Youth

Accidentally shot two weeks ago while at play with a small sister and brother, Sam was brought to a hospital here. The bullet followed a diagonal course through his body, stopping in his right arm.

The wound above the heart bled little on the outside, but internal tears caused blood to accumulate on the right side. Hospital surgeons, making three incisions there, found the blood clean and pure.

They removed the blood from the side and injected it back into the veins by a transfusion in his leg. Attendants said this saved the lad's life.

Two Youths Seized Later After Death Threats Are Sent Oil Man.

By the Associated Press.

Eastland, Tex., Aug. 7.—A scheme to extort $3,000 from Samuel Butler, prominent Eastland oil man, under threats of harm to his children, was frustrated today when officers narrowly missed trapping the extortionist.

John W. Turner, Butler's legal adviser, related details of the threats, the trap and the near capture. The plot was the work of amateurs, officers agreed.

Later, two youths, one 22 and the other 24, were arrested in the Cisco, Tex., railroad yards and held for questioning. Police did not reveal their names.

Butler, president of the Arab Gasoline Corporation, and brother of the former Marine commander, Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, worked closely with Federal and State officers after receiving the first of three notes demanding $3,000.

The extortionist instructed Butler to "throw out the money" from a train when a verbal order was given between Eastland and El Paso early today.

Hurls Out Brief Case.

Two blocks from the Cisco station the oil company executive heard the command. He hurled out a brief case. Simultaneously, one of the officers accompanying him threw a flare, lighting up the countryside.

A young man fled without trying to get the brief case, containing $2,500.

Fifteen officers, in three automobiles, had been trailing the train, but the man eluded them.

The first extortion note, received July 25, threatened to "wipe out" either or both of Butler's children unless he paid. His children are Samuel, jr., 18, University of Texas student, and Helen, 16, high-school senior. They were sent to Philadelphia to escape possible danger.

Berwyn Boy Killed By Lumber Truck

William Riley, 10, of Berwyn, Md., was crushed to death beneath the wheels of a lumber truck last night in front of his home on Baltimore boulevard in Berwyn.

The boy was crossing the street when he saw the truck, driven by George E. Reed, of 1402 Eighteenth place southeast. Frightened, he attempted to run back to the curb, slipped and fell.

Reed, police say, pulled sharply to the left in an effort to avoid the prostrate boy.

County Policeman Howard Staler placed a technical charge of reckless driving against Reed and he was held on $1,000 bond by Acting Coroner George S. Phillips, of Berwyn.

Child Sees Father Slay Mother, Self

Baltimore, Aug. 7 (AP).—A 4-year-old boy stood by today while his mother and stepfather were killed in what police said was murder and suicide following a quarrel.

Police, called after passersby heard four shots, found Mrs. Mary Yeager, 26, dead in the hallway of a house. She had been shot three times. Her husband, John Joseph Yeager, 27, was lying just inside a door opening into the hall. He had a bullet in his head.

Crouched in a corner was William Erb, son of Mrs. Yeager by a former marriage. He was bewildered and frightened and unable to give an account of the shooting.

Neighbors said the couple had quarreled for some time and that they heard another quarrel today.

U. S. Jury May Indict Six in Wendel Case

Newark, N. J., Aug. 7 (AP).—A Federal grand jury, a reliable source disclosed today, ordered the preparation of six indictments charging violations of the Federal Lindbergh law in the alleged abduction and torture of Paul H. Wendel.

2 Bank Bandits Shot In Alabama Robbery

York, Ala., Aug. 7 (AP).—Two men were wounded and captured today shortly after they robbed the Bank of York of $10,000. One of the men, who officers said gave his names as James Isabell, of Oklahoma City, was wounded seriously. The other, unidentified, was shot in the arm.

Dairymen Hear Wallace State Milk Problems

Agriculture Chief Asserts Price Fixing Is Field for U. S. Regulation.

By the Associated Press.

Boonville, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace cited problems of State milk price fixing to a group of northern New York dairymen today and declared that "this is a field for Federal regulation."

Speaking at the Oneida County Fair, in the heart of upstate New York's dairying section, Wallace discussed decisions of the Federal courts in various milk cases.

"The practical effects of the decisions up to date," he said, "are to prevent absolutely any State from regulating the marketing of milk moving in interstate commerce.

"Notice was served on the dairymen that the power of every State is limited to regulating of the marketing of milk produced within that State, and that dairy producers can never expect any help from the government of their State as to prices, if those prices are largely influenced or determined by supplies of milk produced outside that State," he said.

"Face Problems."

Wallace said "the Government believes that the Federal courts will ultimately show an increasing willingness to face dairy industry problems."

He said farmers had been left facing chaotic market conditions due to adverse court rulings. However, he said, Government activities have aided the dairy industry by raising prices, and have assured an improved feed market in spite of the severe drought.

Concerning the Canadian trade agreements, Wallace said that "no hardship whatever has been worked on the milk producers in New York or any other State, but on the contrary their situation has been steadily improving since the agreement went into effect."

Topeka Approval.

Approval of a milk marketing agreement for Topeka, Kans., effective August 16, was announced yesterday by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

The AAA said the agreement was signed by all handlers buying milk from producers at Topeka and approved by the Shawmee County Milk Producers Association.

Black Legion Trio Convicted; 3 Freed

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Aug. 7.—A divided verdict that convicted three men and freed three others on false imprisonment charges, marked the close today of the first Black Legion trial since the terroristic activities of the hooded society were disclosed more than two months ago.

Circuit Judge Joseph A. Moynihan, who tried the charges of kidnaping and flogging without a jury, ruled that Earl Angstadt, 35, and Thomas F. Cox, 31, steel workers, and Frederick A. Gulley, 31, had forced Robert Penland, a steel worker of suburban Ecorse, to leave home and go with them to a meeting. Therefore, he said, they were guilty of "false imprisonment." They were jailed to await sentence.

The court acquitted Charles D. King, former Ecorse councilman; Harold Lawrence, a steel worker, and Wilbur Robinson, former Detroit street railway employe and self-styled "brigadier general" in the legion.

More than 50 men remain to be tried on various charges of Black Legion terrorism, including murder, kidnaping, arson, conspiracy to incite riot and related offenses.

Reich-Spain Break Is Reported Near

Paris (Saturday) Aug. 8 (U.P.).—An "eminent personage" in the entourage of Chancellor Adolf Hitler has telephoned the British foreign office warning that Germany will take action in Barcelona today, Genevieve Tabouis, usually well-informed political writer for the newspaper Oeuvre, reported.

It was believed that Berlin will present Madrid with a virtual ultimatum giving a time limit for punishment of those allegedly guilty of executing four German citizens at Barcelona and for making reparations, the writer asserted.

Otherwise, Germany will break off relations with the Popular Front Government of Mardrid, she said. Tabouis believed that Germany is deliberately seeking to rupture Spanish-German relations.

Czechoslovakian Reds Demand Alfonso Leave

Praha, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 7 (AP). Communists today demanded the expulsion of former King Alfonso of Spain on grounds that his presence violates Czechoslovakia's declared neutrality in the Spanish civil war.

Alfonso, however, remained at Koenigswart without immediate plans for leaving. He is visiting a friend, Count Metternich.

A deputation of Communists submitted their demands to the district governor of Marienbad and then telegraphed them to the ministry of the interior when the governor said he had no authority for such a step.

War Lords in Kwangsi Ready for Nanking Army

Lyon Park Girl, 3, Likes Work; Weaves Baskets, Sews, Paints

ANN DELAHANTY.

Her most recent creation is the reed basket she has just finished weaving in the domestic arts playground, directed by Miss Gertrude Smith at the James Monroe School, in Arlington County.

Ann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Y. W. Delahanty, of Lyon Park, and she has been attending the class for the last year.

She is as busy as a bee throughout her school day. Each day at 9 a. m. her mother leaves her among her 60 classmates, and at 3 p. m. her mother takes her home.

Reed baskets are not her only products. She is fond of modeling pots and pans and vases and animals in clay. She sews and paints cards. She is the ultra-modern, super-industrious child, with a generous touch of old-fashioned will to win thrown in.

Ann believes there's a great deal in this "all work and no play" idea. So she enjoys romping with the older children. She's their match in any sports, no mistake about that.

At home Ann is attracted to the piano. Sometimes she is discovered fingering the keys.

Stanley Reed Talks on Future Of Constitution

Virginia Bar Hears Him Call It Flexible Enough to Meet Needs.

By the Associated Press.

Virginia Beach, Va., Aug. 7.—Stanley Reed, United States Solicitor General, predicted here tonight that time would prove the flexibility of the Constitution and make it "as adequate for the problems of today as time has shown it has been adequate to meet the difficulties of the past."

"Certainly lawyers, and indeed all people," he said, "must recognize the desirability of Federal and State legislation of a new type to meet the exigencies of this modern world. Of course, there will be groups which oppose any specific piece of legislation. Our conclusions as to its constitutionality, however, must not be influenced by any predilections as to its desirability."

Reed spoke before the annual convention of the Virginia Bar Association.

Wider use of Federal powers, he said, does not mean a denial of the rights of States in their sphere and creates no ground for alarm over the maintenance of the dual system of government.

Gov. George C. Peery introduced Mr. Reed.

Ralph T. Catterall, of Richmond, told the association this afternoon that situations where corporations get the business, employ the lawyers to do the work and pay them out of the gross receipts constituted a threat to "the essential dignity of the legal profession." He spoke on "the power of the courts to deal with members of the bar in those cases involving the unauthorized practice of law."

Stuart B. Campbell, of Wytheville, in the president's annual address, declared there was too much delay in the disposition of cases carried to the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia.

He called upon the profession to "recapture a lost supremacy and to furnish sound and intelligent leadership to the people."

Officers will be elected tomorrow morning. Tomorrow night the delegates will hear Strickland Gillilan, Washington humorist and newspaper correspondent, at the annual dinner. A men's golf tournament will be held in the afternoon. Dancing from 9:30 p. m. to 1 a. m. will conclude the three-day convention program.

Film Work Again Defers Astor Custody Hearing

Miss Astor was scheduled to be cited tomorrow to give a deposition in support of her petition for annulment. But she must have another day to finish a current movie, a representative of the studio said, so Judge Goodwin Knight set the deposition phase over until Monday. Testimony was to have been resumed then, after a week's delay.

Miss Astor asked for annulment, abrogating the divorce decree Dr. Thorpe won in April, 1935. She asserted he had been married and was not divorced when he married her.

1,000 Ferrymen's Strike Averted on West Coast

San Francisco, Aug. 7 (AP).—The threatened strike of 1,000 members of the Ferryboatmen's Union, which would have tied up San Francisco Bay's automobile ferry system, has been averted.

The Northwestern Pacific and the Southern Pacific Golden Gate Ferries, Inc., agreed to negotiate with the Ferryboatmen's Union. The strike was threatened unless the ferry operators gave assurance of dismissal wages to be paid when the ferries suspended operations upon completion of the Golden Gate and Bay bridges.

Strikers Plan To Picket Cars Of D. C. Bakery

Arrest of 20 Fails to Stop Campaign of Drivers Seeking More Pay.

Undeterred by the arrest of 20 of their number yesterday in Cherrydale, Va., union drivers on strike against Dutch Baker Boy, Inc., planned to launch a picketing campaign this morning to discourage house to house sales by the company's delivery trucks.

Acting on the complaint of Herbert M. Koehne, 224 S street northeast, Arlington County police took 20 striking drivers into custody after they had tried unsuccessfully to persuade Koehne, a non-union employe, to leave his wagon and join their ranks.

Charged with disorderly conduct, the men were released on personal bond to appear in County Court Monday morning. Sheriff Howard B. Fields withheld their names.

Robert Lester, business agent of Bakery Salesmen's Local Union No. 33, admitted oral picketing was practiced yesterday and said that, beginning this morning, strikers' autos bearing picket signs will trail Dutch Baker Boy wagons.

"We intend to abide strictly by the law," Lester said. "If police say the signs or the method of picketing are illegal we shall cease."

Twenty-six drivers, recently signed up in the union, have joined the walkout, according to Lester. They demand a $38 weekly wage guarantee and a 9-hour day.

Hitz, Former Wife Remarried Here

Married in January, 1932, and divorced in April, 1935, in Reno, Frederick Hitz, son of the late Associate Justice William Hitz, of District Supreme Court, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hume Hitz, were remarried yesterday at the home of the bridegroom's mother, 1512 Thirty-third street.

Reuniting the socially prominent daughter of Mrs. Rawlins Hume and the young lawyer, a former assistant United States attorney here, after a year's separation, the ceremony was performed in the presence of the couple's mothers, Miss Mary Hume, the bride's sister, and William Hitz, jr., the bridegroom's brother.

Immediately afterward the couple left on a second honeymoon for Deer Isle, Me., where they will stay for about a month.

Yesterday's ceremony was performed by Justice Jennings Bailey, of District Court. The couple was first married by Justice Peyton Gordon, of District Supreme Court.

A member of the Junior League, Mrs. Hitz also has done local newspaper work. She made her debut in 1925.

Inquiry to Open Today In Air Crash Fatal to 8

St. Louis, Aug. 7 (AP).—A coroner's verdict of "accident from causes unknown" was returned at an inquest today into the deaths of eight men Wednesday night in the crash of Chicago & Southern's airliner, the City of Memphis.

Several witnesses were heard, but no attempt was made by Coroner Luke B. Tiernon to go into technical causes for the accident. That phase will be taken up tomorrow when investigators of the Bureau of Air Commerce, headed by the director, Eugene L. Vidal, begin a public hearing on the crash.

Christ Scientist Sermon on 'Spirit'

"Spirit" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Psalms 143:10: "Thou art my God; Thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "I will love thee, O Lord, my strength. For Thou wilt light my candle: the Lord my God will enlighten my darkness." (Psalms 18:1-28.)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "We approach God, of Life, in proportion to our spirituality, our fidelity to Truth and Love, and in that ratio we know all human need and are able to discern the thought of the sick and the sinning for the purpose of healing them. Error of any kind can not hide from the law of God."

Rev. H. J. Whiting To Hold Service

The Rev. Henry J. Whiting, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, Bethesda, Md., will deliver the address at the open air religious services at 4 p. m. tomorrow at Temple Heights.

On the Air Today

The Census Bureau has completed a detailed study of the broadcasting industry, including the average salaries paid announcers over the country. According to what the Census uncovered the broadcasting business would not lure many young men away from plans to become doctors, lawyers, salesmen and bricklayers.

Straight studio announcing is not a good example of money opportunities in radio. The base pay for announcers in Washington is higher than in at least 100 smaller cities, but the preponderance of smaller cities pull down the average weekly salary.

Few men doing announcing work in a city such as Washington expect to continue indefinitely making "station breaks." All sorts of doors are open to men thoroughly familiar with broadcasting. Script writing, publicity, newsreel and shorts commenting, production work and numerous other opportunities might be mentioned.

There's money in most branches of the broadcasting industry. It is said in New York that Eddie Cantor asked for, and will receive, $8,500 for his work in the "Radio Theater" for Cecil B. DeMille late this month. The Jimmy Wallingtons, Don Wilsons, Harry Von Zells, Graham McNamees, Ken Niles and other announcers who earn positions in shows of these types are paid commensurately.

The build-up plan is being tried at Radio City again. Three young women are the objects of N. B. C. promotions these summer weeks: Hildegarde, the American girl just returned from three years of success in Europe; Midge Williams, colored songstress, who knows her ditties in Japanese or Hindu as well as English, and Jean Dickenson, protege of Lily Pons.

The build-up plan is simple—and profitable if it works out. Rudy Vallee was probably the earliest example of what promotion and publicity can do for a new artist when the effort is being made by such an influential organization as a broadcasting network and its affiliated interests.

Connelly Fable Of Bible Tales Is Unique Film

'Green Pastures' Retains Stage Play's Power; Other Programs.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"THE GREEN PASTURES." Warner Brothers picturization of the Pulitzer Prize play by Marc Connelly, suggested by Roark Bradford's Southern sketches, "Ol' Man Adam an' His Chillun," with Rex Ingram as "De Lawd," supported by Oscar Polk, Eddie Anderson, Frank Wilson, George Reed, Myrtle Anderson, Al Stokes, Edna M. Harris and an all-Negro cast, assisted by the Hall Johnson Choir. Directed by Marc Connelly and William Keighley. Previewed Tuesday, July 28.

Marc Connelly, who supervised the production of the screen version of his Biblical fable of "The Green Pastures," has been guilty of only a few minor indiscretions in fashioning the celluloid transcription of his Pulitzer Prize winner of the year of its original presentation on the stage.

BELL.

These consist wholly of the added scenes with which Mr. Connelly has seen fit to embellish his impressive drama as it was written for the boards. Even so, the propriety of the addenda to the original script becomes a matter of personal opinion. The only encroachment upon the dignity of the play revealed by the picture to which this department especially objects is the sequence devoted to the loading of the animals on the Ark. As has been previously remarked here, that interval of the film seems a little too much on the side of grotesque, juvenile comedy to have any rightful place in a narrative that otherwise refuses to violate the integrity of a simple story of the Old Testament Scriptures, as interpreted in terms of human existence by the untutored but reverential Negro of the Deep South.

Preserves Spirit of Original.

In every other respect, "The Green Pastures," as it is being shown upon the screen of the Earle Theater, adheres with fine fidelity to the spirit, the movement and the dignity of the original work.

Of tremendous and vital value to the effectiveness of this unique contribution to the library of the theater's distinguished creations is the musical background provided many of the pivotal episodes of the picture by the Hall Johnson Choir of Negro voices in a series of spirituals peculiarly expository of the scenes in which they are introduced. There are times during the progress of the story being told by Mr. Deshee to his Sunday school class of pickaninnies when the musical background of the action creates an effect of true operatic beauty and magnificence.

In its structure and sequence of events, the film version clings faithfully to the pattern of the stage play. The celestial fish-fry, when De Lawd enters to the amazing words of Gabriel, "Gangway! Gangway for De Lawd God Jehovah!" and then is moved to "r'ar back and pass a miracle" in the creation of the earth as a place to "dreen off" the excess firmament produced for the proper seasoning of the "b'iled custard," is a primitive dream of Heaven come true. But with the "passing of the miracle" that placed this minor planet out in space, came the creation also of man and then it was that De Lawd's troubles began.

De Lawd Is Not Pleased.

In the simple terms of a child-like and respectful people, there come to pass the tragedy of the Garden of Eden, the growth of sin in the world, the necessity of De Lawd's obliterating all he had created which displeased him by the Deluge and the founding of a new world from the inhabitants of the Ark; the rescue of his people by Moses, their exodus from Egypt and the fall of Jericho. All this is visualized with a quaint humor and profound impressiveness that lend Holy Writ a strange and compelling forcefulness.

"The Green Pastures" is marvelous and full-fashioned entertainment, as well an eloquent preachment upon the human relationships between a wayward world and, a vengeful Redeemer, who in the end becomes a God of mercy through suffering and the tragedy of Calvary.

In the role of De Lawd, as has been previously indicated by this typewriter, Rex Ingram reveals every qualification to serve as the successor of that other admirable and kindly actor of his race, the late Richard B. Harrison. Ingram brings to the part a sincerity, a kindliness and a dignity that few players of any color could approximate. Not only does he score handsomely in the greatest role in the play, but with equal skill assumes the less demanding characters of Adam and the warrior, Hezdrel.

Support Is Superlative.

In the recitation of the fine performances contributed by a majority of the members of the long cast, names mean little. A passing word of commendation should be spoken, nevertheless, for the conspicuously meritorious work of Eddie Anderson as Noah, Frank Wilson as Moses, Oscar Polk as Gabriel and James Fuller and Edna M. Harris as Cain, the sixth, and Zeba, symbols of evil in the pre-flood periods of the play.

It would be unfair, too, to omit mention of George Reed, as Mr. Deshee, and the numerous youngsters comprising his Sabbath school class. In fact, no member of the cast deserves wholly to be ignored.

The Stage Bill Suffers.

On the stage, a group of specialists whose talents run largely to the lighter forms of expression offer perhaps a needed, but nevertheless slightly jarring, interval of living entertainment. The vaudeville bill is headlined by the "Twentieth Century Revue," featuring the Three Byrne Sisters, unison tap dancers; Helen Windsor, acrobatic dancer; Sylvia Starr, a dancing contortionist, and Montgomery and Withee, a mixed team of tappers.

The Three Kanes, gymnasts and acrobats, open the goings-on, and are followed in the deuce spot by Les Reis and Artie Dunn in their clever songs-and-piano act. The effulgent Miss Aubrey Sieber then introduces the gentleman who, to me, was the hit of the bill—Larry Blake, who did some extraordinarily effective impersonations of Lionel Barrymore, Edward G. Robinson, Charles Laughton, Gregory Ratoff, Harry Richman, Al Smith, Wallace Beery and others.

The Paramount News and Freddie Clark's orchestra are the remaining auxiliaries of a feature so unusual as to need no support of any kind to afford full and complete enjoyment.

Little Rich Girl Rides to Glory

Although there is no recollection of this scene's having been included in the dramatic action of "The Poor Little Rich Girl," it should have been. Not only does the diminutive Miss Shirley Temple ride her screen daddy, Michael Whalen, to the point of distraction in the film, but she also rides the film into a second week of popular acclaim at Loew's Palace Theater. The second week of the engagement began yesterday, with no diminution in attendance or interest in the precocious young lady who deserves to be known as "the biggest little star of them all."

Loew's Fox

"POPPY." Paramount picturization of a play by Dorothy Donnelly, adapted to the screen by Waldemar Young and Virginia Van Upp, starring W. C. Fields, supported by Rochelle Hudson, Richard Cromwell, Lynne Overman, Catharine Doucet, Rosalind Keith, Granville Bates, Adrian Morris, Ralph Remley, Dewey Robinson, Tammany Young and Bill Wolfe. Music and lyrics by Sam Eslow. Frederick Hollander, Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin. Directed by Edward A. Sutherland. Reviewed Friday morning by W. A. Whitney.

This may be the age of transcendent youth, but appropriately enough this week—which is the last under the label of "Fox"—favorites of many years' standing usurp all top honors in the program at Loew's Fox Theater. On the screen, it is the unique W. C. Fields; on the stage, those perennial favorites, Rosetta and Vivian Duncan.

Light and frothy, the entire bill offers nothing to necessitate cerebral exertion. Rather is it one during which to relax and to enjoy oneself. With Mr. Fields in the feature attraction, it matters little what the story or its personnel are—the star's personality and performance dominates the entire structure of the film. Although he does not do his usual juggling act, he does a croquet scene as excruciatingly funny.

Briefly, the story revolves about a carnival medicine man, of questionable business methods, and his foster daughter, whom he manages to install as a lost daughter and heiress to several million dollars. The fraud is discovered, but the day is saved when the assumption is proved true. A romantic thread between the girl and the mayor's son runs through the play, yet the main interest is the manner in which Prof. Eustace P. McGargle (who but Mr. Fields could that be?) finds himself in difficulties and deftly extricates himself.

Garbed in the mode of 1883, with an exaggerated topper and cane, Mr. Fields here finds a role tailored to his precise measurements and therein acquits himself as finely as one would like. Rochelle Hudson and Richard Cromwell pleasingly account for the juvenile love interest.

Duncans Dominate Stage.

Tops on a stage bill of entertaining acts are the Duncan Sisters. Roundly greeted and generously applauded throughout their act, the sisters go through a series of duets in the manner which has made them favorites for years. Especially good is their "Dunkin' Duncan Doughnuts"—with free samples heaved over the footlights—and its following repetition, in appropriate operatic garb, after the manner of Richard Crooks and Lily Pons. Since any performance by the Sisters Vivian and Rosetta could hardly be called complete without their famed "Topsy and Eva" routine, so they have this time added it as an encore, but without the usual blackface. Burnt cork or no burnt cork, there is no Eva like Vivian, no Topsy quite like Rosetta.

The program is opened with the Three Cossacks, a trio of roller skaters performing on an 8-foot platform raised about 3 feet off the stage. Rather routine in composition, the act, nevertheless, has its novel moments, and is continually diverting. Next is Guy Robertson, soloist in the recent "The Great Waltz," who, sings "Life Is a Song," "Without a Song," and "Roll Along, Covered Wagon. Roll Along" in a clear, healthy tenor. The closing act is Carl Freed and his Harmonica Harlequins, a quartet of mouth organ virtuosi in the Borrah Minnevich maner.

For his overture this week, Phil Lampkin leads his cohorts through snatches of some 20 representative songs of the past 100 years, of operatic, folk and "popular" genres. "Scouring the Skies!" recounting the aerial advancements of recent years, as caught by the newsreel cameraman, and the Fox Movietone News round out the program to ring out Loew's Fox and ring in Loew's Capitol.

Palace

"POOR LITTLE RICH GIRL." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a screen play by Sam Hellman, Gladys Lehman and Harry Tugend, suggested by the stories of Eleanor Gates and Ralph Spence, starring Shirley Temple, supported by Michael Whalen, Gloria Stuart, Jack Haley, Alice Faye and Claude Gillingwater. Directed by Irving Cummings. Reviewed second week by Dorothea Lewis.

What with all the children there are in the city to take parents, and all the parents there are to take children, to see her, it is not in the least surprising that Miss Shirley Temple is still with us. And she should be.

Her "Poor Little Rich Girl" seems distinctly one of her brighter vehicles, altogether festive and light-hearted entertainment. The music to which she taps is tuneful and the words she—er—croons are fun, particularly the spinach epic.

The story doesn't clutter anything up at all, relating as it does how a poor little rich girl wanders away from a pretty dull big house and finds exactly the sort of people she likes, without even a road map to help her.

The supporting cast includes such amiable people as Michael Whalen, Gloria Stuart, Henry Armetta, Jack Haley and Alice Faye. Even that grumpy Gillingwater begins to brigten the corner where he is when Shirley works on him.

The subsidiaries include a new and hysterical Mickey Mouse, a "Crime Doesn't Pay" short and the newsreel.

Columbia

"SAN FRANCISCO." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a story by Robert Hopkins, with screen play by Anita Loos, starring Jeanette MacDonald and Clark Gable, and featuring Spencer Tracy, supported by Jack Holt, Jessie Ralph, Ted Healy, Shirley Ross, Margaret Irvine, Harold Huber, Edgar Kennedy, Al Shean, William Ricciardi, Kenneth Harlan, Roger Imhof, Charles Judels, Russell Simpson, Bert Roach and Warren B. Hymer. Music from operas by Gounod and Verdi, with additional music and lyrics by Gus Kahn, Bronislau Kaper, Walter Jurmann, Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed. Dances by Val Raset. Directed by William S. Van Dyke. Reviewed (return engagement) by W. A. Whitney.

Surely one does not need at this time to be regaled with a discursive story on the merits of "San Francisco," especially after this spectacular picture has already played three weeks along the Capital's main stem.

Two weeks ago this morning your commentator stated, "In short, just read the credits and then draw your own conclusions—and, we venture to say, you will not be wrong." To say anything more has us stumped. But we can add that if you have not seen this narrative of Frisco of the pre-earthquake days, then by all means you must see it now.

For the further edification of the public the Palace run's erstwhile short subjects are also being repeated: "Polo," with descriptive narration by the inimitable Pete Smith, and "Two Little Pups," a Technicolor cartoon of particular merit. A new issue of the Metrotone News rounds out the program.

Culbertson On Bridge

An Easy Throw-in Play.

Yesterday I published a letter from a gentleman who offered, nay insisted, on being my "contract spy," pointing out that he, much better than I, could circulate in bridge circles of different types and send me human interest hands and stories. I did not have space in yesterday's column to thank him properly, but now I take pleasure in expressing my appreciation. Some men require a bodyguard. My own pressing need, I now realize, was an A-1 indefatigable spy willing to work for the improvement of his fellow players, instead of filthy cash.

Here is another example of commuters' contract which he has sent me:

East, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
East-West 30 on score.

	NORTH
	♥ K 7 6
	♦ Q 6 3
	♣ A 10 9 8
WEST		EAST
♠ K 7		♠ A 10 9 5 4
♥ J 6 5		♥ A Q 10 8 3
♦ K J 8 7 2		♦ 10 5
♣ Q 7 4		♣ J
	SOUTH
	♠ Q J 2
	♦ A 9 4
	♣ K 6 5 3 3

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 spade	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

West, of course, was quite wrong to insist on a no trump contract. He should have raised the hearts to three, which was enough for game on the 30 part-score. East also was at fault for not insisting on one of his two major suits, by bidding three hearts over two no trump. But it was West alone who proceeded to make hash out of the play.

North opened the ten of clubs, South won with the king and returned his original fourth best, the three. North proceeded to cash his entire club suit, but South was blocked with the long club. Now North shifted to the spade eight, dummy played the nine, South the jack, and declarer the king. The successful heart finesse allowed declarer to run off dummy's suit for five tricks, during which South was getting into deep water with his discards. On the third and fourth heart he let go diamonds, but when the fifth was played, he had the unhappy choice of chucking his good club, unguarding the spade queen, or (unthinkable) letting go the diamond ace. He chose the first named as the only one that might not be fatal. With only the A-10 of spades and the ten of diamonds left in dummy, and six tricks already home, declarer should not have had the slightest trouble in, taking the two tricks still necessary for his contract. A diamond would have forced South on lead and made him surrender both spade tricks to dummy's tenace. Certainly, judging by South's revealing discards, this chance was much better than the one actually taken; the declarer laid down the spade ace on the remote chance that the jack would drop. It didn't.

The Federal Diary

By Betty Read.

The weekly Sunday morning broadcast of the Smithsonian Institution, which is celebrating its ninetieth anniversary, and the Office of Education will touch on the importance of the Smithsonian Institution in our national life and its contributions to the world of science.

Dr. C. G. Abbot, head of the Smithsonian, is on the program and a letter of congratulations to him for his scientific and administrative contributions to the Institution will be read. It comes from Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, under whom the Office of Education functions.

While the main part of the broadcast will be devoted to the Third World Power Conference, which opens here next month, the work of the Smithsonian and its scientific researches into power production will have a large part in the broadcast. O. C. Merrill, director of the conference, is to speak.

"The material life of the world has been revolutionized by scientific research," Dr. Abbot said, "the progress of science is so rapid that a problem which may seem of supreme importance today is outmoded tomorrow."

In the days when the Institution was founded pure science was almost entirely the hobby of the rich or of interested individuals.

Dr. Colvin to The Hague.

Dr. H. M. Colvin, one of the staff of the Resettlement Administration's legal division, has been appointed by the Bar Association of the United States as a delegate to The Hague International Conference this month. He is now in Europe.

And now us gals have our innings for the Resettlement Press, that publication of information, nonsense and good humor of the employes of the Resettlement Administration, lists the qualifications for the perfect husband. Last month, you remember, the paper listed all the male ideals for a perfect wife.

The prize-winning letter in the contest this month says that the man who sets the girl's thoughts on saying and hearing "I do" must have "the wherewithall," must be companionable, wear his clothes with a flare, be adaptable and have a creditable background. Does that seem like a lot to ask?

But to get down to details on this perfect husband. The prize winner, Lotta Stulf (and we suspect the letter is a composite of many) says she wants a man "who has the love of his business to squeeze it dry of every possibility and to take from it all possible, to the end that he will be able to provide a comfortable, leisurely living so that petty expenses will not hamper life."

He-Man But no Tarzan.

As to companionship, well, she wants one who doesn't grow stale and who has interests in common and appeal to both sexes and she wants her man to have "the ability to wear clothes with snap, though not flashily dressed and to be a he-man though not necessarily a Tarzan.

His background must include manners and family connections equal to her own and he must have tact, sophistication, understanding, broadmindedness and respect for his wife's opinions and varied interests. That is quite an order! But after all, this is just the ideal.

And finally he must adapt himself to any circumstance or person with assurance and finesse.

And the letter ends by saying that the ideal husband is a man who is temperate and is, as an ancient philosopher once said, "moderate in all things."

Next month the Lovelorn Editor, Countess Senrab, promises an authoritative statement on what to do about that summer romance. And speaking of the editor we merely draw attention in passing that "Senrab" spelled backward is Barnes and comment on the fact that on the board of editors of the paper is L. R. S. Barnes.

B. B. Aikens Has New Job.

B. B. Aikens, who headed the publication section of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, has a new job. He is now attached to the staff of the commercial laws division and all the activities under his supervision up to this time as head of the publications section have been turned back to their respective divisions. Just at present his new job takes him to the San Diego Exposition. Mrs. Nancy Ely, who was associated with Aikens in the publications sections, has been transferred to the marketing research division.

The manager of the third U. S. Civil Service District, Old Postoffice Building, Philadelphia, Pa., announces he will receive applications until further notice for the position of instrument maker in the Ordinance Department, Frankfort Arsenal, Philadelphia.

The entrance salary is $6.16 a day for a five-day week less a retirement deduction of 3½ per cent.

Applicants must have completed an apprenticeship of four years as instrument maker in a first class instrument shop or high-grade physical laboratory shop, or they must have had four years of experience in the trade, the substantial equivalent of such completed apprenticeship, in the construction, machining, etc., of physical, astronomical, geodetic, or similar scientific instruments. The completion of each year of a machinist's or toolmaker's apprenticeship will be accepted in lieu of six months of the required experience, such substitution to be limited to two years.

Man Fails to Kill Self Third Time

Fred Beuchart, 36, of 712 Somerset place northwest, failed yesterday in his third attempt at suicide in two days, according to police.

Elinor Huck and Benjamin Patterson, neighbors, found Beuchert lying unconscious on the kitchen floor. Four jets on the stove were turned on, they told police.

He was given treatment at Emergency Hospital for asphyxiation and ordered sent to Gallinger Hospital for observation. His condition, physicians said, is not serious.

Beuchert twice before had tried to end his life by taking gas, but neighbors have succeeded in preventing his death.

Sheridan Road

SYNOPSIS.

Eden Faraday, young secretary, opens the door of a taxi and finds a man murdered. She is taken to the police station, where she meets Jack Garnett, newspaper cameraman, and Owen Field, assistant district attorney, who arranges her release. Eden had been mistaken for Gracie Lincoln, a gunman's widow. The man murdered was a notorius gangster, Grappi. Eden's mother, Bridget Faraday, sells gowns and is in love with suave Sidney Creighton. Eden and her spoiled young sister, Robin, and brother, Coburn, depend on their peppery grandmother. Because of rumor that Eden can identify the murderers Owen Field has her guarded. Her brother and Sidney escort Eden to a business appointment. When they leave her she is snatched by two evil-looking men, but Field and his men rescue her. Field takes her to his mother's home, where she is kept secluded. Jack Garnett climbs roofs to talk to her from her window. Raquel Rusak, an older woman, is trying to force Coburn Faraday to marry her. While at a roadhouse with Raquel, Coburn sees his sister Robin come in with Sidney Creighton. Eden is brought home by Owen Field after the inquest.

CHAPTER NINE.

ROMANCE.

Gran was alone with her feet in red felt slippers and the rooms were quiet and fragrant of something delicious.

"Gingerbread," Gran announced as she hugged Eden and brought a chair for Owen Field, "and it's best when it's hot. I'll have it out in a twitch, so you sit here and have a piece, with some of my grapefruit wine. Edie, you better cold cream your face right away. It looks dry."

"Gran," Eden laughingly explained, "was once a famous beauty, and she means to make charmers of us if she has to kill us!"

"Not such a difficult job, I should think," Field remarked, the smile flickering about his mouth, "and why do you use that word 'once'? It seems to me that your grandmother is a famous beauty still."

"We think so," Eden hugged Gran again.

"Anyhow I make handsome gingerbread," Gran was dry, "and you learned your blarney from Martin Burke, young man. I know him, the devil! He used to hang around stage doors in his time."

"Ha," laughed Field, "blackmail! Thank you, lady—thanks a lot. She's quite remarkable, isn't she?" he said, as the swing door clapped after Gran's small straight back.

"She's wonderful." Eden had a husk in her throat. Gran was so gallant and so dear! "She has taken care of us all our lives."

He tapped a cigarette on his thumb. "Perhaps that was her good fortune. Taking care of you could be a pleasure. I enjoyed it."

"You've been very kind. But, of course, I'm thankful to be out of the case. You can understand that."

"Well, of course you aren't entirely out of it as yet. We'll catch those fellows and try them sooner or later unless the G-men—Federal men—beat us to it. We're indebted to the mob, of course, for saving us the trouble of getting Grappi ourselves, but there will always be some ambitious young punk who thinks he wants to be a Grappi. The hunt never ends."

"And they can't see that it's no use?"

"If they see it they do too late. Crime is a slippery whirling downgoing chute. Once in, a man might repent, but there's not much he can do. He can't get out. He can't save himself. He's either a thug or a rat and the end is the same, either way."

"Will you thank your mother for her hospitality? I had no opportunity when I left."

Man of Determintion.

"Yes, I'll do that. But—surely I'm going to see you again?"

"O, you aren't leaving before the gingerbread comes out of the oven? Gran would be disgraced."

"But how about a long wilderness of days ahead when there will be no gingerbread?" He leaned nearer, his eyes holding a whimsical light. Eden felt a little breathless. Was he falling in love with her? The thought thrilled and frightened her a little. She liked him, he was splendid, but his lips had that thin firmness which so easily turns ruthless. And there was a thrusting sort of determination in the jut of his chin. He would get what he wanted. He would rule what he possessed. Rule with gentleness, perhaps, but the iron would be there, firm underneath the velvet.

Something in Eden that went back to those audacious kings of Ireland who were Gran's boast, stiffened defensively against any threat of domination. There was too much quicksilver in the Faraday blood, too much recklessness, a thing that fought for freedom and wild wind on the hilltops.

Prisons had never been able to hold the ancient Faradays, bad luck had never dashed their swashbuckling spirits, nor the spirits of their gallant descendants. And no one had ever owned or ruled a Faraday.

"The trial is coming, you remember?" she titled her head a little, "the trial of all those dangerous gentlemen you are going to catch and hang. You can have a grand time roaring at me on the witness stand. Probably you'll be able to convince the jury and me both that I really am Gracie Lincoln."

He laughed "When you see Gracie you'll understand how funny that sounds. You're as much like her as I'm like Mahatma Ghandi. She's a hard-eyed girl who has always had to fight her way, while you——"

"I have had to fight my way, too. Don't forget that."

"You've done it graciously—without scars."

"I couldn't be a Gracie Lincoln. I talk too much. Gran likes talk. She says a smoldering fire makes bitter smoke, but that to talk a thing out ends a lot of grudges and grievances. Gran and I are the garrulous ones. My mother keeps secrets. She'd make a much better witness than I, probably, but you'd get very little out of her. But she's a grand person."

"That's obvious. She has grand children."

"You mustn't sit around here flattering me. That's unprofessional. You should be judicial, with an arbitrary manner."

Gran came in then with gingerbread, butter melting lusciously over it.

Bodyguard Promised.

"Now I know that I'm coming again," Field said when they had finished the last crumb. He rose and buttoned his overcoat. "Will you do something for me?" he asked. "Will you be careful where you go—and with whom? Don't be seen in public places for a few days and please stay in at night. I'll send a man to take you to your work in the morning and to call for you at night. I don't think there's any danger now, but we'll be prepared in any case."

"I'll be careful," Eden promised, "but surely they won't bother about me now?"

"You can never tell what those fellows will do. I'll call for you myself at night if I can get away. If I may?"

"You've hooked that one," Gran remarked, when he was gone. "Seems like a nice young fellow."

"O, Gran—you're always going around sniffing for romances! I'm a witness. He needs me. And you are a friend of Martin Burke."

"Catsfoot! It's time somebody smelled romance around here. You'll go around in a dream all your days and end up an old maid like your Aunt Sophie."

"Aunt Sophie had a lot of fun. And she had her own money and no grandchildren to worry about like you. Being an old maid might be very peaceful."

"Being dead is peaceful, too, but nobody hankers for it," Gran sniffed.

Almost at once Eden discovered that relations were strained between mother and Robin.

There was a sharp quarrel at dinner time. Bridget was critical, acid, and quite obviously worried. Robin, on the defensive, was defiant, brightly saucy, and hard.

"Bobs, why do you do it?" Eden pleaded, when, after a sharp exchange of caustic remarks, Robin came into their room and dropped on the bed. "Mother's nerve-strained and tired. Why do you irritate her?"

"Can I help it if the clothes she picks for me fall to pieces? I'm no nun." Robin was angry. "I have corpuscles and joints and I move. It isn't just a busted blouse, Ede. It's more than that. It's psychological. She hates us—you—me—because we're young."

"Robin—how absolutely cruel and silly! You should be ashamed."

"Why? Why should I be ashamed when it's true? She resents us because we're young and have nice hair and decent complexions. We're competition—and women of forty odd don't like competition. It's an ancient enmity—we had it in psychology class. She blames us for a situation we can't help. We grew up—we're pretty and attractive, and that's intolerable to any woman her age."

Share-Wealth Leader Attacks Roosevelt Here

Rev. G. L. K. Smith Speaks at Press Club; Assails 'Blackmailers.'

Shouting "blackmail," "dishonesty," and double crossing," the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, share-the-wealth leader, Townsend leader, and Union Party leader, denounced the Roosevelt Administration in a speech at the National Press Club yesterday.

Smith, referring to the Administration, declared he had "contempt for their personal dishonesty, contempt for their blackmail practices, contempt for the smiles they shed over the grave of my leader, (Huey Long), and contempt for their philosophy of government."

Speaking in his best camp meeting manner, Smith said:

"If I sought revenge I would seek the re-election of Franklin D. Roosevelt, because then he will have to sleep in his own soup."

Smith said that if either Roosevelt or Alf M. Landon wins there will be chaos.

"When the money runs out and those boys return from the CCC camps, the bread lines will develop, then will come the greatest struggle in America," he said. "The Communists are the hardest working politicians in America.

"Spain is splashing over into America. Russia is oozing over into the United States. Church-burning philosophies are in our midst. They must be stamped out without tolerance or consideration.

"Remember, in November we elect not only a President, but if Providence rules according to form, we are electing a Supreme Court, and this will very likely determine how much they can do to us in the next four years."

The Bolters' Conference.

The unhappy position of the bolter in American politics is again illustrated by the conference of disgruntled Democrats in Detroit. Party ties are not easily broken off in this country. Even when a party undergoes a major transformation, as Democracy has done under President Roosevelt, thousands who are distressed by the new policies still cling to the name.

In the group assembled at Detroit bitterness against the New Deal has so nearly overcome party allegiance that indorsement of Gov. Landon's candidacy is expected. Yet these former chieftains of the Democratic Party will not renounce their political affiliations. Certainly they are not ready to merge their fortunes with the G. O. P. Rather they accuse the New Deal of having deserted the party of Jefferson, and seek the most effective means of reviving the policies for which that party traditionally stood.

The uneasy position which these crusaders necessarily occupy accounts for the conspicuous absence of various Democratic chieftains who undoubtedly sympathize with their objective. Al Smith, for example, has already made his position known. But he could not bring himself to the point of joining a conference that may give aid and comfort to the Republican cause. Numerous officeholders who are known to be sympathetic with the purpose of the Detroit meeting are even more reluctant to give it their active support.

For this reason the Detroit conference is not likely to make a big splash in the political pool. The unpopularity of dissenting groups has been demonstrated again and again in American politics, perhaps never more emphatically than in the very small vote cast for the "gold" Democrats in 1896, after the silverites had nominated William Jennings Bryan. But this does not mean that the influence of insurgent groups has not been considerable.

The dislike of insurgency during the campaigns does not necessarily follow voters to the ballot box. People who would not think of bolting their party have no qualms about voting against a candidate who has not measured up to their expectations. However, the Detroit conference becomes chiefly significant when it is considered along with the disaffection among radical groups which supported the President in 1932. Extremists in both wings of the Democratic Party are thus actively lined up against the New Deal. One result may be to solidify Mr. Roosevelt's strength among independent voters of moderate views. Even so, the fruits of the Detroit conference are not likely to be relished by Mr. Farley.

Another Plane Crash.

The high confidence in air travel stirred by the regularity of service on numerous transport lines is rudely jolted by the crash of an airliner near St. Louis in which eight persons were killed. Though the cause of the accident has not yet been determined, it is reasonably certain that the fault lay either with the crew or the plane itself and not with the directional apparatus on the ground as has been the case in other air tragedies recently. This, of course, is small comfort.

Some solace can be found by all except families and friends of the dead in the reflection that aviation will doubtless be advanced in some measure by the crash. At least, that has been the effect of other air accidents. In grim fact, it is commonly agreed that the extraordinary success of lighter-than-air craft today, best typified by the Hindenburg's performances, is founded mainly on the wrecks of hundreds of earlier dirigibles, manned largely by Germans. Many more airplanes than dirigibles have been built and wrecked. But a longer period of development must be expected for heavier-than-air machines for the simple reason that they are supported in the air by only mechanical devices.

Regardless of handicaps, however, the airplane must ultimately win out. Its tremendous improvement in the less than 35 years since the Wright brothers first flew justifies such a conclusion. But there can be no excuse for relaxing the fight against accidents. The battle is far from over; only 16 round trips have been dared on the transpacific service since it was opened last November; the St. Louis crash is the third of major proportions in this country during the current year. Greater and greater efforts must be put forth by engineers and pilots alike in the last desperate struggle with the forces of gravity.

The Growing Crisis in Spain.

Although four of the six governments approached by France have approved in principle the plan to prevent the Spanish civil war from developing into an international conflict, the prospect for such an agreement appears to be remote.

Great Britain, Belgium and Russia are now definitely on record in favor of the French suggestion. But, in Russia's case, the curious spectacle is presented of the government not letting its right hand know what its left hand is doing. Officially the Soviet regime is maintaining an attitude of strict neutrality as between the contending elements in Spain. At the same time it is doing nothing to prevent the trade unions from soliciting funds for the Spanish Left Front. Since nothing can be done in the land of the Soviets without the consent of the government, this is being interpreted, particularly in Italy and Germany, as a sign that Russia is already intervening in Spain on the side of the anti-Fascists.

Russia's attitude and the fact that the French government, while scrupulously abstaining from selling arms and munitions to either side in Spain is nevertheless permitting its citizens to join the Spanish Loyalists, has provided Italy with a pretext to hedge in its reply to the French note. While approving the French plan in principle, Mussolini demands further clarification of its meaning. In particular, he asks whether such a neutrality agreement as is proposed would be binding on citizens as well as governments of the signatory powers.

In the face of existing circumstances, with sympathy for one side or the other in Spain splitting Europe into two camps, this point raised by Italy is well taken. But this does not destroy the suspicion that, even if no pretext for inaction were available, Italy would be loath to tie its hands so far as the Spanish struggle is concerned. The tenor of press comment in Italy, where the newspapers can print only what the government permits, clearly indicates that the Fascist dictatorship openly identifies its interests with the Spanish rebels and is eager by hook or by crook to prevent the establishment in Spain of an ultra-radical, virulently anti-Fascist regime.

While the Italian stand may have the effect of delaying execution of the French plan indefinitely, the German stand may accelerate the already grave tendency toward intervention in Spain.

In a strong note addressed to the Madrid and Barcelona governments Germany has protested the killing of four German citizens near Barcelona and has demanded indemnification for the families of the victims. That Germany is well within its rights in taking such a stand cannot be doubted. Nevertheless, it is a distinctly ominous circumstance that, at the same time, the Berlin government has not made reply to Paris and has, instead, ordered its warships to Spanish Mediterranean ports.

In view of the open sympathies shown the Spanish rebels at Ceuta by German naval officers such action has distinctly dangerous possibilities. With German ships in the line of fire the Spanish fleet, largely loyal to the Madrid government, would be prevented from aiding Loyalists in eastern ports in the event of new attempts by rebels to seize the port cities. This would constitute intervention in very drastic form. Thus the Spanish situation as an international problem grows more menacing with each passing day.

Anti-Climax.

The appointment of Elwood Seal as corporation counsel was a matter for general congratulation. So well did his record qualify him for the position that it was assumed that the Commissioners had looked on his several political recommendations as quite secondary considerations. No doubt that assumption is correct, but Mr. Seal's deportment on assuming office seriously detracts from the satisfaction his appointment aroused. One of his first moves has been to announce the choice of two assistants, selected prior to his own appointment, because they were sponsored by his political backers. In short, Mr. Seal appears to have made a political deal to facilitate his own promotion.

Disappointment inevitably accompanies this realization. Quite probably, Mr. Seal's two appointees are competent enough. But the principle of merit has been subordinated to political influence. And if there is one office in all Washington where merit should rule and politics be forgotten, it is that of the city's chief legal adviser.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Seal has now paid all his political debts and that from now on his sole concern will be the public welfare.

Moving Windward.

In their efforts to put complete tickets in the field in at least some of the key States the Union Party, whose candidate is Representative Lemke, is apparently not above robbing the political graveyard.

In Illinois, for instance, that party's candidate for governor is none other than William Hale Thompson. For the benefit of members of the younger generation it is necessary to explain that during his all-too-long tenure in office Blustering Bill carried on a running, if one-sided war, with the late King George V of Great Britain.

If the British monarch was at all aware of the antics of the mayor of this Nation's second city he never admitted it. Apparently he was too busy looking after the affairs of the British Empire even to consider conversion of the Windy City—never better named than during the Thompson regime—into a colony of the crown. Big Bill could claim with impunity that he had kept Chicago within the United States. But he apparently could not save it from scandal and bankruptcy; so the voters, belatedly but none the less effectively, consigned him to the limbo he so richly deserved.

It is not at all likely that the ghoulish practices of the Union Party will lead in any sense to the political resurrection of Thompson. His addition to the ranks of the crackpots, demagogues and wind-raisers who make up the leadership of this motley aggregation is but another patch on the crazy quilt woven by the good doctor from California, the political padre from Michigan and the parson from Louisiana.

Propaganda Versus Facts.

The WPA, already a storm center of political controversy, has made itself a shining target for the attacks of the Republican National Committee by arranging for the regular release of newsreels depicting its activities.

It is by no means easy to determine the boundaries between bona fide information services designed to acquaint the American people with the work of their Government and propaganda intended to catch the popular fancy by persuasive appeals. The motion picture is a most effective medium for either kind of publicity. As a present day substitute for dry reports it may bring much useful information to people not reached by the usual avenues of official communication. On the other hand, it can easily be employed to give a distorted view of the actual situation. Under present conditions, WPA's recourse to the newsreel certainly creates a suspicion that the presentation will not be severely impartial.

However, open appeals to the public are less to be feared than insidious types of propaganda carried on by Government press agents, special writers, paid spokesmen and research assistants under the guise of official reporting. Publicity departments are not a new development in the Government service, to be sure, but they have experienced an abnormally rapid growth under the present Administration.

The vast extent and the complicated character of such New Deal agencies as the WPA, the AAA and the newly established Social Security Board, for example, call for a large amount of explanation in establishing contacts with the public. A considerable force is needed to provide the required information and keep the press informed of current developments. Criticism arises only when the publicity man becomes a special pleader in disguise.

Those who have had opportunity to examine even a small part of the vast current outpouring of Government reports—regular and special—know that many agencies do a fine job of supplying unbiased data on matters of great importance. But it is also true that a good many news items are colored to suit the purposes of the Government officials responsible for their preparation. In recent years, this propaganda spirit has even tainted official documents formerly severely impersonal in tone and devoted primarily to statements of fact.

Propaganda, however widespread and well paid, is no guarantee of news coverage. Indeed, the American people have been given very scanty information about the operations of many new emergency agencies of which they are entitled to demand an accounting. Under the best of conditions, the expanding scope and changing character of Federal activities will require extensive publicity organizations. We should insist that these agencies remain impartial in stating the facts and careful of the taxpayers' money.

A Swing To The Left?

Even the Greeks could not have found a better word for it. Hereafter, those hugger-mugger didoes cut on the ballroom floor will be known as the "swing dance." The name was officially applied this week at the fifty-third annual convention of the Dancing Masters of America in New York City. Following in the wake of "swing" music, the steps are a cross between a fox trot, a flea hop and an adagio. Their purpose is to keep the right foot from knowing what the left foot is doing.

Not so long ago, when girls wore puffs and bronze slippers, the Vernon Castles had the floor with their Castle Walk. A sort of hop-skip, its worst handicap was in turning, when the dancers were obliged to round corners like an aeroplane banking a turn. The tango was graceful but its proper execution required a ten-acre field rather than a crowded ballroom. The late Maurice frowned on the shimmy and other unesthetic steps. This, however, did not keep the Black Bottom from becoming a fad at collegiate and country club turnouts.

The style of the new "swing dance" is said to be "pliable enough to encompass almost any kind of step." But there's no telling how long it will last. For it was only four years ago that these dancing masters were saying the same thing about a little number called "NIRA."

"A grasshopper can't jump unless the temperature is 62 degrees Fahrenheit or hotter," declares a biologist. Something ought to be done about this.

"A statement isn't necessarily true because it sounds reasonable," asserts an editor. This sounds reasonable.

Christianity Forgotten.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Screaming headlines have me jumping around more than Washington traffic. It is bad enough to have a corps of uniformed messengers pedal calmly and fiendishly through a red light to scatter pedestrians who are inflicted with enough autos without the added Bermuda menace, but to see the daily atrocities parading across the page is enough to produce a race of isolated flag-pole sitters, who would be able to meditate away from newsprint.

Granted that a few atrocities are taking place in Spain; is it asking too much to remember when Francesco Ferrer was shot beneath the walls of the fortress of Montjuich? Is it asking too much to remember a time when Spain was a land of song, of beauty and culture? Have we forgotten that the first Christian order after the banishment of the Moors closed the public baths, of which there were 270 in Cordova alone?

Where, in all this land torn now by civil war, is there an indication of the Christianity of the poor, "pale socialist of Galilee?" May we not ask as Swinburne did:

"Was it for this—that men should make
Thy name a fetter on men's necks,
Poor men made poorer for thy sake,
And women withered out of sex?
Was it for this—that slaves should be—
Thy word was passed to set men free?"

The Old Mason House

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If you are unfamiliar with the most lovely tableau on the outskirts of Washington, then I beg you to make to it a short excursion in the hope that you may say a word in its defense.

I refer to the beautiful ruins of the old Mason house on the island, purchased for a bird sanctuary in memory of Theodore Roosevelt.

The Masons were a distinguished family in the early history of Washington. The island was used, certainly by 1790, as an agricultural experiment station. The crumbling walls of the Mason house, covered with vines and half hidden by trees and shrubs, make an old world picture of which this country is certainly in need. Mr. Roosevelt would be of this opinion because he loved beauty and tradition.

These walls, I am informed, are to be razed to the ground and thrown away, for whose pleasure I cannot imagine unless it is desired to make the island precisely like every other sanctuary and throw over it a mantle of uniformity unfortunately so dear to bureaus.

"Unfortunate Advice."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The ancient fiction that the king can do no wrong is responsible even today for the submissive acceptance of much that is wrong from the Government at Washington. In like manner a vast number of people take the words of a spokesman for the church as ex cathedra gospel truth. This makes it particularly unfortunate that a well-known priest should advise his followers that if his choice for the Presidency is not elected, then it might be well that farm loans should be repudiated.

This mandate shows that the church and ethical principles do not always go together. The money owing by farmers was loaned in good faith by banks, life insurance companies and others. And these obligations should be fulfilled as a matter of honor in spite of the hard conditions of the business depression. HENRY WARE ALLEN.

Dogs In The City.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Can't we have a rest from dog stories, especially on the front page? Do we have to stand numerous accounts relating how Mrs. John Public pleaded with tears in her eyes for the court to spare the life of her mongrel pup Prince, who so obligingly helped to drown little Johnny Jones by jumping on him in the water?

Dogs have a place in human life, that is true, but their place is in the country, or where they have a chance to run around and space to run in. They do not have a place in the crowded cities, keeping people awake who need their sleep. Neither should they be kept where they can be eternally jumping on and barking at everyone who passes. Of all the city noises, none can be as irritating as the whining and yelping of some dog who will persist at barking at every shadow, or at the scent of every wandering cat.

The new poundmaster has an excellent idea. He wishes to fill the city with mongrels for everyone who imagines that he or she needs a dog. Evidently he cares nothing for the fact that these dogs will help mightily to keep the population, already worn to the breaking point by the heat, from obtaining much needed sleep. I, for one, say away with dogs, particularly from the crowded areas of the cities. Perhaps the 8:30 a. m. dog walkers might not agree with me. If they could only see themselves as others see them! W. E. D.
Washington, Aug. 6.

A New Question.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A new question introduces itself subtley. Does Roosevelt really want to be re-elected? He has created the deluge, and does this eminent "sailor" along the New England coast care to dominate the engulfing waves of America's shipwreck? After him, the mess!

This may explain the nonchalance with which he views the possibility of meeting the situation and of paying the piper.

No such bleak outlook confronts the Jim Farleys of the Administration. It is up to them to stand the gaff. Even so "tender-hearted" and so "sympathetic" a man as Franklin D. Roosevelt may view this situation without "bursting into tears."

At all events, his general demeanor indicates that he is building up an alibi to satisfy the faithful and servile servitors.

ROWLAND B. MAHANY.
Washington, Aug. 5.

One Political View.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Gov. Landon is a perfect foil to President Roosevelt in his acute, conservative mind, his liberal, tolerant, law-abiding spirit and his regard for his pledged word.

That Providence, which proverbially "protects children, drunkards, fools and the United States of America" offers us an opportunity, next November, to replace the recklessly gay Utopian adventurer now at the Nation's helm with a strong, successful Chief Executive.

In no private business, large or small, would owners or employes, seeing both men side by side, comparing their public and private careers, hesitate a minute in choosing Mr. Landon over Mr. Roosevelt as manager. FRANK PUTNAM.
Chicago, Ill., Aug. 5.

Particeps Criminis.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As I understand, the present facts are that the "red and pink Communists" Father Coughlin mentioned and Frankfurter himself are all in Europe; and why? Which or what side are they taking?

I have always understood that one's presence at a riot or any unlawful mob affair made one prima facie particeps criminis. It seems to me they have messed us up bad enough already without messing us up with Europe. AMERICAN.

Reactions To Mr. Ickes' Address.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please allow me space for a reply to the letter of P. H. James printed in The Post of August 6. I also listened to the Secretary of the Interior's radio speech, and it seems to me that your correspondent's assertion of "personal mud" being thrown by Mr. Ickes at the Republican candidate is wholly unwarranted. Mr. James evidently failed to detect the sharpness of the Secretary's ironical remarks.

I cannot quite see how the place of a man's birth should affect his political views, but just to keep the record straight, Harold L. Ickes was born in Blair County, Pa., according to "Who's Who in America," and not at Winnetka, as in the above-mentioned letter. Your Republican correspondent states the Cabinet member was born "with a gold spoon in his mouth." I agree that good breeding is Mr. Ickes' birthright, and the fact that for many years he was in close contact with the "dear, downtrodden peepul" through his friendship with the late Jane Addams, of Hull House, should admirably qualify him to champion the natural and legal rights of the common people against the acquired privileges of the oligarchy that nominated Landon as the G. O. P. (Greed-Orthodoxy-Petroleum) standard bearer.

Your correspondent is disturbed because Mr. Ickes, although technically a Republican, deserted his party to support Roosevelt in the last Presidential election. So did millions of his fellow citizens. The Secretary was in the Bull Moose camp in 1912, therefore party regularity does not warp his judgment.

Your correspondent charges Mr. Ickes with being ungrateful because of Gov. Landon's co-operation with him in the matter of oil control legislation, but I fail to see the reason for any gratitude, as it is well known that Mr. Landon had no axe to grind.

In conclusion, let us trust the common people of America in the coming election. Only by returning the Administration to power for another term can they free themselves more completely from economic slavery.

GUY d'AULBY.
Washington, Aug. 6.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The only statement in Mr. James' commendable letter with which I do not agree is the following: "Mr. Ickes born with a gold spoon in his mouth." I rather think it was his thumb. K. G. GRACE.
Washington, Aug. 6.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Another New Deal lament is in the bag—the one put on the air by Secretary Ickes Monday night, in which he indulged in much hair splitting to convince the regimented majority of the desirability of F. D. R. as Commissar of the Centralized U. S.

He gave a diverting half-hour comedy with plenty of laughs—some in the wrong places—but at that it was a more refined presentation of the same stuff that featured the unlamented Philadelphia puppet show. He even, by the overuse of virulent sarcasm, put across, inadventently, of course, a pretty fair picture of Landon's sincerity and honesty.

It is possible Mr. Ickes smarts at the oil industry's failure to beg him to step in as arbiter, umpire or dictator during its overproduction troubles two years ago. A comeback that must rankle because accomplished without the imposition of a single New Deal nostrum or "we planned it." E. G. BARR.

The Post Impressionist

"Rendered Into English."

Post Office, Saturday.

TURNING—for a change: for a momentary change—from the fleshpots of Egypt to the empyrean well of literature, Judge Joseph Danzinger asks your columnist:

"Haven't you often wondered why publishers, supposedly shrewd businessmen, put out so many bad translations of good books?"

Haven't we?

Can it be that the Judge has not read each and every one of the columns published by the Post-Impressionist?

Scarcely a year has elapsed since the Post-Impressionist wondered (in type) about just this topic which His Honor now so adroitly approaches—both wondered and wandered about the subject. And then the military attache of the Jugoslavian Legation sent us an excellent column on the same theme.

However, it's an inexhaustible subject. So we'll let the Judge have a bit of his desired say.

It seems that, having recently seen a cinema revival of "Grand Hotel," he picked up a translation of the novel—that certain phrases therein jarred his memory—that he then turned to the German original.

"The value of a sensational story," says he, "is beside the point. If it is worth while to pay wages to typographers and spend money for printer's ink and binding, isn't it worth while to have a competent translation as well?"

He doesn't underestimate the difficulties "in rendering an author's thoughts into an alien tongue. The translator must not only know both languages: he must think simultaneously—in both, and assimilate the spirit of the original." Yet it can be done. It has been—in a few instances. Why, then, not in the majority—in all?

"This Viki Baum book," the Judge assumes, "was translated by an Englishman, I take it, for, where there are metaphorical allusions to money, he speaks of pence and farthings. Now, as a rule, on the rare occasions when Englishmen do master an alien language, they do it more thoroughly than we Americans do. But the translator of 'Grand Hotel' is an exception.

"'This is no place to start a scandal in,' says one character—in delightful Pennsylvania-Dutch. What she really said was: 'This is no place to make a scene.' In German 'Skandal' is commonly used to imply a sensational occurrence—its use in the English sense of 'scandal' is far less frequent.

"And then Viki's translator renders 'Glieder' as 'joints' in the British sense of a joint of mutton, not an articulation, whereas 'Glieder' is a figurative expression for limbs, and very commonly used. I'm reminded of the German translator of Kipling's 'Naulaka,' who thought 'when you monkey with a buzz-saw,' meant 'when a monkey handles a buzz-saw.'

"Good translations are so uncommon that they stand in the memory like monuments. Compare the King James version of the Bible—which I fear will never be equaled by modernized versions—with Luther's or the French version, if you want to realize excellence. Next I'd rate the standard German translation of Shakespeare, so faithful that it accounts for Shakespeare's popularity on the modern German stage.

"German translations of Russian literature are so superior to ours; they come far closer to the spirit of the original. That may be because German syntax is nearer to Russian than is English.

"However," concludes the Judge, "no difficulties are an excuse for the publication of translations which desecrate our native tongue and are, at the same time, shamefully unfair to the author. It is the carelessness of publisher that is to be blamed: the publisher who permits hacks, having an indifferent knowledge of both the concerned languages, to try to interpret a writer—and so make a mess of him . . ."

Well, though it is sadly possible that the Judge may not have read our essays on translation—and though it is lamentably probable that, having read them, he forgot them—there is no need of reminding the rest of you column-readers (you really loyal souls) that the Post-Impressionist is in thorough accord with His Honor's opinion of true translation as a fine art. Yet, when he comes to announcing the causes of poor translation, our conscience compels us to dissent from his conclusions.

Emerson thought the apt quotation of a good line was the next best thing to originating a good line; we say that a perfect translation of a good book is the next best thing to its composition—and that it is rare because it requires something close akin to a contradiction in terms. It requires, not alone a genius, but a modest genius—a genius willing to sink his individuality.

As for the publishers: Isn't it notorious that publishers never read books? If they don't, then, know any classics in any tongue, how can you expect them to recognize as bad even the worst of translations into the tongue which they fondly believe to be their own?

—Reginald Wright Kauffman.

Training Rules.

I would not go so far as to argue that champagne, cigarettes and late hours are the ideal regimen for an athlete in training for championship competition, but, nevertheless, a good deal of nonsense has been preached and practiced by members of what might be called the Y. M. C. A. school of physical training. This is a school which makes a crusade of sport and attempts to apply the same austere rules of conduct and diet to all players regardless of variations of temperament and appetite. It assumes that the athletes are children, even though they have passed the age of 21, and creates false points of honor to restrict their conduct in a manner which is irksome to many young men and women of spirit.

Incidentally, women in recent years have been encouraged to take part in certain lines of sport which are none of their business, such as running, hurdling and tossing the discus. Biology is against them from the start, and that is why the big international competitions have thrown into prominence a number of female blacksmiths, including two European competitors whose sex was ambiguous.

• • • •

We had a case a few years ago of a pious and opinionated old gentleman—half preacher and half coach—who denounced a football player for whistling in the locker room before a game and told him he ought to be praying instead. The suggestion was that he ought to be on his knees asking God to help his team win the football game, which to many people seemed rather unsporting, because, after all, the rules of the conference forbade the introduction of ringers, and God was not named in the roster which had been handed to the opposing team.

There was a great scandal at Michigan one year because a star football man ate a piece of pie, and in another case a boy was ordered for treason to himself, his college and his team for eating pie a la mode when he had been authorized to have one dish of ice cream, but without any pie under it. This one took his disgrace to heart and moped for several weeks as the coach watched his spiritual sufferings out of the corner of his eye. Finally, by delicate timing, just as the traitor was about to join the Foreign Legion or become an abandoned pie drunkard, the coach relented, restored him to duty and saved his soul.

The truth is that many traitors are ordinary rubbers who have read the trade literature about proteins, calories and vitamins and babble a jargon which they do not understand themselves. Some of them, given charge of a few ounces of iodine, some scissors and bandages and a rubbing table, imagine themselves to be doctors and the little liniment room off the gymnasium an operating theater. There have been cases in which such men, no better qualified than barbers, have given injections and even administered ether.

Physical training and the application of something which the trade calls psychology invade the mental and spiritual realms in the effort to bring the players up to their big contests at the highest pitch. They get pep talks and are placed under the pressure of mysterious moods and attitudes assumed by their superiors to create anxiety in their hearts and keep them fighting hard for their positions on the team. After they have passed out of competition they are taken into the confidence of the old medicine men who worked on them in their playing days, and then, of course, they realize that their fears were largely artificial. A graduated player may then stand around at a stag social evening with the old coach, bumping glasses and mingling the smoke of cigarettes—a free grown man happy in the knowledge that he is not going straight to hell for his dissolute ways, after all.

I am not convinced that either tobacco or alcohol is actually good for an athlete in training, although I would be inclined to lean a little toward champagne as a mental and spiritual laxative. However, a few cigarettes cannot appreciably harm a player in good shape, and the horror of smoking in our athletic community is mostly prejudice and superstition. The professional ex-collegiate football players plainly excel the varsity men, but the pros may be seen smoking in the dressing rooms between halves under the eyes of the coach, who may be smoking himself.

There is no great mystery about training and condition, and the rules of conduct, within liberal limitations, should be left to the individual. After all, he is the one who is playing the game, not the alumni, the public or some body of fussy athletic has-beens with political leanings known as the committee.

$1,117 Item for Liquor In Bill for City Event

Providence, R. I., Aug. 7 (AP).—The Providence board of aldermen had before it today itemized bills contracted by members of the Providence Tercentenary Committee, which purported to show that, of a bill of $2,584.85 submitted by a Providence Tercentennary committee, $1,117.25 was for champagne, wines, whiskies and beers.

The $1,117.25 figure did not include such tippling accessories as charged water, ginger ale, lemons and so forth.

There was one item of 15 cents for aspirin.

68 Reported Drowned.

Taihoku, Formosa, Aug. 7 (AP).—Sixty-eight Japanese seamen were believed drowned off the Pratas Island today during the typhoon which wrecked nine vessels. A Japanese destroyer was ordered to the scene for rescue work.

Cobden's Ideal

Genevan Expert Sees Only Hope For World Peace In Return To English Scholar's Philosophy Of Economic Co-operation.

"The Common Menace of Economic and Military Armaments" was the title of the eighth Richard Cobden lecture given in London in May, extracts from which follow. Prof. Rappard is vice-rector of Geneva University and director of the Graduate Institute of International Studies at Geneva. He has represented Switzerland at the Assembly of the League of Nations and is a member of the Permanent Mandates Commission.

By Prof. William E. Rappard.

BY ECONOMIC armaments we mean all those legislative and administrative devices intended to restrict imports and to develop domestic production with a view to reducing international interdependence. Economic armaments are the tools of economic nationalism. As for military armaments, they consist in the weapons by which a nation hopes to impose its will on its neighbors or to resist aggression from without. They are, therefore, also nationally defensive and offensive and internationally self-neutralizing.

It is assuredly unnecessary in these times, when almost every day brings from almost every country tidings of new trade restrictions and of increased armaments, to quote any statistics to illustrate the alarming progress of both. When the figures relating to the value of international trade show a reduction of over 60 per cent in the course of the last five years, and when the true and full figures relating to expenditure on national defense, so-called, if such figures were available, would doubtless show at least an equivalent increase, the situation may indeed be described as critical.

Economic armaments, if persisted in, can make the states still less interdependent, still less prosperous, and still more antagonistic to each other. But they can contribute neither to the welfare of the individual, nor to the stability of the international community, nor even to the security of the national state. Military armaments, if continuously developed, will absorb an ever-increasing part of the productive energies of mankind, will still further exasperate existing international suspicion, jealousy, and fear, and will necessarily lead to a final collapse of our civilization. Is there, then, no hope of escape from the tragic consequences of our present aberrations?

Cobden's World Bore Resemblances To Today's.

RICHARD COBDEN was in his day, although under far less menacing circumstances, faced with essentially the same problem. The dual remedy he suggested may be summarized in the formula: political isolation and economic co-operation. The course pursued by mankind since his death has been the exact opposite. It may be defined as that of political co-operation and economic isolation.

Does it necessarily follow that his advice was entirely sound, or rather that it should be followed today without any qualifications? We believe not.

Armaments he constantly denounced as a curse and as a peril. All intervention, diplomatic and military, in foreign conflicts, were it even to right wrongs, to prevent injustice, or to promote the freedom of other peoples, he deliberately and repeatedly deprecated. He deprecated it as usually unjustified, as almost necessarily ineffective, and as always prejudicial to peace.

As a cure for war he recommended, besides free trade, international arbitration treaties and the example of non-intervention. For the rest he relied on public opinion and on Divine Providence.

As for the conception of an international community, organized for the enforced settlement of disputes between states and for the collective repression of aggression, although not foreign to his mind, it formed no part of his political philosophy. Indeed his expressed repudiation of such a conception obliges the historian to count him, if not among the foes of the ideals of a League of Nations, at least among the skeptics.

Defensive Isolationism Has Lost Its Logic In 1936.

SO MUCH for Cobden. Since his day great changes have taken place. The world has grown much smaller, the British people more universally pacific, perhaps, but unfortunately much more vulnerable to attack from without, thanks to the progress of the technique of destruction, as List has already prophetically observed. Cobden's defensive isolationism would therefore today seem even less adequate as a protection against war than it proved in his times.

What then? Free trade has gone, a victim of the last war, and, largely with a view to the next, economic nationalism has been set up in its place. But, whereas, free trade was looked upon by its friends as a means of clearing the international atmosphere, economic nationalism is rather in the nature of a lightning rod. Far from repelling, it attracts the fire from the skies above and is destined only to protect each state against the devastation of the anticipated storms. As a means of warding off storms, the ideals of collective security have replaced those of non-intervention in the hopes of the pacifically minded. But the principles of collective security in their turn are challenged today. The most recent experience, which may not unfairly be cited in vindication of Cobden's policy of non-intervention, has come to make those principles seem ineffective, if applied with caution and moderation, and disastrous for peace, if made effective.

What then? We repeat. Our inquiry into the origins and relations of economic and military armaments has shown us the complexity and the difficulties of the problem. Economic and military armaments, the fruits of nationalism, we have seen, tend to generate the very wars against whose consequences they are to protect their victims. War breeds nationalism and imposes armaments even on those whom it spares that infection. And nationalism and armaments in their turn breed war. Is there then no escape from this labyrinth of despair?

Three Great Powers Today Defy Peace.

THE FUNDAMENTAL fact underlying the international situation today is the presence in office, in at least three great powers, of professedly and defiantly nationalistic governments.

That the three governments in question are imbued with the true spirit of nationalism, no one, and their authorized spokesmen less than anyone, will deny. As we have seen, nationalism implies the subordination of both the individual and of the international community to the national state. The subordination of the individual is manifested and achieved within, through the denial of constitutional liberty and the establishment of dictatorships. The subordination of the international community is manifested and achieved without, by contempt for and revolt against the League of Nations and its ideals of collective security.

Nor can anyone assert, and again the authorized spokesmen of the nationalistic states less than anyone else, that their political philosophy is shared, even if in other forms, by all other nations or at least by all other great powers. The anti-liberal, anti-individualistic, and anti-internationalist dictatorships have been set up and are being administered in conscious and deliberate reaction against the liberal, democratic, and international tendencies prevailing elsewhere in the western world.

Now as long as these three great powers, to say nothing of their minor imitators, devote their main energies to educational, moral, economic, and military preparations for war and openly profess designs incompatible with the security of their neighbors, is it not self-evident that there can be neither military nor economic disarmament elsewhere in the world?

The problem of international peace thus resolves itself primarily into a problem of national ideals and national conversions. Can and will the nations, who are today worshiping the idols of aggressive nationalism, be led to adopt a more humane and a less exclusive creed? If so, the pacific organization of mankind should not be a task beyond the powers of wise statesmanship. If not, then peace can be maintained only by the closest co-operation between all those states which, while respecting their own as well as their neighbors' statehood, still believe in the legitimate rights of the individual and in the supreme rights of mankind.

Pending the necessary federation of the peoples of the world, the only hope of humanity therefore lies in a return to the Cobdenite ideals of individual freedom within each nation, and of economic co-operation, peace, and goodwill among all nations.

Imaginary Interviews.

(The Stock Market Lamb Who Was Cured in 1929.)

Q.—What are you doing with your nose so close to those stock market tables?

A.—Boy, did you see what they did today! I could have bought Chrysler at 86 only six weeks ago, a friend urged me to buy Westinghouse when it was 30 points lower, I got Steel common at 31, there's a straight tip out on . . .

Q.—I thought you learned your lesson back in 1929.

A.—Why bring that up? Look! General Motors is good for $100, they tell me Case will hit $300 again, my barber says . . .

A.—What big crash? Get this: Anybody who bought Youngstown Steel at 44 two months ago would have doubled his money; Allied Chemical is only just starting, there's to be a split-up in! . . .

Q.—Didn't I hear you say about seven years ago that you were through with the stock market, that you'd never risk a dime in it again and that . . .

A.—Don't be a killjoy. Look! A friend of mine who is close to Morgan says A. T. & T. will go through its old 1928 high. I know a man who bought 5,000 shares of Can yesterday for a quick profit and . . .

• • • • •

Q.—Aren't you the egg who so loudly bellowed that the stock market was no place for the little fellow?

A.—Yes, but I've put on seven pounds since then and my arch supporters make me an inch taller. Hey! If you wanna make yourself some nice money get aboard Johns Manville, Coco-Cola, International Harvester, Montgomery-Ward.

Q.—Didn't you say in 1929 that you would never take another tip as long as you lived?

A.—Yes, but I felt so sick then I didn't expect to live long. Continental is a good buy right now, all the oils will do better and the railroads are due for a rise within . . .

• • • •

Q.—Am I wrong in my recollection that you once announced at the top of your voice that from then on you would be satisfied with a modest income and small savings?

A.—Can I help it if my voice changes? Look! My broker says there's to be a split-up in Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Greyhound bus, Great Northern, Union Carbide and Crown Cork. On margin I can get myself some . . .

Q.—What! Do you mean to say you're buying stocks on margin again?

A.—Don't shout; I can hear you. Lissen, 500 times 37 is $33,500. Now with that $16,000 which the wife got from her uncle's insurance . . .

Q.—Your wife! Why, my good man, I remember distinctly how she said if you ever bought another stock she'd leave you. What will she say about you using her $16,000?

A.—Hell! She's been crabbing me all year for not getting in earlier!

Drought Talk

erate with the Federal Government in any relief measures.

"My work as Governor of Kansas comes ahead of anything else I am doing," he was quoted as saying.

The corn-belt conference in which Landon would figure probably will take place in Iowa. Tentative plans of the President call for a prior conference with Governors of North and South Dakota, Wyoming and Montana, in the dust bowl area. He is expected to proceed thence to Minnesota, for a talk with Gov. Floyd B. Olson; to Wisconsin, for conferences with the La Follettes, and later to Iowa for the corn-belt talk in which Landon is expected to participate. On his way back East he will meet with the Governors of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Kentucky. It was stressed that the conferences would be on the drought situation and have no political significance. The President said that when he gets back to Washington he should be in a position to give the country a report on the full drought picture, but whether this would take the form of a radio address, he did not say.

Program to Be Topic.

The President is expected to discuss with the Western Governors a long-range program of Federal-State co-operation in ameliorating the effects of the drought, to be guided by the report of the special drought committee. More immediate aids also will be taked over, as well as the corn and wheat status, means of feeding livestock, seed distribution, the mortgage debt and work on check dams and soil erosion. Yesterday he named Secretary of Agriculture Wallace a member of the Great Plains drought committee with which he will confer in the West.

The President expects to leave for Washington tomorrow night, and stay here through Thursday, when he will depart on a tour through sections of Pennsylvania and southern New York hit by March floods.

At the Agriculture Department yesterday it was announced that 862 counties in 21 States have been designated as "drought counties" as a guide to emergency agencies in administering relief. The list reached this total yesterday after 21 Wisconsin counties had been added.

Cattle purchasing was resumed by the Government as a relief measure, 475 additional head being ordered purchased at St. Paul and Fargo markets.

It was said that John C. Page, acting commissioner of reclamation, will present results of the special irrigation study to the President at the Great Plains drought committee conference in Rapid City, S. Dak.

From Chicago yesterday came Board of Trade figures that farmers have taken almost $100,000,000 out of the grain markets since July 1. It was estimated that farmers had benefited by almost $10,000,000 of this amount because of wheat prices catapulted by the drought.

not a Republican. I do not propose to condone the mistakes of the Republican Party and I am not changing my allegiance to the fundamental principles which have always been expressed heretofore by the Democratic label."

He said he respected Mr. Roosevelt's desire "to create a more abundant life," but differed with him on the methods "by which the welfare of the people may be successfully promoted." He added:

"I believe that he has departed from the doctrines of the Democratic Party, but I give him credit because he departed from them because he believed them no longer effective."

Ely predicted that Landon would "carry every New England State."

31 Attend From 18 States.

There were 31 men from 18 States in attendance when former Senator Reed, the temporary chairman, called the conference to order.

Missing was former Gov. William A. Comstock of Michigan, who had accepted an invitation, but wired from his home today that many of his friends and supporters had persuaded him not to attend because "of the possible effect on the Michigan local situation."

Comstock said his friends, including Edward J. Fry, chairman of the Democratic State central committee, and others prominent in the party's organization in Michigan "seemed put out by my promise to attend."

"So, while I do not believe my being there would have been as important as they seem to think, I decided not to go," he said.

Alabama, Richard Hall Brown, Birmingham.

Georgia, Graham Wright, Rome.

Illinois, Henry W. Lackey, Chicago; Henry Carter, personal representative of George N. Peek.

Kentucky, Dr. Frank M. Stites, Louisville; W. W. Porter, Hopkinsville.

Michigan, James Schermerhorn, George B. Shaeffer, M. S. Harlan, Bernard A. Clark, all of Detroit, and Charles Lawson, Royal Oak.

Minnesota, S. H. Austin, Minneapolis.

New York, Bainbridge Colby and Henry Breckinridge.

Tennessee, Gus W. Dyer, Knoxville.

Virginia, J. R. A. Hobson, Richmond, and S. D. Timberlake, jr., Staunton.

Youths' Parade Assails Bathtubs and Schools

Springville, Utah, Aug. 7 (AP).—The children of this town of 3,000 noted with cold, critical eyes that their elders failed to provide a town celebration July 4, and took no action when other Utah cities celebrated Pioneer Day July 24.

Today, with no word to their parents, the young set ranging in age from 2 to 12 years assembled a "gigantic, mammoth, colossal, colorful parade depicting historical scenes."

They marched 14 blocks through town.

The band was a small boy with a drum—but there were floats, clowns, covered wagons and a beauty queen.

"Down With Bathtubs," "Keep the Schools Closed" and "Bigger and Better Fireworks Celebrations" were their slogans.

Hockaday, talking in a lazy drawl, told Thompson all about his arsenal of feathers and his crusade for peace.

"Man," he said, "I'll spread so many feathers around New York that it will take $100,000 to clean them up."

He said he planned a tour which he said would take him to Paris, London, Berlin and other capitals.

The "chief" boasted that he had been arrested 30 times.

"Wow," he cried, "I'm as crazy as a loon."

Hockaday said that the large Kansas sun flower painted on his feather bag had nothing to do with Gov. Alf Landon. He said that if Roosevelt were re-elected he would emblazon his bag with an "R."

While Hockaday was discoursing on peace, a patrol wagon drew up at headquarters to take him to Gallinger Hospital.

He was separated from the 5-foot bag in which he carried the feathers as the police led him away.

When Hockaday entered the War Department Building at 10 a. m. yesterday he looked not much different from many of the employes who had preceded him an hour earlier. He wore a business suit and, with his spectacles, appeared rather dignified.

The only thing that set him apart was the long bag containing his feathers.

He went to a lavatory. Off came his clothes—all of them. Then he slipped on his running trunks, his tennis slippers and his Indian bonnet, and stepped out into the corridor.

Assistant Secretary Woodring's office was across the corridor. Entering an anteroom, Hockaday glided past Mrs. Katie Buckingham, Woodring's secretary, and then in Woodring's office.

Having let out his peace cry and poured feathers into Woodring's lap, Hockaday began a tour of the office, scattering feathers over the floor. When Mrs. Buckingham tried to stop him, he threw his last handful of feathers at her, and was on his way.

He ran out of the building with two guards at his heels.

Bar Unit Assails New Deal

continue to act as a buffer between the citizens and the legislature in this age when extended Government intervention is inevitable."

Court Dispels Doubts.

"These doubts," the committee said, "have been emphatically dispelled by the Supreme Court of the United States. In unanimous decisions it has protected the citizen in the assertion of constitutional right against legislative enactment and has settled all questions both as to its willingness to continue that function and as to its own confidence in the ability to do so without imperiling its integrity."

Discussing New Deal legislation, the report said:

"One who would preserve our constitutional system must deplore the action of President Roosevelt in recommending that members of Congress set aside any doubts they might have about the validity of proposed legislation. If in this way an increasing burden is cast upon the court our traditional policy is bound to collapse."

The committee found, however, that the New Deal has not been infringing the political rights of the citizen in regard to freedom of religion, of the press, of assembly and of petition.

"The careless assertion that the policies and practices of the present national Administration either challenge or infringe these political rights of the citizen has no justification," the report said.

No Idea of Dictatorship.

The committee found that while there had been wide delegation of power to the Executive, there was no idea of substituting "some kind of dictatorship."

Under the heading "procedural rights," the committee majority found that the constitutional provision that the legislative branch must make the laws has been violated repeatedly by the delegation of legislative power "to a horde of administrative officials whose processes of law making have developed so many abuses that even the proponents of the general system of industrial control developed in the NRA felt relief when it was brought to a halt."

"Our experience with bureaucracy as exhibited in its most complete form in the NRA should be a lesson to be applied constantly as the inevitable proposals for various Government controls of the citizen come before Congress," the report said.

Discussing economic planning, the committee expressed the opinion that "no government which is subject to the impact of political pressures applied by groups with conflicting interests can plan; it can only compromise."

May Feel Confident.

Because of the divided decisions of the Supreme Court the committee expressed the feeling that "no student may now be confident in defining the constitutional limitations upon the control of business enterprise by the States."

"The history of America has been that of an enterprising people exploiting more successfully than any other the opportunities of economic freedom under the protection of constitutional guarantees," the committee said. "In the moment of the first serious assault by the Government upon that freedom those guarantees have lost their vitality. Perhaps they have disappeared. If so, there is no insurmountable obstacle to the effort of a majority to commit the country to a precarious adventure in planned economy."

Under the heading of "Detouring the Constitution," the committee found that "through the sophisticated exercise of the power to tax and the power to spend public funds, it is possible for the National Government to engage in activities and to accomplish ends which are quite inconsistent "with the country's traditional institutions."

The admonitions of the Supreme Court in the gold cases against assumption of extra-constitutional power fell upon deaf ears, the committee said.

Limitations Will Vanish.

"If the people become indifferent," it concluded, "and exhibit that indifference by the election of a National Government which seeks ways not to observe, but to avoid the limitations of the Constitution, these limitations will vanish. No court can then preserve the Constitution which the people themselves have deserted."

The report of the majority was signed by John Clark, of Cheyenne, Wyo.; Fred H. Davis, a Florida Supreme Court justice; George L. Buist, of Charleston, S. C., and Charles P. Taft, of Cincinnati, one of Gov. Alf M. Landon's campaign advisers.

The minority statement was signed by James G. McGowan, Mississippi Supreme Court justice; Fred L. Williams, former Missouri Supreme Court justice, and Kenneth Wynne, Connecticut Circuit Court judge.

Lift Operator Saves Life By Sliding Down Cable

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 7 (AP).—Maurice Reynolds, 30, elevator operator, did a four-story "slide for life" today down an elevator car power cable.

Reynolds toppled into the shaft from the eighth floor, where he was trying to repair his disabled car, but grasped the cable and hung on until he reached a loop which stopped his fall, still four stories above the bottom of the shaft.

Court Denies Secrecy For Barrymore Papers

Hollywood, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—John Barrymore, harried "great lover" of the screen, who is suing two of his former confidential aids for "personal papers" he charged they took from him, tonight lost in an effort to keep his documents private.

The Appellate Court denied the actor's petition to restrain the Superior Court, in which his multiple lawsuits are pending, from displaying the Barrymore documents.

Knox Will Tour 35 States, Give 70 Major Talks

Carries Campaign Into Indiana Tonight; Hagerstown on Schedule.

Chicago, Aug. 7 (AP).—Col. Frank Knox, of Chicago, Republican Vice Presidential nominee, announced today that the campaign tour on which he will set out tomorrow has been mapped tentatively to cover 35 States and include some 70 principal speeches.

Clarence J. Brown, who represents the Republican National Committee on the colonel's staff, said the itinerary was "the toughest, fightingest schedule ever laid out for a candidate."

Knox will speak tomorrow in Connersville, Ind., at a State-wide Republican rally launching the campaign of Raymond Springer, Republican candidate for Governor.

He will then proceed into West Virginia, Maryland, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Maine, Pennsylvania and Michigan, before starting a Western trip through Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Colorado, and return September 29 to attend the Michigan State Republican convention in Grand Rapids.

To Speak in Hagerstown.

From the Michigan convention, Brown said, Knox will move into the East again for the third phase of his campaign.

A detailed itinerary was announced, covering the first phase of his trip. Knox will leave Chicago tomorrow morning, it showed, and will attend a luncheon at the Columbia Club in Indianapolis before traveling to Connersville.

He will spend the week-end in Dayton, Ohio, with L. B. Rock, newspaper publisher.

He will spend August 10, 11 and 12 in White Sulphur Springs, Va., at work on the speeches he is to deliver later in the trip. On August 13 he will address the West Virginia State Republican convention in Huntington. He will then return to White Sulphur Springs until August 19, when he will make an address in Hagerstown, Md., before the annual meeting of the United Retail Merchants Association.

His subject, he said, will be "The New Deal's Effect Upon the Small Business Man."

On August 20 he will arrive at Manchester N. H., to spend a week at work on speeches in his summer home there. Then his campaign swings into faster tempo, and follows this itinerary:

Swings Into New England.

August 27—Address before the New England Republican rally, Hampton Beach, N. H.

August 28—Speech in Vermont at a place to be determined by the State committee.

August 31—Makes station stops in Massachusetts and Connecticut, and a night address in Waterbury, Conn.

September 1—Providence, R. I., for a rally and clambake in the afternoon and an address at night.

September 2—Tours Western Massachusetts, making a night address at a site to be selected by the State committee.

September 3-4—Tour of Maine, with night speeches probably at Bangor on the third and Portland on the fourth.

September 5—Makes afternoon address in Fogelsville, Pa., marking opening of the State Republican campaign.

September 6—En route.

September 7—Alma, Mich., to make his Labor Day address before a homecoming celebration in his honor at Alma College, Mich., his alma mater.

He then will begin the second phase of his stumping tour, his campaign train heading into the West.

'Darkhorse' Team Defeats Jacoby 4

Asbury Park, N. J., Aug. 7 (AP).—a major upset disturbed the knockout team of four championships held by the American Bridge League at Convention Hall today.

The favored foursome of the tourney, Oswald Jacoby, David Burnstine, Howard Schenken and B. Jay Becker, who were leading the 16 teams qualified for the knockout play, were eliminated by a pick up team who just managed to qualify after battling all morning with a team tied with them for last qualifying place. Mrs. Olive Peterson and Capt. Fred G. French, of Philadelphia, with Jack Wiseman and Herbert Goldsmith, of New York, managed to conquer the present holders of the masters' team title by the decisive margin of 930 points.

Richard L. Frey, Sydney Rusinow, Jean Mattheys and Benedict Jarmel, of New York, defeated Robert McPherran and John Crawford, of Philadelphia, who were teamed with Leroy Thurtell and William McIntyre, of Washington, D. C., by 1,130 points.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Lemon, Lewis Watson and Mrs. Martin West, of Washington, D. C., came through to victory winning over Dr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Lord and Hal Karp of Baltimore, with John C. Kunkel, of Harrisburg, Pa., by 1,390 points.

Atlantic Steamer Line Is Confiscated by Spain

Madrid, Aug. 7 (AP).—The Spanish government announced tonight confiscation of the Transatlantic Co. (known as the Spanish Line).

The move was understood to be an attempt to prevent rebels from using the line's ships to transport soldiers from Morocco.

Nationalization of flour mills and bakies and state supervision of mining and electric power industries also were announced.

Ruhland Sees Milk Imports If Price Rises

Issues Threat After He Confers With Social Welfare Group.

Dairy farms on the Eastern Shore of Maryland might be called upon to provide milk for Washington should the producers in this area carry out their threat to increase prices, Health Officer George C. Ruhland said yesterday following a conference with a social welfare delegation headed by Mrs. John Boyle, jr., president of the Consumers' Council.

"Of course, I have no desire to injure the local milk shed," Dr. Ruhland said, "and I wouldn't do anything to encourage importation unless it proves necessary to prevent an increase in the retail price.

"However, my investigators tell me that there are excellent dairy farms on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and that the milk could be brought into Washington via ferries and truck."

Has Launched Study.

The Health Department has just started its study of regulations governing milk sales in accordance with instructions of the District Commissioners to determine whether any unreasonable or superfluous requirements are responsible for high retail prices.

Following the conference, Mrs. Boyle said that the Consumers' Council itself will take the initiative in paving the way for importation of milk if the threatened price rise is effected.

12-Cent Milk on Market.

Meanwhile a 12-cent milk has been launched on the District market, it was learned yesterday.

It was reported by Consumers Counsel Donald Montgomery, of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, who has just concluded a survey to determine prices paid here by all classes of retail consumers.

The 12-cent product has 3.6 per cent butter fat, 4 per cent below that of grade A. The largest local dairy has it for sale generally, and another independent dairy sells 12-cent milk in stores.

The local milk shed has not been affected by the drought, Montgomery said last night.

SEC Reveals Pay Of Business Heads

By the Associated Press.

The securities commission yesterday threw open for public inspection reports disclosing compensation paid a group of corporate executives last year.

The information had been filed with the request that it be kept confidential, but the commission denied the applications.

Largest compensation in the group was reported for Frank Phillips, president and director of Phillips Petroleum Co., of Wilmington, Del., who received $92,316.66. John H. Kane and William N. Davis, vice presidents and directors of the same company, received $38,250 and $29,000, respectively.

William C. Dickerman, president of the American Locomotive Co., of New York, received $55,418.

Mrs. Carl H. Cotter Dies at Home Here

Mrs. Elizabeth F. Cotter, who came here more than four years ago when her husband, Commander Carl H. Cotter, civil engineer, U. S. N., stationed at the Navy Yard, was transferred to Washington for duty, died Thursday at her home in the Riverside Apartments.

She had been ill a long time. Commander and Mrs. Cotter had lived before in Washington, when the former was stationed here during the World War. Mrs. Cotter was a native of Dexter, Miss.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Alma Langworthy, of Detroit.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m., Monday, at the Fort Myer chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Divorce and Damages For $25,000 Sought

Alleging his wife had been untrue to him, Dwight R. Partello, a contractor, of 5127 Third street street northwest, yesterday in District Court filed suit for divorce, from Birdella R. Partello, and in a second suit sought $25,000 damages from Douglas A. White, who was alleged in the divorce suit to have been the "other man."

Staff, Facilities Of D. C. Airport Are Expanded

Two U. S. Agencies Get New Quarters; Line Moving Offices Here.

Expansion of the staff and facilities of the Washington Airport went forward yesterday as two Government agencies moved into new quarters and one airline announced it would move its headquarters here from Detroit.

The Post Office Department yesterday opened operations in the new Airmail Building, which now is nearing completion and will house 12 postal employes. The building is located near the Airport Administration Building.

A new airways control crew, with adequate facilities to control any incoming or outgoing plane by means of radio or lights, moved into space vacated by the postal service in the Administration Building. The crew is in charge of the Bureau of Air Commerce.

Central Airlines, operating between Washington and Detroit, is moving its entire maintenance base to the local airport.

Changes, airways and postal officials say, will speed airmail service. Figures show that more than 30,000 pounds of mail are flown from the airport each month and an equal amount received.

The changes will provide work at the airport for more than 70 persons.

Mrs. Eunice Athey Is Killed in Crash

Mrs. Eunice E. Athey, 21, of Burtonsville, Md., wife of Edward M. Athey and mother of a 9-months-old son, was fatally injured last night in an automobile accident in front of her home on Columbia pike. She died in Montgomery County General Hospital, at Sandy Spring a few hours after the crash.

At the hospital it was said that both her legs had been cut off in the crash. She also suffered a broken arm and internal injuries.

Myrtle Schandler, also of Burtonsville, suffered a broken nose and face cuts. She was taken to Washington Sanatarium.

Mrs. Athey was standing on the running board of a car driven by her sister-in-law, Doris E. Athey, as it was making a left turn into a driveway. It was struck by a machine reported to have been driven by John T. Beall, of Silver Spring.

Miss Schandler, a passenger in Beall's car, was thrown through the windshield. The other passengers in both cars were uninjured.

Beall was held for investigation in the Silver Spring substation last night pending the outcome of Mrs. Athey's injuries.

Grocery Employes' Work Week Reduced

Employes of major grocery chains in Washington have had their work week shortened by as much as seven hours on a new schedule put into effect this week. Stores of the Sanitary, Piggly-Wiggly, A. & P. and American stores systems now open at 7:30 instead of at 7 and close on Saturday nights at 8 p. m. instead of at 9.

Closing hour on week days remains at 6 p. m. Change in the morning and Saturday night schedule was made after a survey showed that few customers visited the stores at the early and late periods. The new program cuts from 4½ to 7 hours from the time formerly put in by employes.

Mongrel Shuns Role of Stooge In Pound Show

Eludes Expert Catchers Near Microphone, but Yields to Officer.

Brownie showed up the District dog catchers who tried to capture him yesterday, only to submit meekly to a policeman who described himself as an animal lover.

It was thought Brownie would "take a dive," that is, allow himself to be caught by the two expert catchers on the pound wagon as a climax to the stunt arranged by a local broadcasting station. The program was staged on the North Ellipse in the rear of the White House.

But Brownie, a mongrel brought up by the dog pound to enact the stellar role in this al fresco melodrama, refused to play ball when he was turned loose on the lawn. A dog catcher threw his net and Brownie sidestepped neatly. The second net grazed his tail, but he slithered out from under.

Still wondering what it was all about, with an announcer talking excitedly into a microphone and scores of spectators and policemen forming a semi-circle in front of him, Brownie ran to the nearest exit (between the legs of a sympathetic boy) and reached the roadway.

The dog catchers had given up the chase, to the chagrin of Frank B. Marks, the new poundmaster, and J. I. LaSalle, acting poundmaster, and it seemed Brownie had regained his liberty until Park Policeman Walter J. McFeeley looked him in the eye. One look at the officer's shield and the dog gave up.

Postlude

The people who like to get a kick as well as an inspiration out of music got both last evening at the Watergate concert.

Fabien Sevitzky, a dramatic young conductor from Boston and Philadelphia, gave them what they wanted—not so much in program material, perhaps, although the favorites were represented, as in an abundance of emotional content.

Sevitzky put on a show, and the audience, a good-sized one, was swept off its feet. Even the orchestra men, who have been allowed to lag along occasionally with their summer music, must have been surprised whenever they became aware of the pace they were going.

There was the Brahms Symphony No. 1, for example. The listeners got that, almost before they knew it. A piece that is as soggy and heavy as unleaven bread, if it's in the hands of an unskilled conductor, had plenty of "rise" in the performance last night. It had more than zest, too; it was well integrated, particularly in the first movement; it hit the climaxes squarely on the head; it was careful about the details of phrasing and cues.

Sevitzky, who suppressed applause until the whole work was over, had to make several trips back to his podium, while the audience gave him all the cheering it had saved up.

Then there were lighter numbers, none of which the man with the baton permitted to die on his hands. The overture "Roman Carnival" by Hector Berlioz, which opened the second part of the program; the excerpts from Bizet's "L'Arlesienne" Suite, and Sibelulis' "Finlandia" are hardly quiet pieces, but they seemed unusually brilliant last night.

Sevitzky has a flare for conducting. He handles his baton like a fencing master does a rapier. For the most part this flare brings about spirited, well co-ordinated playing.

Sylvia Meyer, Washington's harpist, shared honors of the concert, too, and received more floral tributes than she could easily carry off the stage after her solo. She presented Ravel's Introduction and Allegro for harp and orchestra, and played it effectively. It was a colorful contribution to the program.

The musicians, over their amplifying system, announced that the Wednesday night concert, rained out on both Wednesday and Thursday nights, will be given tonight. Sylvan Levin, who was engaged to conduct the concert originally, will be on the conductor's stand tonight. He will present Beethoven's Seventh Symphony as a feature number.

Then Sevitzky will take charge of the orchestra again for the regular concert tomorrow night. J. W.

Two Injured as Blazing Chair Nearly Smothers Sleeping Man

Two persons were injured last night when a lounge chair caught fire and almost asphyxiated a sleeping man.

Edward J. Neugebauer, 2[illegible] 2148 O street, was taken to Emergency Hospital and treated for serious burns after he was rescued from the flaming chair, and Mrs. Jean De Jarmaux was treated for lacerations to the scalp. Mrs. De Jarmaux struck her head against the door as she dashed toward Neugebauer's apartment when she smelled smoke through the door.

Neugebauer was sleeping when a lamp caught fire back of the chair, and then the chair caught fire, too. But the man slept on until he was almost smothered by the smoke.

Neighbors rescued him as the Fire Department quelled the flames. Both the injured were treated by a rescue squad before they were taken to the hospital.

WPA Asked To Help Fight Diphtheria

Ruhland Plans Drive, Seeking $70,000 for the Project.

Campaign Would Follow Pattern of Tuberculosis Work.

An organized drive on diphtheria in Washington, is planned by the District Health Department, providing some $70,000 is made available for a WPA project, Health Officer George C. Ruhland announced yesterday.

Dr. Ruhland said that a request for approval of the project had been submitted to William C. Cleary, deputy WPA administrator, and Auditor Daniel J. Donovan.

Eight physicians wiuld be engaged on a part-time basis and a score or of other employes, including nurses, clerks and stenographers, would be hired.

The drive on diphtheria would follow somewhat the same line as the tuberculosis project conducted with WPA funds and recently completed. Besides providing immunization for children, the Health Department would carry on an educational campaign and gather statistical data on the disease.

As some $35,000 of the WPA money allocated to the tuberculosis project was unexpended, Dr. Ruhland has asked permission to utilize this amount and an additional allocation of approximately the same size.

For several months Dr. Ruhland has been alarmed at Washington's high record of diphtheria cases and has been organizing a campaign to lower it with the aid of the Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations and the District Medical Society.

Only this week he stated that there have been 428 cases of the disease reported to the Health Department since January 1, and 21 of these proved fatal. Indications are that there are about 200 healthy carriers of the disease in the city.

Last year during the corresponding period there were 318 cases, 12 deaths and 123 carriers.

2 Naval Officers To Fly on Zeppelin

Two more officers in the Navy's lighter-than air division will fly the Atlantic as observers in the Hindenburg when the German zeppelin leaves Lakehurst Naval Air Station tomorrow for the return trip to Germany, the Navy Department announced here yesterday.

They are Commander Garland Fulton, U. S. N., in charge of the airship division of the Bureau of Aeronautics, and Lieut. Comdr. C. H. Mills, U. S. N., of the Naval Air Station at Lakehurst, N. J.

Commander Fulton has been on duty in the Bureau of Aeronautics since 1922. He was detailed to Friedrichshafen, Germany, as chief inspector during the construction of the airship Los Angeles.

Lieut. Comdr. Mills became a naval aviator in June, 1932, and was assigned to temporary duty on the Graf Zeppelin in the summer of 1934. He was attached to the U. S. S. Macon and was serving on it at the time it crashed off Point Sur, Calif., on February 12, 1934. He has been on duty at the Naval Air Station since May, 1935. His home is at Rutherfordton, N. C.

Both officers will make a round trip, returning aboard the Hindenburg from Friedrichshafen.

100-Year Story Of Warren Told By Pageantry

Laura Trout Is Crowned by Price; Anderson Talks at Dedications.

By Osgood Nichols.
A Staff Correspondent.

Front Royal, Va., Aug. 7.—History was re-lived in this little county seat tonight. More than 3,000 persons jammed into the tiny ball park to see and hear the story of Warren County from the days when the Redskin prowled this fertile section of the Shenandoah Valley to the present.

The real star, however, was Laura Trout, beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Trout, of Front Royal. Surrounded by a court of eight princesses and four maids of honor dressed in hoop skirts, she was crowned Queen Warren by the lieutenant governor of Virginia, James H. Prince.

Her coronation was the first event on a program, which began at 8:30 p. m., and lasted until nearly 11 o'clock.

The weather contributed to the festive spirit of the crowd, which had poured in from neighboring counties and States for the three-day celebration of the hundredth birthday of Warren County. In 1836 it was created with 226 square miles taken from Shenandoah and Frederick counties and named after Gen. Joseph Warren, the man who started Paul Revere on his famous ride. Prominent local persons took the roles in the pageant tonight of those who had made the history of this county.

Dr. F. E. White, as Francis Lederer, a Franciscan monk, accepted his commission from Charles II and passed through the Manassas Gap to plant the standard of the white man in what was then a virgin forest.

S. M. Boyd, jr., as Gen. Robert E. Lee, stopped once again in Front Royal as he did 70 years ago on his way back from Gettysburg, with the Yankees on his heels.

The Rev. R. B. Claggett, as Francis Asbury, first Methodist bishop in America, thundered fire and brimstone at a revival meeting as he had over a hundred years ago, when he stormed the country for John Wesley and brought 300,000 converts into the fold.

W. E. Collins, as John Van Meter, again brought tales of the rich valley which lured settlers into this junction of the north and south branches of the Shenandoah.

The show began late and the crowd was impatiently stamping its feet when Lieut. Gov. Price, who is a candidate to succeed George C. Peery as Governor of Virginia, arrived, preceded by a motorcycle escort.

Dentist Plays Bishop.

It quieted down, however, when Dr. F. E. White, a local dentist who played perfectly the part of a bishop, opened the ceremony with a prayer. This was followed by a speech by Price, who brought greetings to the county from the State.

He then placed a silver crown on the head of Queen Warren, who was dressed in a flowing hoop skirt of white satin surmounted by a high Elizabethan collar and covered by an ermine wrap.

The princesses and maids of honor who attended her were dressed in the same style and represented Warren and the surrounding counties of Virginia. The maids of honor were:

Fire at Star Building.

A fire which ate its way through air conditioning pipes in the Evening Star Building yesterday afternoon brought nearly a dozen pieces of fire apparatus and several hundred spectators to the scene. The fire did no serious damage.

Slight Delay

Capitol Limited Is Halted by Blazing Box Car.

A blazing boxcar near the railroad tracks at Ninth and Evarts streets northeast delayed the Capitol Limited, B. & O. crack train, for two minutes yesterday afternoon.

Firemen stretched hose across the tracks and were forced to flag the train. More than 800 feet of hose was laid from Tenth and Evarts streets to the tracks.

Lieut. J. R. Best, of No. 17 Engine Company, said that as his men extinguished the fire a railroad employe arrived at the scene and told them the blaze had been set purposely. The car had been derailed and badly damaged some time ago, he said, so workers decided to destroy it.

Picketing Stops At D. C. Garages As Strike Ends

No Definite Agreement Is Reached, but Re-employment Is Expected.

Picketing at 18 local garages ceased abruptly yesterday morning as the automobile mechanics' strike, which had been in effect since May 11, was suddenly terminated.

The strike came to an end at a meeting of Lodge No. 193 of the International Association of Machinists. No definite agreement was reached between the union and the employers, according to David Kaplan, one of the strike leaders.

Kaplan said, however, that the shops had shown willingness to "consider re-employment" of strikers and that the strike had brought about improved labor conditions.

Members of the union also voted to revoke the suspension of strikers who returned to work at two garages before the strike was officially declared off. The workers were summarily dismissed from the union when they returned to work earlier at the Mandell and Ourisman garages.

Moreover, action started in the Central Labor Union to place all shops on the unfair list will not be pressed except, it was announced, against "shops that discriminate in the matter of hire or attempt in other way to victimize the strikers."

Jewels, Chickens Taken by Thieves

Thieves yesterday escaped with loot including 12 watches and an assortment of jewelry valued at $480 after entering two buildings, police said.

A third robbery resulted in the disappearance of 18 chickens from the backyard of Charles Farr's home, 3461 Bennings road northeast.

Jeanette E. Baltimore, 1435 S street northwest, reported that a burglar pried iron bars from a basement window of her home and made off with a gold watch and jewelry valued at $280. Among the loot were 10 silver dollars and $1.25 in pennies.

Eleven watches, gold chains and brooches valued at $143, and several valuable coins were taken from James Livesay, 1437 East Capitol street. Livesay said some one entered his basement by breaking a glass in the door. When he returned from a trip he found the jewelry missing.

Brown Asserts Station Houses Are 'Shameful'

Also Deplores Conditions In Headquarters Building; Cites Crowding.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, chief of police, yesterday admitted that conditions in some precinct stations and the headquarters building were "shameful," as he announced the major item in his recommendations to the Commissioners would be for new station houses.

Organization of a committee to inspect precinct houses and headquarters will be asked by Brown to estimate the cost of replacing the department's equipment. The committee, he said, should consist of a representative of the Health Department, the Engineer and Fire Departments.

Most needed, explained Brown, was a new building to house the administrative and detective headquarters now lodged in the old six-story District Building at 462 Indiana avenue northwest.

The building, called a veritable fire-trap, was outmoded 20 years ago and is too small to house the staff needed to run the police department. Valuable files are endangered by fire.

"I am not ashamed of my men or equipment," Brown said, "but I can't say the same about the police headquarters building and some of the old precinct stations."

Visiting officials from foreign countries have ridiculed the conditions about headquarters and the police courts, he says.

Among his recommendations, he added, would be a request for re-establishment of the original Second Precinct Station, now occupied by the Women's Bureau. Should the change be made, territory in the First, Second and Third Precincts will be equally divided to afford better police protection.

The Second Precinct was merged with the Eighth during the term of the late Commissioner Crosby. Maj. Brown believes the Second Precinct covers too much territory for effective policing.

Mrs. Morrison, 66, Succumbs Here

Mrs. Mary McGlue Morrison, wife of George W. Morrison, administrative assistant at the Department of Agriculture, died yesterday at her home, 1231 Harvard street northwest, after a long illness. She was 66.

Mrs. Morrison was a lifelong resident of this city. She was a member of Mount Pleasant Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, and the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Alfred Christie, of Washington Grove, Md., and Mrs. Sarah Williams, of this city; three sisters and a brother.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 10 a. m., at the home. Burial will be in Monocacy Cemetery.

Capital Boys Off for N. Y. Celebration

Are Invited by Police League to Help Mark Youth Week.

Will Meet Host Teams in Several Games of Baseball.

Among them were two baseball teams and a band. They were accompanied by officials of the club.

While they loaded belongings aboard the two buses, piled baseballs and bats, band instruments and suitcases on the machines, J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Bureau of Investigation, made a speech about what the trip represented.

Hoover, ardent supporter of youth movements in the country, stood before a microphone and told the American people in general and its police and youth in particular that the celebration in New York to which the Washington boys are going represents a great exodus from the filth of crime and an entre into lives of health and cleanliness for the younger generation.

Praises Athletic League.

It was the Police Athletic League of the New York City Police Department that Hoover praised. The athletic league is sponsoring "pal week." It is upon invitation of the league that the Washington boys are spending a few days in New York.

They will meet New York teams in several games.

Hoover said that things like organized athletic leagues sponsored by police, open a new field of activity of youth and lure them from crime to "clean and sensible lives."

"If organizations of this type," he said, "had been in effect throughout the country for a number of years past, I truly believe that our crime situation would be less serious today and fewer lives would have been ruined through criminal activities both for the innocent victim and the perpetrator."

Welcomes Groups.

"The happiest times in my work as director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation is when groups of young people come to see us and are shown through the various departments and activities our our bureau."

Value of police-sponsored youth activity, Hoover said, promotes a feeling of comradeships and goodwill between the officers and the boys and girls, gives them a better understanding of what law means and a better knowledge of why it is necessary to have policemen and other officers.

The Police Athletic Club in New York is the counterpart of the Police Boys Club here.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of Metropolitan Police and originator of the Boys Club here, was present yesterday at the Fifth Precinct when the boys departed.

Roosevelt to Talk At Power Parley

The White House announced yesterday that President Roosevelt will address a joint session of the Third World Power Conference and Second Congress On Large Dams here on September 11.

The International Power and Dam Conferences, scheduled for September 7-12, are being held in the United States for the first time, by invitation of the President. As host he will speak at a specially arranged session.

More than 700 foreign government officials and representatives of power industries from 48 nations have accepted invitations to participate in the sessions, and 3,000 delegates are expected.

In addition to the conferences here the foreign visitors and American engineers and economists will make a series of technical study tours in this country.

Ruhland Sees Milk Imports If Price Rises

Issues Threat After He Confers With Social Welfare Group.

Dairy farms on the Eastern Shore of Maryland might be called upon to provide milk for Washington should the producers in this area carry out their threat to increase prices, Health Officer George C. Ruhland said yesterday following a conference with a social welfare delegation headed by Mrs. John Boyle, jr., president of the Consumers' Council.

"Of course, I have no desire to injure the local milk shed," Dr. Ruhland said, "and I wouldn't do anything to encourage importation unless it proves necessary to prevent an increase in the retail price.

"However, my investigators tell me that there are excellent dairy farms on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and that the milk could be brought into Washington via ferries and truck."

Has Launched Study.

The Health Department has just started its study of regulations governing milk sales in accordance with instructions of the District Commissioners to determine whether any unreasonable or superfluous requirements are responsible for high retail prices.

Following the conference, Mrs. Boyle said that the Consumers' Council itself will take the initiative in paving the way for importation of milk if the threatened price rise is effected.

Others who attended the parley are Matthew Boyd, the spokesman; Miss Ellis Meredith, Woman's National Democratic Club; Mgr. John A. Ryan, National Catholic Welfare Conference; Mrs. William T. Tignor, of Crittento Home board; Mrs. Huston Thompson, Washington City Orphan Asylum; Mrs. Lloyd W. 12-Cent Milk on Market.

Meanwhile a 12-cent milk has been launched on the District market, it was learned yesterday.

It was reported by Consumers Counsel Donald Montgomery, of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, who has just concluded a survey to determine prices paid here by all classes of retail consumers.

The 12-cent product has 3.6 per cent butter fat, 4 per cent below that of grade A. The largest local dairy has it for sale generally, and another independent dairy sells 12-cent milk in stores.

The local milk shed has not been affected by the drought, Montgomery said last night.

Staff, Facilities Of D.C. Airport Are Expanded

Expansion of the staff and facilities of the Washington Airport went forward yesterday as two Government agencies moved into new quarters and one airline announced it would move its headquarters here from Detroit.

The Post Office Department yesterday opened operations in the new Airmail Building, which now is nearing completion and will house 12 postal employes. The building is located near the Airport Administration Building.

A new airways control crew, with adequate facilities to control any incoming or outgoing plane by means of radio or lights, moved into space vacated by the postal service in the Administration Building. The crew is in charge of the Bureau of Air Commerce.

Central Airlines, operating between Washington and Detroit, is moving its entire maintenance base to the local airport.

Changes, airways and postal officials say, will speed airmail service. Figures show that more than 30,000 pounds of mail are flown from the airport each month and an equal amount received.

The changes will provide work at the airport for more than 70 persons.

Mrs. Eunice Athey Is Killed in Crash

Mrs. Eunice E. Athey, 21, of Burtonsville, Md., wife of Edward M. Athey and mother of a 9-months-old son, was fatally injured last night in an automobile accident in front of her home on Columbia pike. She died in Montgomery County General Hospital, at Sandy Spring a few hours after the crash.

At the hospital it was said that both her legs had been cut off in the crash. She also suffered a broken arm and internal injuries.

Myrtle Schandler, also of Burtonsville, suffered a broken nose and face cuts. She was taken to Washington Sanatarium.

Mrs. Athey was standing on the running board of a car driven by her sister-in-law, Doris E. Athey, as it was making a left turn into a driveway. It was struck by a machine reported to have been driven by John T. Beall, of Silver Spring.

Miss Schandler, a passenger in Beall's car, was thrown through the windshield. The other passengers in both cars were uninjured.

Beall was held for investigation in the Silver Spring substation last night pending the outcome of Mrs. Athey's injuries.

Grocery Employes' Work Week Reduced

Employes of major grocery chains in Washington have had their work week shortened by as much as seven hours on a new schedule put into effect this week. Stores of the Sanitary, Piggly-Wiggly, A. & P. and American stores systems now open at 7:30 instead of at 7 and close on Saturday nights at 8 p. m. instead of at 9.

Closing hour on week days remains at 6 p. m. Change in the morning and Saturday night schedule was made after a survey showed that few customers visited the stores at the early and late periods. The new program cuts from 4½ to 7 hours from the time formerly put in by employes.

Fire Record.

August 7.

8:09 a. m.—622 Westminster street northwest, automobile.
2:13 p. m.—1919 W street northwest, paint remover.
4:01 p. m.—Evening Star Building, air shaft.
5:01 p. m.—Ninth and Evarts streets northeast, freight car.

Eludes Expert Catchers Near Microphone, but Yields to Officer.

Brownie showed up the District dog catchers who tried to capture him yesterday, only to submit meekly to a policeman who described himself as an animal lover.

It was thought Brownie would "take a dive," that is, allow himself to be caught by the two expert catchers on the pound wagon as a climax to the stunt arranged by a local broadcasting station. The program was staged on the North Ellipse in the rear of the White House.

But Brownie, a mongrel brought up by the dog pound to enact the stellar role in this al fresco melodrama, refused to play ball when he was turned loose on the lawn. A dog catcher threw his net and Brownie sidestepped neatly. The second net grazed his tail, but he slithered out from under.

Still wondering what it was all about, with an announcer talking excitedly into a microphone and scores of spectators and policemen forming a semi-circle in front of him, Brownie ran to the nearest exit (between the legs of a sympathetic boy) and reached the roadway.

The dog catchers had given up the chase, to the chagrin of Frank B. Marks, the new poundmaster, and J. I. LaSalle, acting poundmaster, and it seemed Brownie had regained his liberty until Park Policeman Walter J. McFeeley looked him in the eye. One look at the officer's shield and the dog gave up.

Postlude

The people who like to get a kick as well as an inspiration out of music got both last evening at the Watergate concert.

Fabien Sevitzky, a dramatic young conductor from Boston and Philadelphia, gave them what they wanted—not so much in program material, perhaps, although the favorites were represented, as in an abundance of emotional content.

Sevitzky put on a show, and the audience, a good-sized one, was swept off its feet. Even the orchestra men, who have been allowed to lag along occasionally with their summer music, must have been surprised whenever they became aware of the pace they were going.

There was the Brahms Symphony No. 1, for example. The listeners got that, almost before they knew it. A piece that is as soggy and heavy as unleaven bread, if it's in the hands of an unskilled conductor, had plenty of "rise" in the performance last night. It had more than zest, too; it was well integrated, particularly in the first movement; it hit the climaxes squarely on the head; it was careful about the details of phrasing and cues.

Sevitzky, who suppressed applause until the whole work was over, had to make several trips back to his podium, while the audience gave him all the cheering it had saved up.

Then there were lighter numbers, none of which the man with the baton permitted to die on his hands. The overture "Roman Carnival" by Hector Berlioz, which opened the second part of the program; the excerpts from Bizet's "L'Arlesienne" Suite, and Sibeluis' "Finlandia" are hardly quiet pieces, but they seemed unusually brilliant last night.

Sevitzky has a flare for conducting. He handles his baton like a fencing master does a rapier. For the most part this flare brings about spirited, well co-ordinated playing.

Sylvia Meyer, Washington's harpist, shared honors of the concert, too, and received more floral tributes than she could easily carry off the stage after her solo. She presented Ravel's Introduction and Allegro for harp and orchestra, and played it effectively. It was a colorful contribution to the program.

The musicians, over their amplifying system, announced that the Wednesday night concert, rained out on both Wednesday and Thursday nights, will be given tonight. Sylvan Levin, who was engaged to conduct the concert originally, will be on the conductor's stand tonight. He will present Beethoven's Seventh Symphony as a feature number.

Then Sevitzky will take charge of the orchestra again for the regular concert tomorrow night. J. W.

Two Injured as Blazing Chair Nearly Smothers Sleeping Man

Two persons were injured last night when a lounge chair caught fire and almost asphyxiated a sleeping man.

Edward J. Neugebauer, 2? 2148 O street, was taken to Emergency Hospital and treated for serious burns after he was rescued from the flaming chair, and Mrs. Jean De Jarmaux was treated for lacerations to the scalp. Mrs. De Jarmaux struck her head against the door as she dashed toward Neugebauer's apartment when she smelled smoke through the door.

Neugebauer was sleeping when a lamp caught fire back of the chair, and then the chair caught fire, too. But the man slept on until he was almost smothered by the smoke.

Neighbors rescued him as the Fire Department quelled the flames. Both the injured were treated by a rescue squad before they were taken to the hospital.

WPA Asked To Help Fight Diphtheria

Ruhland Plans Drive, Seeking $70,000 for the Project.

Campaign Would Follow Pattern of Tuberculosis Work.

An organized drive on diphtheria in Washington, is planned by the District Health Department, providing some $70,000 is made available for a WPA project, Health Officer George C. Ruhland announced yesterday.

Dr. Ruhland said that a request for approval of the project had been submitted to William C. Cleary, deputy WPA administrator, and Auditor Daniel J. Donovan.

Eight physicians wiuld be engaged on a part-time basis and a score or of other employes, including nurses, clerks and stenographers, would be hired.

The drive on diphtheria would follow somewhat the same line as the tuberculosis project conducted with WPA funds and recently completed. Besides providing immunization for children, the Health Department would carry on an educational campaign and gather statistical data on the disease.

As some $35,000 of the WPA money allocated to the tuberculosis project was unexpended, Dr. Ruhland has asked permission to utilize this amount and an additional allocation of approximately the same size.

For several months Dr. Ruhland has been alarmed at Washington's high record of diphtheria cases and has been organizing a campaign to lower it with the aid of the Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations and the District Medical Society.

Only this week he stated that there have been 428 cases of the disease reported to the Health Department since January 1, and 21 of these proved fatal. Indications are that there are about 200 healthy carriers of the disease in the city.

Last year during the corresponding period there were 318 cases, 12 deaths and 123 carriers.

2 Naval Officers To Fly on Zeppelin

Two more officers in the Navy's lighter-than air division will fly the Atlantic as observers in the Hindenburg when the German zeppelin leaves Lakehurst Naval Air Station tomorrow for the return trip to Germany, the Navy Department announced here yesterday.

They are Commander Garland Fulton, U. S. N., in charge of the airship division of the Bureau of Aeronautics, and Lieut. Comdr. C. H. Mills, U. S. N., of the Naval Air Station at Lakehurst, N. J.

Commander Fulton has been on duty in the Bureau of Aeronautics since 1922. He was detailed to Friedrichshafen, Germany, as chief inspector during the construction of the airship Los Angeles.

Lieut. Comdr. Mills became a naval aviator in June, 1932, and was assigned to temporary duty on the Graf Zeppelin in the summer of 1934. He was attached to the U. S. S. Macon and was serving on it at the time it crashed off Point Sur, Calif., on February 12, 1934. He has been on duty at the Naval Air Station since May, 1935. His home is at Rutherfordton, N. C.

Both officers will make a round trip, returning aboard the Hindenburg from Friedrichshafen.

Off for New York to Participate in "Pal Week"

100-Year Story Of Warren Told By Pageantry

Laura Trout Is Crowned by Price; Anderson Talks at Dedications.

By Osgood Nichols.
A Staff Correspondent.

Front Royal, Va., Aug. 7.—History was re-lived in this little county seat tonight. More than 3,000 persons jammed into the tiny ball park to see and hear the story of Warren County from the days when the Redskin prowled this fertile section of the Shenandoah Valley to the present.

The real star, however, was Laura Trout, beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Trout, of Front Royal. Surrounded by a court of eight princesses and four maids of honor dressed in hoop skirts, she was crowned Queen Warren by the lieutenant governor of Virginia, James H. Prince.

Her coronation was the first event on a program, which began at 8:30 p. m., and lasted until nearly 11 o'clock.

The weather contributed to the festive spirit of the crowd, which had poured in from neighboring counties and States for the three-day celebration of the hundredth birthday of Warren County. In 1836 it was created with 226 square miles taken from Shenandoah and Frederick counties and named after Gen. Joseph Warren, the man who started Paul Revere on his famous ride. Prominent local persons took the roles in the pageant tonight of those who had made the history of this county.

Dr. F. E. White, as Francis Lederer, a Franciscan monk, accepted his commission from Charles II and passed through the Manassas Gap to plant the standard of the white man in what was then a virgin forest.

S. M. Boyd, jr., as Gen. Robert E. Lee, stopped once again in Front Royal as he did 70 years ago on his way back from Gettysburg, with the Yankees on his heels.

The Rev. R. B. Claggett, as Francis Asbury, first Methodist bishop in America, thundered fire and brimstone at a revival meeting as he had over a hundred years ago, when he stormed the country for John Wesley and brought 300,000 converts into the fold.

W. E. Collins, as John Van Meter, again brought tales of the rich valley which lured settlers into this junction of the north and south branches of the Shenandoah.

The show began late and the crowd was impatiently stamping its feet when Lieut. Gov. Price, who is a candidate to succeed George C. Peery as Governor of Virginia, arrived, preceded by a motorcycle escort.

Dentist Plays Bishop.

It quieted down, however, when Dr. F. E. White, a local dentist who played perfectly the part of a bishop, opened the ceremony with a prayer. This was followed by a speech by Price, who brought greetings to the county from the State.

He then placed a silver crown on the head of Queen Warren, who was dressed in a flowing hoop skirt of white satin surmounted by a high Elizabethan collar and covered by an ermine wrap.

The princesses and maids of honor who attended her were dressed in the same style and represented Warren and the surrounding counties of Virginia. The maids of honor were:

Fire at Star Building.

A fire which ate its way through air conditioning pipes in the Evening Star Building yesterday afternoon brought nearly a dozen pieces of fire apparatus and several hundred spectators to the scene. The fire did no serious damage.

Slight Delay

Capitol Limited Is Halted by Blazing Box Car.

A blazing boxcar near the railroad tracks at Ninth and Evarts streets northeast delayed the Capitol Limited, B. & O. crack train, for two minutes yesterday afternoon.

Firemen stretched hose across the tracks and were forced to flag the train. More than 800 feet of hose was laid from Tenth and Evarts streets to the tracks.

Lieut. J. R. Best, of No. 17 Engine Company, said that as his men extinguished the fire a railroad employe arrived at the scene and told them the blaze had been set purposely. The car had been derailed and badly damaged some time ago, he said, so workers decided to destroy it.

Picketing Stops At D.C. Garages As Strike Ends

No Definite Agreement Is Reached, but Re-employment Is Expected.

Picketing at 18 local garages ceased abruptly yesterday morning as the automobile mechanics' strike, which had been in effect since May 11, was suddenly terminated.

The strike came to an end at a meeting of Lodge No. 193 of the International Association of Machinists. No definite agreement was reached between the union and the employers, according to David Kaplan, one of the strike leaders.

Kaplan said, however, that the shops had shown willingness to "consider re-employment" of strikers and that the strike had brought about improved labor conditions.

Members of the union also voted to revoke the suspension of strikers who returned to work at two garages before the strike was officially declared off. The workers were summarily dismissed from the union when they returned to work earlier at the Mandell and Ourisman garages.

Moreover, action started in the Central Labor Union to place all shops on the unfair list will not be pressed except, it was announced, against "shops that discriminate in the matter of hire or attempt in other way to victimize the strikers."

Jewels, Chickens Taken by Thieves

Thieves yesterday escaped with loot including 12 watches and an assortment of jewelry valued at $480 after entering two buildings, police said.

A third robbery resulted in the disappearance of 18 chickens from the backyard of Charles Farr's home, 3461 Bennings road northeast.

Jeanette E. Baltimore, 1435 S street northwest, reported that a burglar pried iron bars from a basement window of her home and made off with a gold watch and jewelry valued at $280. Among the loot were 10 silver dollars and $1.25 in pennies.

Eleven watches, gold chains and brooches valued at $143, and several valuable coins were taken from James Livesay, 1437 East Capitol street. Livesay said some one entered his basement by breaking a glass in the door. When he returned from a trip he found the jewelry missing.

Brown Asserts Station Houses Are 'Shameful'

Also Deplores Conditions In Headquarters Building; Cites Crowding.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, chief of police, yesterday admitted that conditions in some precinct stations and the headquarters building were "shameful," as he announced the major item in his recommendations to the Commissioners would be for new station houses.

Organization of a committee to inspect precinct houses and headquarters will be asked by Brown to estimate the cost of replacing the department's equipment. The committee, he said, should consist of a representative of the Health Department, the Engineer and Fire Departments.

Most needed, explained Brown, was a new building to house the administrative and detective headquarters now lodged in the old six-story District Building at 462 Indiana avenue northwest.

The building, called a veritable fire-trap, was outmoded 20 years ago and is too small to house the staff needed to run the police department. Valuable files are endangered by fire.

"I am not ashamed of my men or equipment," Brown said, "but I can't say the same about the police headquarters building and some of the old precinct stations."

Visiting officials from foreign countries have ridiculed the conditions about headquarters and the police courts, he says.

Among his recommendations, he added, would be a request for re-establishment of the original Second Precinct Station, now occupied by the Women's Bureau. Should the change be made, territory in the First, Second and Third Precincts will be equally divided to afford better police protection.

The Second Precinct was merged with the Eighth during the term of the late Commissioner Crosby. Maj. Brown believes the Second Precinct covers too much territory for effective policing.

Mrs. Morrison, 66, Succumbs Here

Mrs. Mary McGlue Morrison, wife of George W. Morrison, administrative assistant at the Department of Agriculture, died yesterday at her home, 1231 Harvard street northwest, after a long illness. She was 66.

Mrs. Morrison was a lifelong resident of this city. She was a member of Mount Pleasant Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, and the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Alfred Christie, of Washington Grove, Md., and Mrs. Sarah Williams, of this city; three sisters and a brother.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 10 a. m., at the home. Burial will be in Monocacy Cemetery.

Capital Boys Off for N. Y. Celebration

Are Invited by Police League to Help Mark Youth Week.

Will Meet Host Teams in Several Games of Baseball.

Among them were two baseball teams and a band. They were accompanied by officials of the club.

While they loaded belongings aboard the two buses, piled baseballs and bats, band instruments and suitcases on the machines, J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Bureau of Investigation, made a speech about what the trip represented.

Hoover, ardent supporter of youth movements in the country, stood before a microphone and told the American people in general and its police and youth in particular that the celebration in New York to which the Washington boys are going represents a great exodus from the filth of crime and an entre into lives of health and cleanliness for the younger generation.

Praises Athletic League.

It was the Police Athletic League of the New York City Police Department that Hoover praised. The athletic league is sponsoring "pal week." It is upon invitation of the league that the Washington boys are spending a few days in New York.

They will meet New York teams in several games.

Hoover said that things like organized athletic leagues sponsored by police, open a new field of activity of youth and lure them from crime to "clean and sensible lives."

"If organizations of this type," he said, "had been in effect throughout the country for a number of years past, I truly believe that our crime situation would be less serious today and fewer lives would have been ruined through criminal activities both for the innocent victim and the perpetrator.

Welcomes Groups.

"The happiest times in my work as director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation is when groups of young people come to see us and are shown through the various departments and activities our our bureau."

Value of police-sponsored youth activity, Hoover said, promotes a feeling of comradeships and goodwill between the officers and the boys and girls, gives them a better understanding of what law means and a better knowledge of why it is necessary to have policemen and other officers.

The Police Athletic Club in New York is the counterpart of the Police Boys Club here.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of Metropolitan Police and originator of the Boys Club here, was present yesterday at the Fifth Precinct when the boys departed.

Roosevelt to Talk At Power Parley

The White House announced yesterday that President Roosevelt will address a joint session of the Third World Power Conference and Second Congress On Large Dams here on September 11.

The International Power and Dam Conferences, scheduled for September 7-12, are being held in the United States for the first time, by invitation of the President. As host he will speak at a specially arranged session.

More than 700 foreign government officials and representatives of power industries from 48 nations have accepted invitations to participate in the sessions, and 3,000 delegates are expected.

In addition to the conferences here the foreign visitors and American engineers and economists will make a series of technical study tours in this country.

Jules Henry Will Meet Albert Sarraut at Boat

Minister Counselor Will Go to New York to Receive Former French Premier, Who Will Visit Capital; Was Here in 1921.

By Dudley Harmon.

Mr. Jules Henry, Minister-Counselor of the French Embassy, is going to New York this week-end to meet Mr. Albert Sarraut, twice Premier of France, who will land Monday on the Ile de France.

This is not the first time the statesman-painter-journalist has visited the United States. Mr. Sarraut came here in 1921 as head of the French delegation to the Washington Naval Conference and spent four months in the Capital. This time he is going to California before coming to the Capital some time in September. As a French delegate to the biennial conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations he will leave Tuesday for Yosemite Valley, where his fellow delegates are meeting.

Mr. Sarraut, who was Premier for a few months in 1933, and again from February to May of this year, is a member of the Radical Socialist Party, which, strangely enough, is neither radical nor socialist. Members, of whom Edouard Herriot is the outstanding example, advocate middle-class rule and republicanism as opposed to state ownership of factories and sources of production.

The former premier is at present a Senator from the department of Aude, the same district which first sent Leon Blum, present premier, to the French Chamber. Mr. Sarraut was at one time Governor General of French Indo-China, and has held several portfolios in previous cabinets, including that of Minister of Colonies.

The friends Mr. Sarraut made during his first visit to the Capital remember him not only as a statesman, but as an art critic of fine taste and an authority on wines and foods. At the world economic conference in London, in 1933, he urged universal wine-drinking as one means of conquering the depression.

The French Embassy will undoubtedly be the scene of gala entertaining upon Mr. Sarraut's arrival here, as the Ambassador and Mme. de Laboulaye are expected to sail on August 28 on the Ile de France on their return to this country.

August 22 has been decided on by the retiring Italian Ambassador, Signor Augusto Rosso, as his sailing date. The Ambassador will return from Bluemont next week to spend a few days in the Capital before embarking on the Italian liner Conte de Savoia. On the same boat will go Lieut. Carlos Tucci, who has been here with the embassy on a special naval mission.

The First Secretary of the Italian Embassy, Signor Bartolomeo Migone, is sailing today on the Rex to return to Italy for a two-month vacation. He will return to Washington in October for a month before assuming his new duties in the foreign office in Rome.

McIntyres Visit In Asheville, N. C.

Secretary, Wife, Accompanied by Mr., Mrs. Warren.

Mr. Marvin McIntyre, secretary to President Roosevelt, with Mrs. McIntyre and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Warren, were recent guests at the Grove Park Inn in Asheville, N. C.

Other recent arrivals at the Inn include Mr. M. G. de Quevedo and Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Worthington, of Washington.

Dr. and Mrs. William Beverly Mason gave a farewell tea recently before returning to Washington after spending a month at their summer home in Biltmore Forest, near Asheville. Commander and Mrs. Malcolm Gordon Slarrow have returned to their home in the Capital after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Earl H. Frothingham, in Biltmore Forest.

Miss Whiton Weds Mr. Paul Gable

The wedding of Miss Abigail Whiton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Whiton, of Brentwood, Md., to Mr. Paul DeLong Gable, of Washington, took place Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Samuel T. Nicholas.

Miss Whiton was attended by Miss Constance Myers, of Riverdale. Dr. Robert Harmon, of Washington, was best man.

After a six-week trip to the West Coast, Mr. and Mrs. Gable will make their home at 4616 Fifteenth street northwest. Both Mr. and Mrs. Gable are graduates of George Washington University.

Reids to Reside Here After Wedding Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Reid, who now are in the North on their wedding trip, will reside here with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Kendrick, on their return.

The bride is the former Miss Katherine R. Kendrick. Her marriage to Mr. Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reid, of Washington, took place Monday in the Holy Comforter Church, the Rev. Edward J. A. Nestor officiating.

Her only attendant was Mrs. Michael D. Fenton. Mr. Walter Hurley was best man, and Mr. Davis Crooke, the bride's cousin, and Mr. William McClay, jr., were ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Tuckerman Leave for Bar Harbor

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman have left for Bar Harbor, Me., to visit Mrs. Henry F. Dimock at her home, Elsinore. Their daughters, the Misses Ruth, Alice Noel and Peggy Tuckerman, who accompanied them, will visit other friends in the Maine resort.

Miss Williams Wed.

Miss Hazel Elizabeth Williams, daughter of Mrs. Lela C. Williams, of Takoma Park, became the bride of Mr. Frank Robert Hussong, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robert Hussong, of Camden, N. J., Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Walter P. Elliott in the Seventh-Day Adventist Church.

Frat Chapter At Georgetown Is Entertained

Maj. and Mrs. Norman Kane Are Hosts to Delta Chi.

Maj. and Mrs. Norman Kane entertained last night at their home with a buffet supper for the Georgetown Chapter of Delta Chi Fraternity. Mr. Frederick Cuneo, president, and Mr. Robert Calkins, treasurer of the chapter, assisted in receiving and Mrs. Helena Glassey, of Czechoslovakian Legation, assisted the hostess.

Special guests at the affair were students at the summer session of Georgetown Law School, including Mr. Paul Essof, Mr. Edward Feeney, Mr. Perce Connor and Mr. George Cavanaugh.

Also present were Mr. Robert Horton, of the Ohio State Chapter of the fraternity; Mr. James A. Horton, jr., and Lieut. Joseph Batch, who has recently returned from the Presidio, in San Francisco.

Members of the Alumni Chapter who were included among the guests were Mr. Calvert Bowie, Mr. William Gates, Mr. Vincent Ahearn, Mr. Frank Harrison, Mr. Joseph Roney, Mr. Lofton Wesley, Mr. Ralph Batch and Mr. Harry Daly, former president of the Washington Alumni Chapter.

Abbie Ingalls Wins at Skeet

Mrs. A. W. Walker Second in Trophy Tournament at Hot Springs.

Several Washingtonians distinguished themselves in the Clark Challenge Trophy skeet tournament, recently concluded at Hot Springs, Va. Miss Abbie Ingalls, of Washington and Hot Springs, won the women's events with a score of 84 and Mrs. Albert W. Walker, of Washington, came second with an 82. Mr. G. C. Deyoe, of this city, reached the finals, but was defeated by Mr. W. E. Gladstone, of Winston-Salem, N. C., who won the trophy.

More people are visiting summer resorts this year than any time since the depression, it is said. In this event at Hot Springs, twice as many targets were thrown as in any event held there. There were 100 entries.

Mr. and Mrs. Fay Ingalls gave a cocktail party at their home, The Yard, after the shoot. Mrs. Ingalls and Mrs. William R. Castle, wife of the former Undersecretary of State, were among the guests at a luncheon given recently by Mr. and Mrs. George Warrington, of Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. Castle and Mr. and Mrs. J. Thilman Hendricks, of Washington, will be among the boxholders at the Bath County Horse Show at Hot Springs tomorrow.

Daughter Born.

Lieut. and Mrs. E. H. Thiele, U. S. C. G., announce the birth of a daughter, Barbara Laub, at Columbia Hospital. The child was born on August 4, which is the anniversary of the founding of the Coast Guard.

Wedding Is Set This Afternoon

Miss A. H. Groverman to Become Bride of L. S. Ainslie.

St. John's Episcopal Church, Chevy Chase, Md., will be the scene this afternoon of the wedding of Miss Alice Heald Groverman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Groverman, to Mr. Lee Sanford Ainslie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Ainslie. The Rev. Joseph Williams, rector of St. John's, will officate.

The bride will be given in marriage by her father and will be attended by her cousin, Mrs. Grafton D. Rogers, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Raymond W. Ainslie, of Huntington, W. Va.

Dr. Raymond W. Ainslie, a brother of the bridegroom, will act as best man and the ushers will be Mr. Arthur Blake Groverman, brother of the bride; Mr. W. E. Stansbury, of Washington, and Mr. Grafton D. Rogers, of Baltimore.

Duvalls to Live Here After Trip

Couple Now Traveling in Southern States.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Duvall, who are now on a wedding trip through the South, will reside at 1103 Park road, on their return.

The bride is the former Miss Evelyn Louise Sutton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patterson Sutton, of Yanceyville, N. C. Her marriage to Mr. Duvall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Duvall, of Washington, took place Tuesday morning in the rectory of Holy Trinity Church, Georgetown. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James A. McEneany, S. J., in the presence of members of the families and a few close friends.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. R. J. Daily, of Yanceyville, and by Miss Louise Cropper. Mr. James E. Rhodes, a cousin of the bridegroom, was his best man.

Commander, Mrs. Baker En Route to California

Many Residents of City Sail Friday on Republic

By Elisabeth C. Taylor.

The Army transport Republic will, from all indications, rival the transatlantic passenger ship Friday, when it will carry a number of well-known Washington residents and many of those who stay behind will be in New York to see it off. Many farewell parties have been given for those sailing, one of the most popular of whom is Miss Patricia Parker, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Arthur W. Parker.

Miss Parker remained in Washington with her sister, Mrs. Marjorie Parker Williams, after her parents' departure for their new station in Sacramento, Calif. She attended the wedding of Miss Betty O'Malley and Lieut. Robert N. Strauss at Fort Myer and remained in Washington a little longer, as she planned on taking the next transport, the Republic.

Wednesday evening Miss Parker was honored at a large cocktail party given by Lieut. Comdr. Richard Tuggle and Lieut. Comdr. Joseph Lademan.

Last evening she was the guest of honor at a tea given by Miss Jessica Johnson in her apartment at the Kennedy-Warren. Mrs. Bullard, widow of Gen. Bullard, and Mrs. John H. Iden served punch. Mrs. Bullard wore a flowered chiffon gown and a wide brimmed leghorn hat. Mrs. Iden was dressed in blue lace.

Receiving with Miss Johnson, who wore a blue frock trimmed with fuchia, was her mother, Mrs. Oliver Johnson, wearing a flowered chiffon gown and a wide-brimmed legnating color.

Other guests who came to bid Miss Parker farewell were Capt. and Mrs. W. A. R. Robertson, the latter wearing a smart black frock and a black hat. Capt. and Mrs. Robertson are leaving Washington tomorrow for their new post in Montgomery, Ala. Lieut. and Mrs. Scott Dickson, Mrs. Helen Richardson Nugent, wearing a brown print frock, and her sister, Mrs. Virginia Richardson Hammond, in a Dubonnet print dress and taffeta coat, also were there, as were Lieut. Comdr. Tuggle and Lieut. Comdr. Lademan.

Miss Lucille Elliott, in a gown of black taffeta with green dots and a black taffeta coat, was present; Miss Elliott is planning to visit her brother-in-law and sister, Capt. and Mrs. Herbert Vogel, who are sailing on the Republic for their new station at Schofield Barracks in the Hawaaian Islands. She will travel overland and sail August 29 for Honolulu.

Others present last evening were Miss Helen Fish, of Kentucky, wearing a fuchia gown with a blue-gray coat and accessories; Mr. and Mrs. Nick Abbott, Mr. Al Abbott, Mr. James Reed, Mr. Don Reed, Mr. William Briggs, Miss Marjorie Garland, who plans to be among those who will wave farewell to those on the Republic in New York, and Mrs. Williams, who will accompany Miss Parker to New York on Wednesday.

Here From Canal Zone.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wilson, of Balboa Heights, Canal Zone, arrived at the Wardman Park yesterday with their young daughter to spend a week or ten days.

Miss Shouse, Mary Bradley Sail to Europe

Plan to Attend Olympics; Miss Carolyn Wagner Will Be Married.

After a few months in Washington following a trip around the world, Miss Elizabeth Shouse, daughter of Mrs. D. Lawrence Groner, is again on the ocean. She sailed from New York yesterday with Miss Mary Bradley, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Bradley, of Rockville, Md., for Europe to attend the Olympic games.

Her sister, Miss Marian Shouse, who has just returned from the Kentucky mountains with the Frontier Nursing Service, is planning a trip to Connecticut, where she will be a bridesmaid in the wedding of Miss Carolyn Wagner to Mr. Charles Soutter Edgar on September 12.

The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Albert J. M. Wilson in Christ Church, Greenwich.

Miss Shouse and Miss Wagner were classmates at Dana Hall. Miss Wagner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Alfred Wagner, of Greenwich, Conn., and Mr. Edgar is the son of Dr. and Mrs. James Clifton Edgar, also of Greenwich.

Miss Wagner's other attendants will be Mrs. Audrey W. Brooks and Miss Margaret Wilkes, of Greenwich; Miss Jean Fennell, of Scarsdale, N. Y., and Miss Beaven Meyer, of Port Chester, N. Y. Christine Mead, niece of the bride-elect, will be flower girl.

Mr. Edgar will have his brother, Mr. Clifton Edgar, as best man. Mr. Edgar attended St. Paul's School and was graduated from Yale in the class of 1935.

The ushers will be Mr. Joseph W. Wilshire 3d and Mr. Colby M. Chester, of Greenwich; Mr. Thomas Richond, of Glen Head, Long Island; Mrs. Robert M. Krementz, of Montclair, N. J.; Mr. Samuel B. Knight, of Perrysburg, Ohio, and Mr. Joseph F. Feller, jr., of Rochester, N. Y.

Senators to Sail For Europe Today

Copeland, Austin, Hastings and Wives in Party.

Italy, Egypt and Palestine will be visited by three United States Senators and their wives who sail from New York today, aboard the Rex. The group includes Senator and Mrs. Royal S. Copeland, of New York; Senator and Mrs. Warren R. Austin, of Vermont, and Senator and Mrs. Daniel O. Hastings, of Delaware.

After a tour of Italy, Egypt and the Holy Land, they expect to return to this country by way of England and France, arriving home about the middle of September.

Dawes' Daughter To Wed Sept. 12

Invitations have been received in Washington from former Vice President and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Virginia Dawes, to Mr. Richard Thompson Cragg, which will take place the evening of September 12 at the home of Gen. and Mrs. Dawes in Evanston.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Dawes and Mr. Cragg was made several months ago.

Mr. Ayer Here.

Mr. Donald Ayer, of Bangor, Me., is the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Harris and their daughter, Miss Aileen Harris, at their home on Woodland drive.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

With Thousands of Shoe Styles to Choose From, This Woman Has Never Yet Found What She Wants.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have a problem and know of no other place to turn for advice but to you. Out of all the thousands of different types of shoes on the market I am not able to find what I want. This in spite of the fact that I have normal feet. I am looking for a combination of style and true comfort. By style I mean something smooth and close fitting, prettily made of good, fine leather. By true comfort I mean a shoe made of soft leather, not heavy and constricting.

* * * * *

My ideal shoe would be reasonably straight along the inner curve of the foot, from toe to arch. It would have heels both substantially and gracefully made, not over two inches in height. It would be light in weight and would have a pliable, strong sole. Nor would such a shoe be high in price, when all these qualities can be had in low-priced shoes if only the qualifications are properly combined.

* * * *

I am aware of the fact that there is a certain widely advertised shoe on the market which has the aforementioned straight inner line, and that there is another, equally well known, which is made with a pliable sole. But I want these qualifications in one shoe. The human foot is an exceedingly delicate organism, although we have all but forgotten it. When one's feet are shod in becoming, comfortable shoes, one's every movement unconsciously takes on a new spring and grace.

* * * *

I am not a foot sufferer, yet in summer, when I wear light, soft sandals at home, I begin to feel like a different person. I find myself tripping about like a child, and cheerful and untiring in proportion. If only the comfort of such footwear could be combined with a little style—as could so easily be done! Personally, I do not think extremely high heels are pretty, because I cannot dissociate beauty from grace. Yet even high heels can be worn with much more comfort, if shoes of a more sensible design are worn between times.

* * * *

If you cannot tell me where the kind of shoes I have described can be purchased, some of us would like to take up the matter with some shoe manufacturer. Some of the qualities to be desired can be found in the children's departments of shoe stores, but here again, they cannot all be found in one particular shoe. I will greatly appreciate your help. QUESTER.

Parallel Experience.

DEAR QUESTER: All the self-supporting years of my life I, too, have been looking for just the type of shoe you describe. But I have never yet found it. Shoe manufacturers and shoe retailers may challenge my statement, but I don't believe such a shoe has ever been offered in wholesale quantities in the market place. Occasionally and at long intervals I have seen fashion snapshots of women in the smarter magazines who looked to be wearing the kind of footgear you and I have dreamed about: glove fitted, kid glove textured, flexible soled, a happy combination of utility, comfort, style and natural grace.

I may have been the victim of an optical illusion in such instances, of course. Perhaps the shoes which adorned those privileged ladies' feet were no more inspired than those we can find by the score in any bootshop. And yet, on the other hand, it is just possible those shoes were all they seemed to my fascinated eye to be. If so, it is safe to assume they were made-to-order merchandise fashioned to suit the intelligent taste of some discriminating and exacting woman who was in the enviable position of being able to buy the answer to her every material wish.

* * * *

Which gets us exactly nowhere. Or does it? Have you ever gone into a better-class shop or shoe department, asked for the buyer or designer, and had a heart-to-heart talk with that worthy about the shoe you have in mind? Some years ago I did just such a thing, and the result was a pair of walking shoes (to match a tweed suit extravagance of mine) which turned out to be the most satisfactory pair of walking shoes I ever owned. They lasted for seasons; they kept their looks to the last; they were comfortable in the extreme, a veritable benediction to city-tired feet.

* * * *

Why don't you set your brains and hands to work and make an understandable sketch of the kind of shoes you have in mind? Why not make an intensive study of the materials which go into shoemaking? Then you will be in a position to talk to retailers in their own language, and possibly—by flourishing your checkbook—prevail upon them to make you up the kind of shoes you years for. The initial expense may be a little breathtaking, but in the long run it may be just as economical as buying the what-have-you variety. I was reading in a smart fashion magazine the other day that well dressed Englishmen are accustomed to paying $35 to $45 a pair for custom built shoes, but that these same shoes, kept polished to a mirror-like shine, last their owners 10 years or so. Bags, Shoes, Gloves Form Triple Alliance

Definite Waistlines Bring Belts Into More Prominence.

Fall fashions at their sources—the markets are being surveyed by Miss Ethel Ehlen, The Post Fashion Editor. Miss Ehlen has been accompanying Washington buyers on their shopping trips in New York to get first-hand information of what Washington women will wear this fall. The following article is the second of a series on this subject.

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The eternal feminine question, "What is the secret of chic?" is usually answered by fashionists and designers by one word—"accessories." That is why the Fashion Accessories Show held here this week is of special interest to the woman planning her fall wardrobe.

With the season's general mode gone luxurious, accessories naturally follow suit. They are characterized by brilliance, color and individuality. And best of all, they are designed for the woman with average purse as well as the one with plenty of money.

The woman who is beginning to think about her shoes, gloves and handbag for the coming season (and what woman is not?) might well consider the idea of having these form a triple alliance. Many such sets are shown, all fashioned of the same material and with the same basic design repeated throughout. Suede is a favorite material for such sets.

Points While Buying.

Following are some points to keep in mind in buying fall accessories either to impart smartness to a new dress or modernize an old one:

Handbags: Many of daytime bags are of gabardine to match the fall shoes which are being shown extensively in this material. The bags are leather trimmed. Evening bags are elaborate, in rich brocades, rhinestone decorated. The newest have scissors frames. Tiny pouches of lame in gold and silver are designed for powder, but could be used for coin purses as well.

Gloves: Fabric gloves have assumed a smarter appearance for the coming season by the addition of leather cuffs, buttons and wrist bands. The vogue for colored gloves continues.

Belts: With the waistline becoming definite, belts are very important. They are both wide and narrow and of suede, dull and shiny leathers in black and brilliant colors. Many have metal and covered buckles in round, oblong and square contours. Belts will be ensembled with handbags, shoes and gloves, or with shoulder corsages of the same color and material.

Jewelry: Pearls have staged a dramatic comeback. Since so many of the new fall frocks have tiny, unadorned high necklines the answer to a chic costume finishing touch is a choker necklace of pearls. There are copper bronze gunmetal and beige pearls in one, two and three-strand versions, with matching bracelets if you are ensemble minded. For those who crave complication and individuality there are copies of old Hindu and Chinese necklaces. Cayenne, a new color to wear with black, is shown in jewelry handbags and gloves; the jewelry, a sturdy composition, is effective in massive looking bracelets. As a complement to tweeds and woolens, there is wooden jewelry in highly polished brown tones. Suede with metal is another new and important note in sports type jewelry.

Handkerchiefs: With the coronation of the King of England not far away, colors and royal emblems of this house have not only been transferred to clothes but to handkerchiefs—both linen daytime affairs and chiffons for evening. White kerchiefs, so they told me, are almost a thing of the past. With color so rampant in the mode each season, the modern woman prefers to match this accessory with the rest of her costume. Consequently, the new fall offerings are gay squares of color with unique patterns in flowers, geometrical designs and animals (particularly dogs), in two or three contrasting tones, purses as well.

New Compacts Thin.

Compacts: The fat compact like the fat woman, is out. The sophisticated compact is extremely thin and opens easily with a slight flip of the finger—hence no broken finger nails. Black is the leading color.

The children, too, have been represented in the accessory show, with clever little fitted handbags (including pads, pencils and other school items); unique belts of patent leather, and, kerchiefs with bright-colored animals embroidered or appliqued in one corner.

Since numerous buyers from Washington have been attending the accessory show all of these accoutrements to fall smartness will soon be making their appearance in Washington stores.

Both for daytime chic and evening glamour accessories hold the secret this fall. The white pique collar and flower add a striking note to the suit below worn by Claire Dodd. The vogue for elaborate jewelry is illustrated in the silver and sapphire accoutrements which complement the black crepe dinner gown at right worn by Anita Colby.

Perfect Omelet Recipe Is Sought

Many a voluntary summer fast has been broken by the appearance of a perfect omelet. The wise housewife knows that when all other hot dishes fail to appeal to the jaded apptite a delicious, carefully prepared omelet will turn the trick. So the omelet has been chosen as the theme of The Post recipe contest for next week.

A perfect omelet is a culinary achievement of which any cook may feel proud. Real art is employed, for example, in producing an omelet that is light, fine textured, not watery and endowed with a standupish quality that permits carrying from oven to table and serving without the slightest sign of sinking.

What is the secret formula you employ in turning out a perfect omelet? Send your recipe to Dorothea Duncan in care of The Washington Post. It may win a prize. Cash awards will be offered for the five best recipes. The first prize is $5, second $3, and the three remaining prizes $1 each.

Be sure to mail your recipes in time to reach this office not later than next Saturday morning.

OFFICE-WORKER HELPED BY NATURAL LAXATIVE FOOD

ALL-BRAN Corrected Her Constipation*

Here is her voluntary letter: "For years I was a sufferer from constipation.* It was necessary to take a laxative every night before retiring. I was an office-worker, and did not get much exercise.

"Some one told me that ALL-BRAN was a good remedy for constipation.* I bought a box, and found that it helped my condition. Since then I have not had to invest in laxatives."—Mrs. Margaret Jones, 911 E. Laura Street, Clearwater, Florida.

Scientific tests have shown that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN corrects constipation* safely and pleasantly. This delicious cereal supplies mild "bulk," as well as vitamin B and iron. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Wouldn't you rather enjoy this natural food than abuse your system with harmful pills and drugs?

Protect your family from the dangers of common constipation.* Serve ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity. Either as a cereal with milk or cream, or cooked in tempting muffins, breads, etc. Recipes on every package.

Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Mixed Grill Is Capital's Favorite

Meat and Vegetable Dish Easily Prepared for Simple Main Course.

By Dorothea Duncan.

THE MIXED GRILL, is always popular and it has been adopted by many Washington women as a favorite type of summer meal, because it is easily prepared and affords a main course that can be cooked all at once.

A mixed grill, for those who have never prepared or eaten one, is a pleasing combination of chops and vegetables or fruits that have been cooked together by direct heat. Meat and fruit or vegetables after cooking are served from the same platter, which has been garnished with crisp, bright greens such as parsley or watercress.

Grilling, which is another term for broiling, in early days meant threading meat onto a green stick and holding it over an open fire until it was cooked. This is still the usual method on picnics, but for indoor meals, the meat is placed on the broiler rack and placed directly below the flame or heating element.

Lamb chops, since they are so tender and so delicate in flavor that they can be served with practically and vegetables or fruits, are an excellent center for the mixed grill. Either rib or loin chops may be used.

Boiled peeled potatoes topped with grated cheese or butter, tomato halves covered with crumbs, Brussels sprouts that have been parboiled until almost tender, mushroom buttons and many other vegetables may be broiled with the chops. Canned peach, apricot or Bartlett pear halves, canned pineapple rings or spears, and bananas split lengthwise are the favored fruits for a mixed grill. Besides the fruits or vegetables or an attractive combination of both, bacon slices or small link sausages are also added to the chops while they are broiling.

One of the most popular combinations for a mixed grill, however, is possible this month. This combination includes fresh corn and home-grown tomatoes, both of which are appearing at their best this month and can be found in plentiful array in Washington stores. The grill includes lamb chops, of course; little sausage links, cheese-topped potato slices and whole tomatoes stuffed with golden bantam or sweet corn.

The chops, and loin ones are used for this grill, should be cut at least three-quarters of an inch thick. When cut this thickness they require from 10 to 12 minutes for broiling. The broiler should be thoroughly preheated with the regulator set to "high," and the rack arranged with the meat and vegetables as illustrated by the accompanying picture. When the oven is heated, place the rack several inches below the direct flame, far enough away, at any rate, so that by the time the tops of the chops are browned they are also cooked part way through. Season cooked side with salt and pepper and turn chops. If the chops are thicker than three-quarters of an inch, they should be partially broiled before the other items are added to the grill.

The whole tomatoes have been hallowed out, filled with freshly cut corn and dotted with butter. The potatoes are whole also, but a small slice has been cut from top and bottom to give them on one side a better surface on which to stand, and on the other a larger surface for the sprinkling of grated cheese.

Robertson Reconsiders, Will Use Owens in 400-Meter Relay

Nazi, Dutch Threats Are Reason

Track Coach Learns Germans Have Built Up Sensational Four.

Negro to Be Leadoff Man Because of Ability to Take the Turn.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Aug. 7.—Lawson Robertson, coach of America's Olympic track and field forces, decided definitely tonight to call on Jesse Owens, Ohio State's Negro triple-winner, for duty in the 400-meter relay competition tomorrow and Sunday.

With ten first places already sewed up for the best track and field showing since the 1912 Olympics at Stockholm, Robertson decided to overlook no bets and summoned Owens back into action despite the fact the Negro already has won the 100 meter, 200 meter and broad jump championships.

The information that the Germans quietly have built up a quartet which has been clocked in sensational time as well as the obvious Dutch threat, prompted Robertson to change his mind after he previously had said he would not call on Jesse for relay duty.

Owens to Be Leadoff.

Owens' coach, Larry Snyder, said he expected Owens to get the starting assignment due especially to his ability to negotiate the turn. Snyder said he thought Ralph Metcalfe, Sam Stoller and Frank Wykoff would handle the baton in that order behind Owens.

"That's swell news," he told Robertson. "I haven't known what to do with myself since Wednesday. I'll sure hustle around that corner."

Owens' nomination will give the Cleveland star a chance for his fourth gold medal, thereby equaling Paavo Nurmi's 1924 achievement which included the peerless Finn's triumph in the 3,000 meter team race as well as three individual events.

Draper, Glickman Out.

Robertson delayed naming the line-ups fully for either relay until tomorrow when the trials will be held. The likelihood that neither Foy Draper nor Marty Glickman would get their expected assignments in the sprint relay forecast critical reaction among those Americans feeling that as many of the boys as possible should get a chance to compete.

Robertson's attitude was: "I'd like to let everybody run but we're here to win all the events possible. They are likely to criticize any decision I may make, but my job is to put the best possible teams in the race."

Luvalle Is Out.

The head coach lost no time deciding not to use Jimmy Luvalle, Los Angeles Negro, in the 1,600-meter relay due to his shaky finish in the 400-meter final this afternoon. Meanwhile the possibility loomed that Archie Williams, University of California Negro who won the 400-meter title, might be named along with Al Fitch, of South Pasadena, Calif.; Eddie O'Brien, of Atlantic City, and Robert Young, of Bakersfield, Calif. The American 400-meter team was drawn in the first heat in to-

Radiophoto: Another Negro Scores for U. S. in Olympic 400

India's Hockey Team Defeats U. S., 7-0

American Goalie Has Busy Afternoon Keeping Score Down.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Aug. 7.—Swinging their sticks desperately against hopeless odds, the United State field hockey team today held India's champion team to a 7-0 victory in Olympic competition.

It was India's game from the outset, however. Phenomenal acrobatics by Paul Fentriss, American goalie from Hubbard Woods, Ill., was all that kept India's score from ascending into stratosphere figures.

In previous games between the two teams at Los Angeles in 1932, the Indians won 22-0, and 17-0, so the Americans today left the field much encouraged.

Practically the whole game was played within 20 yards of the American goal. The Indian attack was simply too fleet-footed and nimble. In Fentriss, however, they met a stubborn obstacle. After he had made dozens of brilliant stops cheating Jafar, Roopsingh, Chand or Cullen out of what seemed certain goals, an Indian rooter yelled from the stands:

"What's the matter? Can't you chaps beat one man?"

Finally, they wore him down, however. Three shots got by him into the cage in the first half and 4 more in the final period.

Meanwhile, India's goalie, Michie, was having a dull afternoon. He leaned against one end of the wire cage idly swinging his stick and gazing at the sky, where a billboard airplane was dragging "Visit Leipzig Fair" through the clouds.

Once during the last half he had to come back to earth and watch the puck, which ventured down to his half of the field. But much of the time he had his back turned to the game.

Women's Track and Field.

Germany, 44; Poland, 14; Italy, 13; United States, 12; Japan, 7; Canada, 4; Austria, 3; Holland, 2, and Sweden, 1.

Polo.

Argentina, defeating Great Britain in decisive match, 11 to 0, won Olympic gold medal. Great Britain took the silver with next two places, awaiting the result of today's Hungary-Mexico match.

Yachts.

United States continued to fare badly, finishing eighth in 8-meter class, seventh in 6-meter class, ninth in star class, and fifteenth in monotype division.

Pistol Shooting.

Ullman, of Sweden, won the precision shooting match with new Olympic record total of 559. Krempel, of Germany, was second, and Desjamonnieres, of France, third with 544 and 540, respectively. Elliott Jones, Greenwich, Conn., scored 536 for sixth position.

Smallwood Undergoes Appendicitis Operation

Berlin, Aug. 7 (AP).—Harold Smallwood, University of Southern California quarter-miler, from Ventura, Calif., who today underwent a successful emergency operation for the removal of his appendix, will probably return to America with the American team, August 28, Dr. Graeme M. Hammond, of New York, announced tonight.

The attack occurred on the morning of the semi-finals and finals of the 400 meters event, in which Smallwood was scheduled to run.

German Says Owens Could Be Really Good

Berlin, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—The great German athletic trainer, Hans Thiele, today said Jesse Owens, was capable of a 27-foot 10-inch broad jump, a foot more than Owens' world record.

Williams Takes 400; Finns Dominate 5,000

man, gaining steadily after trailing Clark by 239 points after the 100-meter sprint and the broad jump, came with such a rush that the Coloradoan is a strong favorite to crown his first year in decathlon competition as world champion.

Morris started slowly, missing his best mark by four-tenths of a second when he was clocked in only 11.1 seconds for the 100 meters, but this was good enough for second place behind Clark's sparkling 10.9—three-tenths of a second faster than the previous decathlon record, set by Harold Osborn in 1924.

Jumps 25 Feet.

Thereafter, Glenn showed his class, winning the shot-put with 14.10 meters (46 feet 2 33-64 inches), tying for second in the high jump with 1.85 meters (6 feet 27-32 inches), and taking fifth in the broad jump, 6.97 meters (22 feet 10 13-32 inches).

Clark capitalized on his speed and jumping ability, but his weakness in the shot-put tipped off the tough time he'll have keeping up with Morris in the strenuous last day's field events.

The Californian won his broad jump specialty with a leap of 25 feet, nearly a foot short of his mark in the final tryouts, even though the best ever seen in the Olympics. He tied Parker and Armin Guehl, of Switzerland, at 1.80 meters (5 feet 10⅞ inches), for fifth place in the high jump, and did only 12.68 meters (41 feet 7 7-32 inches), in the shot-put.

Dutchman Wins One Eevent.

Parker captured his heat in the 100-meter sprint in 11.4 second; placed second in the broad jump with 7:35 meters (24 feet 1⅜ inches); sixth in the shot-put with 13.52 meters (44 feet 4 19-64 inches), and ran the 400 in 53.3 seconds, good for only 701 points, as compared with 910 scored by Morris in this event.

The only event the Americans didn't top was the high jump in which Brasser was best. The Dutch athlete cleared the bar at 1.90 meters (6 feet 2 13-16 inches).

Sandwiched in between the decationer's exploits were a swift succession of developments. Williams' sparkling 400-meter conquest of Great Britain's flashy Arthur Godfrey Brown in 46.5 seconds, with Jimmy Luvalle, another California Negro, third, followed an emergency appendectomy which kept the third American entry, Harold Smallwood, of Ventura, Calif., from a chance to fight for a place in the final. Smallwood was reported to be resting comfortably.

Brown's Tactics Bad.

Faulty tactics by Brown, who had been marked the man the Americans had to beat, cost the British ace a good winning chance. Living up to expectations, Brown shot off the marks into the lead and built up a 4-meter margin through the halfway mark.

Lengthening his stride, Williams followed in hot pursuit and overtook Brown, showing in front by two meters entering the last straightaway. Then Brown took up the chase and apparently timed his closing rush too late to nip Williams, who won by about 2 meters.

William Roberts, another Briton, nearly caught Luvalle, who won third place by a scant 2 feet although both were clocked in 46.8 seconds.

The dusky Williams ran all out as he turned in a fine foot-racing job but both he and Luvalle were exhausted by their efforts and flopped to the turf after the race.

Finns Take Second Place.

Finland's acquisition of the second distance racing prize as well as 16 additional points moved the team into second place with a total of 57¼ points, displacing Germany which failed to increase her previous aggregate of 54¾ and gave 80,000 spectators little to cheer about.

Germany's javelin champion, Bernhardt Stoeck, scratched from the decathlon along with the injured Hans Sievert much to the disappointment of some rooters who were further disgruntled by loud speakers carrying an official request they desist from the American style of whistling.

Accustomed to obeying orders, German fans loosed no more shrill accompaniments to American performances such as reached a climax during the final pole vaulting competition two days ago.

The Finns ran themselves as well as most of the opposition ragged in the 5,000-meter final. They worked out on Lash so thoroughly the American ace gave up the ghost on the eighth lap after setting the major share of the pace for the first seven rounds.

They then subdued Japan's Murakoso for the second time in six days, but finally tripped themselves in a scramble for positions starting the next to last lap.

Ilmari Salminen, winner of the 10,000 race Sunday, who had elbowed Lash a bit vigorously thereby contributing to the American's discouragement, was the victim of a collision with Hoeckert. Hoeckert lost ground as the result of the accident, but quickly regained his stride and overhauled his mate, Lehtinen, who capitalized on the situation and forged to the front. Hoeckert closed strongly to win by 15 meters over Lehtinen and 25 Over Jonsson.

Zamperini Is Eighth.

The collision left Salminen groggy. He got up unsteadily before resuming the race and finished a bad sixth. Thus, Finland apparently lost a chance to sweep all the medals in this race as she did in the 10,000-meter merry-go-round.

Taking second place, Lehtinen was closed in 14:25.8, fur and two-tenths seconds faster than he did at Los Angeles. Jonsson, who won a close fight from Murakoso for the third medal, was timed in 14.29, as the Japanese, in 14.30, tied Lehtinen's former mark. Jan Noji, of Poland, was fifth in 14:33.4, as Salminen trailed him by almost six seconds.

Zamperini, who ran next to last the first few laps, sprinted the last two laps, but it was too late. His stretch drive just missed overtaking Italy's Humberto Cerati who was seventh. Zamperini's time was 14:46.8.

Triple Play Aids Tribe to Beat Chisox, 8-1

Victory Puts Indians Game and Half Ahead of Sox in Second Place.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Aug. 7.—Aided by the first triple play of the season here, Dennis Galehouse turned back Chicago's bid for second place in the American League today by limiting the White Sox to seven hits. The Indians won, 8 to 1.

The triple play in the ninth inning ended the game. Appling walked to open the inning and went to second when Hayes singled to center. Tony Piet then lined to Trosky. Trosky's throw to Bill Knickerbocker doubled Appling off second. Knickerbocker then whipped the ball back to Trosky before Hayes could scramble back to first base to complete the triple play.

Joe Becker, catcher, and Outfielder Joe Vosmik shared hitting honors for the day. Becker drove in four runs with two doubles, each made with the bases loaded. Vosmik also brought in four runs with two singles and a long fly.

The Indians took the lead in the first inning on a walk, three singles and one of Becker's doubles, scoring three runs.

The White Sox scored their only run in the eighth inning after cliff singled, Grube reaching third. Grube doubled to rightfield. Radkreevich added another single, scoring Grube, but the brief rally ended when Rosenthal grounded to Trosky and Bonura flied to centerfield.

Von Cramm Ill, Nazis Won't Seek U.S. Net Title

Paris, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Plans for the German Davis Cup team to play in the United States tennis championships at Forest Hills were abandoned today because of the illness of Baron Gottfried von Cramm, Nazi ace who has pneumonia.

The French tennis federation picked a four-man team of the veteran Jacques Brugnon, Bernard Destremeau, Yvon Petra and Pierre Pelizza. Brugnon, captain of the team, hopes to arrange another team match between the American and French young players.

Pro Gets 145-Yard Ace With Putter

Deal, N. J., Aug. 7 (U.P.).—George Fotheringham, Hollywood golf club professional, walked up to the fourth tee, dropped a ball and idly hit it with his putter. It bounced on the green, 145 yards away, and rolled into the hole.

Cubs Finally Halt Cards; Win, 14-5

Hartnett Injures Foot, Lost Indefinitely; Allen Is Hero.

Cards Use Five Hurlers, and Martin; Cubs Make 18 Hits.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—The Cubs regained their batting form and won a ball game, 14 to 5, from the Cardinals today, finally stopping the pennant-bound rush of the gas house gang, but in winning they suffered their biggest loss of the season.

A foul tip from the bat of St. Louis Pitcher George Earnshaw hit Gabby Hartnett's foot in the second inning and injured it so severely that the ace receiver had to be taken to a hospital. Pending an X-ray examination to determine whether a fracture occurred, it was impossible to say when Gabby would return to action.

The Cubs, after dropping three straight and the National League lead to the Cards, landed on five St. Louis pitchers with an 18-hit attack today, sewing up the victory with an eight-run barrage off Roy Parmelee in the fifth.

Pepper Martin Hurls.

Manager Frankie Frisch of the Cards, after following Earnshaw to the mound with Flint Rhem, Roy Parmelee and Jim Winford, finally threw Outfielder Pepper Martin against the Cubs to wind up in the last two innings. He allowed but one hit.

The Cards were out in front for the first three innings, knocking Lon Warneke out of the box in the third with a three-run uprising, after scoring twice in the second. Clay Bryant and Tex Carlton, the latter getting credit for the win, finished up the Cubs' mound assignment.

Ethan Allen, with a triple and two singles, and Billy Herman with three singles led the Cubs' attack.

Vanderbilt's Horse Gets 143-Pound Handicap for Saratoga Race.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 7.—Although assigned the crushing weight of 143 pounds, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Discovery goes after his third victory in eight days tomorrow when he meets five other good handicap performers, one of them a stablemate, in the mile and three-sixteenths of the $7,500 Merchants and Citizens Stake at Saratoga.

The big chestnut won the Saratoga Handicap under 132 pounds last Saturday and took the Wilson Stakes with 126 in the saddle Wednesday. The victory in the Wilson tacked 3 additional pounds on the original weight of 140 allotted the Vanderbilt ace.

Although Discovery has failed when asked to carry as much as 140 pounds this year, he figures to be a mighty tough horse to beat. The son of Display never was better, as indicated in his galloping victory in the Wilson, in which he beat his stablemate, Purple Knight, and St. Bernard.

Purple Knight Has 103.

Purple Wnight again will accompany Discovery to the post under the light weight of 103 pounds. Arrayed against the Vanderbilt entry are four lightly-weighted horses—Dewitt Page's Mantagna, 103; Mrs. John D. Hertz's Count Arthur, 107; Mrs. William Ziegler's Esposa and W. M. Jefford's Giant Killer, 100 each.

Also on the Saratoga card is the $7,500 Saratoga Special—a six-furlong dash for 2-year-olds in which the winner takes all. The race has attracted only five juveniles, many of the more highly regarded of the division being kept in their barns for richer engagements later in the meeting.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Forty Winks tops the field in a wide-open betting affair, which also brings into action Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Top Radio, John Hay Whitney's Flying Scot, Warren Wright's Galsun and Vanderbilt's Swift Ply.

Nats Victors, 3-2, Behind Whitehill

By Shirley Povich.
Sports Editor of The Post.

Earl Whitehill brought both his pitching arm and his bat to bear against the Boston Red Sox yesterday and personally ushered the Nats into a ten-inning triumph over their nouveau riche playmates.

The veteran left-hander two innings before saw himself deprived of a 2-1 victory in regulation innings when Buddy Lewis fumbled a ground ball, so the Red Sox were enjoying an unmerited 2-2 tie when Whitehill appeared in the batters' box in the tenth.

Two were out, and Catcher Walter Millies had just singled to center for the fifth hit off Wes Ferrell, who had shut the Nats out since the first inning. But Ferrell's first pitch to Whitehill never reached the plate. The black-thatched southpaw who laughs at his batting average, laid his stick against the ball, it traveled into left center field for a two-base hit, and Washington won the ball game, 3 to 2.

All of the figures except the final score were in favor of the Red Sox. They outhit the Nats, 12 to 6, and were benefitted by three Washington errors, but when hits could be translated into precious runs, there were no hits forthcoming against Whitehill. Twelve Sox were left on base.

Until Millies and Whitehill staged their two-man rebellion in the tenth, Ferrell was mowing down the Nats with great regularity. From the second inning through the ninth, he gave up only two hits, and in seven of those innings he held 'em hitless.

Overcoming their first-inning jinx when Whitehill held the Sox scoreless despite the fact that the first two batters reached base, the Nats bounced back with two runs against Ferrell in their first turn at bat. Ben Chapman launched the game with a triple to center and scored on Kuhel's long triple over Werber's head. Reynolds' fly scored Kuhel.

Foxx Hits 32d Homer.

It was just a breeze thereafter for Ferrell, until the tenth, but Whitehill was knee deep in trouble in virtually every inning. He saw half of his 2-to-0 lead vanish in the fourth, when Jimmy Foxx lifted his thirty-second home run of the season far into the leftfield bleachers, and the Red Sox had the tying run on base in both the fifth and sixth.

They also had the tying runs on

Sharkey Injures Eye While Boxing

Orangeburg, N. Y., Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Jack Sharkey, training for his coming match with Joe Louis, sustained a slight scratch on his left eye-lid today while sparring with Eddie Mader, of New York.

Mader butted the former heavyweight champion during an exchange of blows, but Sharkey yelled "come on and finish the round," and tore into Mader for all he was worth.

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Joe Louis unloosed all his viciousness of his sparmates today, knocking out Bill Sears, pummeling Carl Hyde to the floor and battering Tiger Ry Williams and Jesse Coldwell unmercifully.

"It's the best workout I've seen Louis turn in since he was training for Retzlaff last January," remarked promoter Mike Jacobs. After the sparring Louis worked one round each with the big and little bags, then skipped rope.

Welcome, Red Sox

Naismith, Inventor of Basketball, Honored In Berlin as Game Makes Its Olympic Debut

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Aug. 7.—In a four-ring circus augmented by a colorful ceremony, in which all countries ceremoniously honored Dr. James A. Naismith, of the University of Kansas, founder of the game, the Olympiad's first basketball competition started today with ten games, all of which ran true to form.

Interest from the American standpoint was limited to the fact that the United States and the Philippines both drew a bye.

What developed startlingly, however, was the charge by Jim Tobin, New York basketball official, who is one of the Olympiad referees, that Dr. Naismith had apparently been completely ignored by the American Olympic committee, headed by Avery Brundage.

"Dr. Naismith arrived in Germany without even a pass to see a game," Tobin said. "We managed to get him a pass for all games, but it was not through the American Olympic committee's efforts. He was ignored there and his name stricken from the pass list.

"What's more, no ceremony was planned for Dr. Naismith, who is naturally the most important figure in basketball."

Nevertheless, the colorful, if poorly attended, event, was arranged on short notice and held in the expansive "Hall of German Sports," where a miniature opening day parade of nations and speeches by Dr. Naismith and leading foreign officials entertained a crowd of 200.

Dr. Naismith made the trip on funds provided by American basketball fans. Tobin said Naismith understood about the incident, but the doctor remained quiet and showed a happy face as the players of 22 nations flocked about him at the close of the program.

Before marching out, Naismith walked by each group, met the representative and received the cheers of each nation, ranging from Mexico's "Alabeebo" to Japan's "Banzai."

Among the ten games played, most interesting were Canada's 24-17 victory over Brazil, and Japan's 35-19 conquest of China.

The luck of the draw sent Japan and China together after both had traveled half way across the world to the games. The Japs used a tall 6-foot bespectacled center named Kanokogi to good advantage over the generally taller Chinese.

Three games tomorrow between the losers of today's games draw the first round to a conclusion. Under the complicated system, the losers in the first round are matched, with the winner of the play-off games entering the second round with a clear record. The same procedure is repeated in the second round, but thereafter, under the explanation offered by Robert Duis, a Canadian student who is Germany's basketball authority, straight elimination will be followed.

The United States drew a bye. Their opponents from Spain did not arrive because of the civil war. Second round opponents will not be determined until the conclusion of the first round.

While the start of the contest is the high light of the sport at the moment, some interest is being shown in the start of the International Basketball Federation Congress tomorrow, in which the most important business is the consideration of poss

4 Local Players Among 8 in Mid-Atlantic Net Quarterfinals

Hunt to Face Lott in Battle Of Promise

By John R. Vosburgh.

Four out-of-town players and four Washington players remained in the running for the Middle Atlantic tennis championship and the Washington Post Challenge Bowl at the close of play yesterday. All eight of the men competing in the quarter-finals today are seeded entries.

In one of the most promising matches Washington has seen in many years, Gilbert Hunt, seeded No. 2 in the Washington list, faces Hunter Lott, tall Philadelphian, seeded No. 1 in the out-of-town list, at 4 p. m. Hunt gained the round of eight yesterday by mopping up Herb Shenkin in 25 minutes, 6—1, 6—1. Shenkin had eliminated Alex Keiles, of Baltimore, No. 4 seeded visiting player, on his way to the fourth round.

The other three matches likewise find the Capital's stalwarts pitted against the visiting challengers. At 2 p. m., Thomas S. Markey, third seeded Washington entry, collides with Hubert Simmons, 22-year-old Harrisburg, Pa., champion and No. 6 seeded out-of-towner.

McElvenny Is Underdog.

At the same hour, Ralph McElvenny, No. 4 seeded local player, meets Frank Goeltz, of Wilkesbarre, Pa. At 4, Dooley Mitchell plays Lieut. John K. McCue, of Annapolis. Mitchell is the top-seeded man in the Washington list. McCue is seeded No. 2 in the out-of-town ratings and Goeltz, No. 3.

All of the Washington players are favored to gain the semifinals with the exception of McElvenny. Goeltz is a slight choice to topple the fighting Security and Exchange Commission lawyer. McElvenny was given a tough battle by Frank Shore, No. 6 seeded Washington man, yesterday at Columbia Country Club, before winning, 6—1, 9—7.

Markey showed a sudden reversal of form which won him two matches in a brief period. Deadlocked with Alan Staubly, 6—2, 2—6, when darkness caused a halt Wednesday, the former Notre Dame tennis captain yesterday smothered his hard-hitting adversary, 6—0, in the final set. Then he tore into the veteran Tom Mangan to gain the quarter-finals with a 6—2, 6—2, victory.

McCue Wins Fine Match.

Mangan had previously resumed his third-round match with Robert N. Bradley where they left off Wednesday at 7—7 and went on to win, 9—7, 6—2.

One of the day's outstanding matches brought the elimination of Ed Mather, veteran Texan, and seeded No. 6 in the Washington list, at the hands of the able Lieut. McCue, 5—7, 6—2, 6—4. Mitchell turned in an impressive win over the unseeded but well-equipped Ray Stocklinski, 6—4, 6—4, and Simmons, youthful Harrisburg champion, downed Lieut. Comdr. D. C. Redgrave, 1—6, 6—1, 6—2. Redgrave had gained the fourth round by upsetting Rickey Willis, seeded collegian in the Washington ranks.

Hunt Toys With Shenkin.

Hunt virtually toyed with Shenkin despite the latter's bullet-like forehand. In four games the 190-pound Shenkin had leads of 40—0 only to have Hunt bring forth a sparkling battery of shots to take all of them. Hunt's chief worry today is Lott's terrific service. It was the powerful delivery of the 6-foot 3-inch Philadelphian which carried him to his straight set win three days ago over Tony Latona, No. 5 seeded local player.

McCue's faster court coverage spelled the lethargic Mather's defeat. The Naval officer had two set points in the first chapter only to drop the set. His shrewd offensive, consistent cross-court shots and relentless ball retrieving were too much for the lanky former doubles partner of Wilmer Allison.

Shore, former University of North Carolina player, used his fast-skidding chop effectively against McElvenny and took a 6—5 lead in the second set only to lose his service. McElvenny's volleying was the margin of victory.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Third Round.

Fourth Round.

Markey defeated Mangan, 6—2, 6—2; Hubert Simmons (Harrisburg, Pa.), defeated Lieut. Comdr. D. C. Redgrave, 1—6, 6—1, 6—2; Gilbert Hunt defeated Herbert Shenkin, 6—1, 6—1; Dooley Mitchell defeated Ray Stocklinski, 6—4, 6—4; Ralph McElvenny defeated Frank Shore, 6—1, 9—7; Lieut. John K. McCue (Annapolis) defeated Edward C. Mather, 5—7, 6—2, 6—4.

MOHAWK MIDGETS PLAY.

The Mohawk Midgets meet the Benning A. C. in a Columbian Athletic League game on the South Ellipse, at 1 p. m. today.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

I may be wrong, which would occasion no surprise, but I thought I saw evidence at Griffith Stadium yesterday that Joseph Edward Cronin is going the way of all baseball flesh that can't keep up with the duties of playing shortstop.

When his Red Sox took up their position in the field in the first inning, Cronin didn't trudge out to his customary shortstop post, but halted at third base, spat on his hands, and made ready to play that position for the first time in his major league career.

POVICH.

That appeared to be the tip-off—the first admission by Cronin, himself, of a fact that has been apparent to fans throughout the circuit for the past two season—that the Red Sox manager has slowed to the extent that he is no longer an acceptable big league shortstop.

Third base has stood as the last port of call for fading big league infielders for years. When the spring begins to leave the legs, when that quick start so necessary to covering ground and outsmarting base hits is no longer at the infielder's command, then third base represents a refuge.

Jimmy Dykes made the change years ago. He was playing a fine brand of shortstop and second base for the Athletics when he began to slip. But Connie Mack liked his throwing arm and his hitting power and converted him into a third baseman and almost ten years later he is still doing an acceptable job at third for Chicago.

Third base is where Rogers Hornsby ended up, too, you remember. For a decade he was a swell second baseman with the Cardinals until he slowed to the extent he was letting in as many runs as he drove in. But when he took over the management of the Browns and inserted himself in the line-up in an effort to inject his own heavy hitting in the team's attack, it was at third base that he played.

Because, as Hornsby himself said at the time with rare frankness, third base is the easiest job on the infield. "At third base, you either come up with hard hit balls or you don't," Hornsby said.

"No third baseman in the world could field those hard hit balls that are hit a couple of feet to the right or left. They are base hits anyway. Third base is too close to the plate. But the shortstop always has a chance to cut down those kind of balls and the shortstop who can cover ground is a great asset. That job is no place for a slow man."

But Joe Cronin's case is the strangest of them all. From 1931 to 1935 he was the greatest of all contemporary shortstops. He could go to his right for ground balls or glide to his left like some merciless wraith. Hard hit shots he gobbled up with his glove. The only weakness he ever had was on slow-hit balls directly at him.

But the Cronin of 1935 and 1936 has been a bunglesome sort and slow-footed in the bargain. He realized it himself, probably, last year when at the fag-end of the season before he knew the team was going to come up with Jimmy Foxx at the start of the new year, he attempted to play first base. And there is evidence, too, that he realized it at the end of the season when the Red Sox included Eric McNair among their purchases because McNair was by trade a shortstop.

Incidentally, there is small wonder that Tom Yawkey, owner of the Boston club, bought Cronin from the Nats at the end of the 1934 season even at a quarter-million price tag. If ever a man should have been impressed with Cronin's talents, then that man was Yawkey.

Because Yawkey had looked down on the Fenway Park diamond for two years from his royal box on top of the roof and seen young Mr. Cronin play a brand of shortstop that deserved mention in the same breath with Hans Wagner. Unfailing, Cronin was at his best whenever the Washington team played at Boston. He was the author of impossible, unconscious stops and throws, he peppered the short left field fence with base hits and he never made a mistep in Fenway Park. Honest.

But if it is his inability to play shortstop now that Cronin is admitting by his transfer to third base, then he can afford to make the admission. Because his iron-clad, five-year contract with the Sox at $30,000 per annum still has three full seasons to run and a renewal of that contract depends not upon Cronin's performance in the field, but on the team's percentage figures to the right of the won and lost column.

In Short—

The word has gone out from American League headquarters that announcers at the ball park are forbidden in the future to broadcast the names of the umpires who are officiating . . . on the theory that fans will not thus be reminded that their pet hates are on the premises and call 'em by name . . . When the Red Sox traveled from St. Louis to Chicago by airplane, they sought to keep it a secret inasmuch as League President Will Harridge was in St. Louis . . . and might frown upon the idea . . . when their plan accidentally reached the ears of Harridge, he confounded 'em by asking if there were an extra seat in the plane for himself . . . Members of the Detroit Tigers, except the six who attended, are rueing their absence from a dinner tendered by Chevrolet dealers in Detroit . . . every Detroit player who was in attendance received a brand-new motor car from their hosts.

Giants Defeat Phils, 9-3, On Fourth Inning Rally

Philadelphia, Aug. 7 (AP).—The New York Giants put together eight hits for seven runs in the fourth inning today to clinch a 9-to-3 victory over the Phillies, chalk up their fifth straight triumph, and pick up more ground on the National League leaders.

The win was the eighteenth for the Giants in their last 22 games. Lefty Al Smith, although batted from the mound in the eighth inning, when the Phils scored all their runs, received credit for his eleventh pitching success of the season.

The big Giant rally was started off by Jim Ripple, who only a few minutes before had crashed into the centerfield bleachers during the Phils' third inning. He singled to lead off the Giants' fourth, and, coming up again in the same inning, doubled to drive in the seventh run of the frame.

Pirates Defeat Reds In Two Games, 5-1, 1-0

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, Aug. 7.—The Pittsburgh Pirates took a firm grip on fourth place in the National League today, winning both ends of a double bill from the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 1 and 1 to 0, before a ladies' day crowd of 10,959.

Cy Blanton, pitching six-hit ball in the nightcap, was almost matched by Wild Bill Hallahan, who allowed eight. With two out in the eighth inning, Breubaker singled in Gus Suhr.

Red Lucas, whom the Reds have not defeated since 1934, bested Al Hollingsworth in the opener, and was on the way to a shutout when Walker opened the ninth with a double, took third on Cuyler's hard grounder and crossed the plate on Goodman's bounce over Lucas' head.

Tommy Padden and Paul Waner between them accounted for all Pirate scoring in the first contest, including the Buc catcher's first home run of the season in the eighth, scoring Brubaker ahead of him.

Georgetown Playground track stars showered themselves with glory yesterday when they won the Western conference field and track meet at Western Stadium, where more than 500 boys and 21 teams vied for the coveted championship. Cooke Playground, defending champions, had to be content with second place.

Georgetown's victory was not an easy one. The leading teams jockeyed back and forth for points for more than two-thirds of the meet. The West-end tracksters picked up 21 points in the relays, the last events on the program. Cooke trailed the victors by points at the end.

A most gratifying feature to playground officials was that 15 of the 21 teams participating figured in the point scoring. The fourth and final conference meet will be the Eastern at Eastern Stadium next Tuesday afternoon. The city championship meet will be held August 25 at Central Stadium.

Cronin in New Role Makes Putout at Third

Manager Joe Cronin, of the Red Sox, playing third base yesterday for the first time in his big league career, is seen putting the ball on Buddy Lewis in the sixth inning when Lewis vainly attempted to advance two bases on Stone's single to right field. Werber's perfect throw to Cronin beat Lewis to the bag.

base in the seventh. In fact, they had the bases full with none out. But it was then that Whitehill reached the height of his day's performance. Following singles by Wes Ferrell and Werber, a safe bunt by Cramer filled the bases, but Whitehill disposed of Manush on a pop foul to Millies, and after Manush had finished making a shambles of Millies' mask with a well-directed swipe of his bat in disgust, Buddy Lewis started a fast double play on Foxx's scorching grounder.

It was no fault of Whitehill's that the Sox tied the score in the eighth. He did pitch a single to Kroner to start the inning, but with an easy force play in sight Lewis muffed McNair's roller. Whitehill limited the rally to one run when Cronin sacrificed and the Messrs. Ferrell were retired on fly balls.

Thus the game wore into the tenth when Whitehill put an end to all the foolishness.

U. S. Swim Heads Effect Changes

Lifeguards' Status; Race Starts Are Defined.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Aug. 7.—Americans at the meeting of the International Swimming Federation today succeeded in putting over two proposals dealing with the method of starting races and the amateur status of summer lifeguards.

The federation voted to adopt the American "dead" starts and to ban the European "flying" starts. This will not affect the Olympic swimming program.

At American instigation, the federation voted to divide lifeguards into two categories, "regular" and "summer." The latter, after working for wages during the summer, may apply for reinstatement.

The European system of "flying starts" has long been a pain to American officials, as it is impossible to compare records.

Under the newly adopted rule, swimmers must remain absolutely stationary until the starting gun is fired. The "flying start," employed in the Olympics, permits the swimmer to anticipate the gun and start the forward motion of his body as long as his feet are still touching the edge of the pool when the gun goes off. This way he might actually be half-way in the water when the gun pops.

Naval Air Station Wins Army-Navy Loop Crown

Coming back after an early season loss, the Naval Air Station nine won the Army and Navy League championship by defeating Fort Washington, 3 to 1, on the Air Station diamond yesterday.

Pitcher Johnnie Botzko was the individual star of the game, striking out 12 batters, and scoring on a sacrifice hit in the sixth to break a 1-1 tie, and put the Mechanics in the lead.

Blue Subdues Royal in Net Tourney

Delwin Blue, of Takoma Park, became the eighth player to enter the quarter-final round of the senior playground tennis tournament yesterday when he handed Doyle Royal a straight-set defeat at Chevy Chase, 6—0, 8—6. Royal, who represented Park View Playground, staged a dogged come-back in the second set after failing to win a game in the first, but his rally fell short.

All Forlorn Drives to Victory in Feature Race at Suffolk Downs

White Horse Pays $7.40 Mutuel

16,000 Watch Thrilling Race; Vote Boy Takes Second Money.

Suffolk Downs, Boston, Aug. 7 (AP).—Miss Mary White's All Forlorn drove to a half-length victory in the six furlongs of the Lowell Curtis Citizen Purse, feature of the day's program at Suffolk Downs before a crowd of 16,000 to pay $7.40, while being timed in 1:12.4.

In order to win, the white mare had to overcome the lead of Good Omen, from the L. C. White stable and hold off the challenge of Tom Sword's Vote Boy, that came strong at the end to gain second. Miss A. Dris' Great Haste got up for third. Vote boy paid $6.40 for place and Great Haste was worth $2.60 to show.

Vote boy went to the front at flagfall, but was reserved back off the pace by Craig and it was Good Omen that showed a high turn of speed to lead the field into the home stretch.

All Forlorn coming up the middle of the track, made her move as Good Omen tired, and went to the front at the eighth pole. Vote Boy and Great Haste improved immensely in the stretch drive.

Race Track, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Sun Teddy, a Chicago invader sporting the silks of Warren Wright's Calumet Farm, easily captured the $5,250 winner's portion of the thirty-fourth Saranac Handicap over a heavy track here today. Held at 5 to 1 in the field of nine 3-year-olds, the chestnut son of Teddy—Sunmelia showed the way to Sage Stable's Pullman by a length and a half. Sangreal, representing Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, another Chicagoan, ran a remarkable race, to finish third after being virtually left.

Motorcycle Meet Booked Tomorrow

The first of a series of mtorcycle field meets will be held at Marlow's Farm, near Wheaton, Md., tomorrow afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock.

There will be an Australian pursuit contest, T. T. exhibition and hill-climbing contest.

In an Australian pursuit contest, a number of motorcycles are started a certain distance apart in a circle. As a driver is lapped, he must drop out and the last man in wins.

There will be five heats and two semifinals in the T. T. exhibition. The final will be ten laps over the difficult course.

Admission to the meet will be 25 cents, with parking free, and children under 12 admitted free. The grounds may be reached by driving out Seventh street pike and following the markers from Wheaton.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FALERMIAN, $15.40, $7.00, $3.80; EARLY CALL, $12.60, $6.40; KAI HARRI, $3.40.

FALERMIAN was steadied along back of the pace, until reaching the stretch, wore down KAI HARRI when called upon and drew clear at the end. EARLY CALL, restrained while holding to a prominent position, closed with good speed through the last furlong. KAI HARRI went to the front at once, drew clear, was rated along under slight restraint, faltering when challenged in the last three-sixteenths. IDENTICAL was going gamely at the close after being shuffled back in the opening strides.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post at 2:53. Off at 2:54. Winner, R. W. Collins' ch. f. MARY ELISE went to the front at once, drew clear in the opening three-sixteenths and dominated the running to the end. PEGGY PORTER was well placed all the way through, holding to a position on the outside, closed willingly, though never able to reach the winner. HIGH VELOCITY, slow to begin, closed ground, though never in a position to endanger the first two. BROADWAY was never able to enter into serious contention. TINDER BOX was outrun. CAREFUL MISS tired. BEWITCHED stumbled and unseated his rider in the opening furlong.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:24. Off at 3:39½. Winner, Almont Stable's b. f. (3), by Toro—Gaffney Gal. Trained by F. W. Hannon. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:15 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BULLFINCH, $7.60; $4.60, $3.80; THE REW, $5.80, $4.80; JOHN'S SON, $7.40.

BULLFINCH was unable to keep pace in the run down the backstretch, moved up fast when called upon and wore down THE REW inside the last 70 yards. THE REW displayed good speed, drew clear and rated along in front, held on gamely under pressure. JOHN'S SON was well placed throughout. FORCED LANDING, badly outrun early, closed some ground, though unable to enter into contention at any stage of the trip. ARGOAN displayed good speed for the first half-mile, dropping back thereafter. PAGEANTRY tired. BALANCED BUDGET, on the outside all the way, moved up briefly nearing the far turn, then retired steadily.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $88.60.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:00. Off at 4:01½. Winner, C. W. Phelan's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CYNWYD, $13.60, $6.20, $4.20; STAROGAN, $9.00, $4.80; LADY HOCKBERGER, $3.40.

CYNWYD, slightly restrained early, moved up stoutly on the outside leaving the backstretch, closed with good courage thorugh the stretch and was going away at the end. STAROGAN displayed good speed, opened up a good lead and despite hard riding was unable to keep pace in the closing drive. LADY HOCKBERGER, prominent all the way, held on stubbornly under punishment. CHARMED EYES, well placed and vigorously ridden, was unable to make up any ground in the closing test. HIDDEN DUST moved up gamely on the inside in the first quarter mile, followed in nearest to the rail thereafter, in the last three-sixteenths, only to be outkicked in the late drive, ZULU LAD was unable to reach the leaders. MARSON had brief early speed. TORNADIC was far back all the way and on the outside showed a dull effort.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. The Lowell Courier. Purse, $1,100; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:31. Off at 4:31½. Winner, Miss Mary White's ch. m. (6), by Menifee—Sekina. Trainer, F. J. MacDonald. Value to winner, $750; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23-2-5, 0:47 1-5, 1:12 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ALL FORLORN, $7.40, $4.20, $2.80; VOTE BOY, $6.40, $3.00; GREAT HASTE, $2.60.

ALL FORLORN, under steadying restraint while following the pace, moved up stoutly in the stretch, disposed of GOOD OMEN and, hard ridden at the end, held VOTE BOY safe. The latter was prominently placed the entire way and closed willingly in the closing furlong. GREAT HASTE lacked speed to keep up and though finishing gamely was never able to threaten the first two. GOOD OMEN displayed good speed in pacemaking, weakening through the stretch run. GROG dropped back immediately at the start and was devoid of speed throughout.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:00. Off at 5:05. Winner, J. U. Gratton's bf. (3), by St. Germans—Prudent. Trainer, J. P. Mayberry. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:47 2-5, 1:13.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAVINGS, $14.80; $8.20; $4.00; MISS TROPHY, $3.40; $2.80; BLAKEEN, $3.20.

SAVINGS was rated along back of the pace, swung to the outside in the stretch, responded gamely to hard urging and was going willingly at the close. MISS TROPHY displayed good speed in pacemaking, opened up a good lead, but was unable to withstand the bid of the winner. BLAKEEN, reserved close up, moved up menacingly at the stretch turn, though unable to close any ground thereafter. WINTER SPORT went evenly throughout, though never a threat. PETARD was outrun.

TRACK GOOD.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but FLYING DERE. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 5:33. Off at 5:36. Winner, Miss L. C. White's gr. g. (5), by Royal Canopy—Gypsum. Trainer, John J. McKenna. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49 1-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:40 1-5, 1:52 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUSTER BOY, $30.80, $13.00, $8.00; HYMARQUE, $8.00, $5.40; STONE MARTIN, $5.20.

BUSTER BOY went to the front in the run to the first turn, drew clear and, rated along under slight restraint, held away to the end. HYMARQUE, in nearest attendance of the winner from practically the beginning, held on well to the end. STONE MARTIN, kept within striking distance of the leader for the first six furlongs, was unable to reach the leaders when called upon. MARPAL moved up on the inside down the backstretch, was forced to take up and came to the outside nearing the stretch and never could threaten. GENEVA CROSS, taken back off the pace, went an even pace all the way. WHIPPERCRACKER was far back all the way.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 6:07. Off at 6:10. Winner, Mrs. L. M. Lester's b. m. (5), by Mint Briar—Hussy. Trainer, P. Haldy. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 3-5. 0:49 2-5, 1:15 1-5, 1:42, 1:49.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MINT DE MIE, $9.00, $4.20, $3.20; BULL MARKET, $4.00, $3.00; COYA, $3.80.

MINT DE MIE followed in nearest pursuit of the pace, went to the front before reaching the stretch and drew out steadily in the last furlong. BULL MARKET began moving up leaving the backstretch, but was bearing in all through the stretch run. COYA took command at once, was rated along under slight restraint, though unable to keep pace when challenged. GOODY GOODY dropped back in the run down the backstretch, closing some ground in the stretch. MARS PALATINE moved up on the inside on the run down the backstretch, loomed up threateningly, retiring in the last five-sixteenths. BOUNDING COUNT never was a threat. The others never were prominent.

Wheat Tumbles With Collapse In Winnipeg

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Big breaks in wheat values today accompanied advices that Canada with her harvest in full blast was being undersold in Europe by other exporting countries.

Export demand for Canadian wheat at the moment appeared to have about vanished, and much selling of wheat futures today at Winnipeg was ascribed to American interests. Late as well as early the Winnipeg market approaches a condition of collapse, and tumbled more than 4 cents a bushel.

Wheat in Chicago closed shaky, 2⅛ to 2⅝ under yesterday's finish; September, 111⅞ to 111½; December, 110¾ to 110⅞; May, 110¼ to 110⅝. Corn, 1½ to 2⅝ down; September, 104⅛ to 104⅜; December, 92⅞ to 93; May, 90 to 90⅛. Oats, ⅜ to 1½ off; December, 43 to 43⅛, and Rye showing 2⅝ to 4⅜ fall. The outcome in provisions was unchanged to 7 cents lower.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil moved within narrow limits yesterday and trading was moderate with operators apparently inclined to hold off pending the cotton crop report tomorrow. There were early gains of 2 to 3 points on scattered covering and buying by refined interests, but these were lost later under liquidation influenced by the action of the grain market. The close was 1 to 3 points net lower. Sales 99 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal; September closed 9.98, October 9.97, December 9.92, January 9.91 March 9.97.

Walgreen Sales Set New All-Time Peak

Chicago, Aug. 7 (AP).—Walgreen Co. today reported July sales at an all-time record. Volume was $5,-339,695, or 12.6 per cent ahead of July last year.

First seven-month sales totaled $35,444,691, an increase of 7.3 per cent over the corresponding 1935 period.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, Aug. 7 (AP) (United States Department of Agriculture).—Unscraded territory clips of fairly good French combing lengths, fine and ½ blood graded mixed, were selling today at around 82@84 cents scoured basis. This was practically the same price range prevailing on moderate sales of average to good French combing lengths of straight fine grade original lots.

Good 12-month Texas wool brought 86@87 cents scoured basis from occasional buyers with urgent needs. Medium grade territory wools were mostly slow, although a few mill buyers recently asked for ¾ and ¼ blood grades.

Virginia Gains 5% in Workers In Six Months

Manufacturing Employes Now Exceed Total in First Half of 1929.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 7.—Frank P. Evans, statistician of the State Industrial Commissin, reported today an increase of approximately 5 per cent in the number of employes in manufacturing enterprises during the first half of 1936, compared with the same period last year.

Information gathered by the commission in computing occupational accident rates showed an increase in total hours worked of approximately 10 per cent over the same period of 1935 and approximately 5 per cent less than the total for the first half of 1929.

The number of manufacturing employes in 1936, however, was 15 per cent ahead of the first six months of 1929, Mr. Evans said. The larger part of the increase was in employes in the textile manufacturing group, which for the 1936 period averaged in excess of 55,000 as against 43,000 in 1929.

The average time worked per employe during the first half of this year was approximately 5 per cent more than for the first half of 1935, but 20 per cent less than for the similar period of 1929.

Manufacturing groups included in the comparison were the textiles, tobacco manufacturing, chemicals, furniture manufacturing, planing mills, iron and steel works and metal products, employing for the 1936 period approximately 82,000 workers.

$50,000,000 Bills Offered by Treasury

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that tenders are invited for Treasury bills to the amount of $50,000,000, or thereabouts. They will be 273-day bills; and will be sold on a discount basis to the highest bidders.

Tenders will be received at the Federal Reserve banks or branches up to 2 p. m. on Monday. Tenders will not be received at the Treasury Department.

Retail Advertising Gains 8.5 Per Cent

For the seven-day period ended July 25, retail advertising in the newspapers of 66 major cities totalled 12,706,196 lines, up 998,664 lines over last year's total, for an increase of 8.5 per cent.

This was the twenty-second consecutive week during which 1936 advertising exceeded that placed during 1935. Advertising Age reports.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively
A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Continue Advance in Heavier Volume; Rail Shares in Demand; Wheat Drops.

New York, Aug. 7.—Bonds were more active and strong, except for Italian issues, commodities were unsettled and stocks continued their recovery. Stock sales were the best of the month, rising to around 1,750,000 shares and advances of 1 to 2 points were the rule for the active issues. September wheat closed 2¼ cents lower at 111½ cents a bushel.

Stocks were strengthened by the activity in the railroad issues. Early buying of the rails sent prices for many of them up a point or two, and during the remainder of the day the accumulation continued, and the influence was felt in other sections of the market. Among the best of the rails were Southern, New York Central, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Kansas City Southern, Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Great Northern, and Nickel Plate. Several new highs for the year were made.

Rails carried with them the railroad equipment shares, the motors, oils, chemicals and steels. Some of the equipments were sharply higher, notably Steel Foundries, which rose 3 points. Chrysler recrossed the 120 mark for a climb of 3 points. General Motors added a point. The oils were the most active group in the list, but the gains were only moderate. Continental and American ran out of the rut with gains of 2 and 6 points, respectively.

Easy Gainers.

Chemical stocks advanced 1 to 5 points. Allied as usual being the leader. Union Carbide clawed at the century mark. Bethlehem was a feature of the steel list, which rose 1 to 2 points on the average. Metals did about as well, and farm implements were firm, with less interest taken in them. Firestone worked lower, but the other tires improved. Utilities looked firm to fractionally higher. Corn products was weak in a mixed food group. Mercantile shares did well.

Among the stocks to rise 2 to 6 points with apparent ease were Westinghouse National Supply, Jones & Laughlin preferred, Eastman, Amerada and Allied Chemical. On the other side, American Can and Continental Can dropped. Checker Cab, under investigation, lost 5 points on its first appearance in more than a week. Auburn, on the other hand, was higher. Congoleum and U. S. Leather worked against the higher trend.

Active Trade.

Although bank credit continues in slack demand, except in so far as the Treasury is using it to finance its deficit, the rise in currency circulation may be regarded as an indicator of more active business, and to some extent of higher commodity prices. Circulation for the last year has been rsiing sharply, and while some no doubt has gone into hoarding by Europeans, no question of the safety of American bank depositors, with their guaranteed accounts, has come up.

This week's report of the Federal Reserve System shows a jump of $10,000,000 in circulation, following a slow contraction after the mid-year and bonus payments. Currency in circulation is now $613,-000,000 greater than a year ago. This week's rise is attributed to the turn of the seasonal tide. It may be supposed that the increased use of currency which, with normal development of autumn business, usually come in August, has appeared this year on time, if not perhaps a little ahead of time.

Lower Reserves.

That ought to reassure those who had feared the drought and the high rate of activity in business earlier in the year would bring a slack autumn. From a credit standpoint the rise in currency circulation might be regarded as a tightening influence were it not for other factors at work. The expansion cuts down excess reserves, but this week the circulation was offset by Treasury spending of its reserve bank balances.

It is now plain that excess reserves, before the higher reserve requirements go into effect at the end of next week, will be a few hundred millions short of the total which the Federal Reserve Board estimated would be reached. Likewise, after the new rule, the remainder will be far below that of the board's estimate. However, it will be high enough to justify the assumption that no important tightening of money rates likely will follow at once.

French Gold.

Another factor is now coming into sight that may affect the credit position. That is the likelihood of a fresh movement of gold from Europe, particularly from France, to this country. That movement is likely less because of the growing weakness of the French financial position than because of the troubles in France. Whatever the outcome there, it is believed in many quarters here that the political repercussion on France will be unfavorable.

Plainly, capital is beginning to fly again in Europe. Francs were down to the gold point today and sterling climbed, as it always does when francs are weak. If much gold comes it will drive up the excess reserves of the banks.

Puts and Calls.

Trading in options continues to increase and the demand for calls indicates bullishness on the part of operators. There has been no sizable demand for puts this year. Because the election will take place before the expiration of 90-day papers now being written, prices have somewhat widened. Steel calls for 90 days are quoted around $575 and Chrysler at $832. Thirty-day calls on Steel are 4 points up. Chrysler is 10 up and Case tops at 22. Some brokers are recommending long positions in conjunction with straddles, which in effect doubles the long position and sets up a hedge on half the shares held.

Como Mines.

The Curb Exchange reported that today it had received notice of the filing of a petition in bankruptcy by Como Mines. A week ago, notified that the company intended to do that, the Curb suspended trading in the stock, restoring it later when the expected filing did not take place. Now, with bankruptcy an actuality, the Curb apparently thinks the stock is all right. Sales at one-sixteenth, one-eighth and then at one-sixteenth of a dollar a share followed the announcement.

Montgomery Ward Sales at New Peak

Chicago, Aug. 7 (AP).—Montgomery Ward & Co. reported today the largest gross sales in the history of the company for the six months period ended July 31. July sales also reached a new high for the month. The six months figures were $159,363,320, compared with gross sales of $133,289,039 for the first six months of 1935, a 19.56 per cent increase. July gross sales were $35,635,866, compared with $20,-293,175 for July, 1935, a 26.33 per cent gain.

Freight Traffic For Week Sets Six-Year Peak

Total of 747,551 Loaded Cars Is Gain of 25.6% Over 1935 Period.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended August 1 totaled 747,551 cars, the Association of American Railroads announced yesterday. This was the largest number of cars loaded in any one week since October 17, 1931.

Compared with the corresponding week in 1935, the total for the week of August 1 was an increase of 152,-254 cars or 25.6 per cent, and was an increase of 134,891 cars or 22 per cent above the corresponding week in 1934. Loading of revenue freight for the week of August 1 was an increase of 16,489 cars or 2.3 per cent above the preceding week.

Grain Loadings.

Grain and grain products loading totaled 50,970 cars, a decrease of 4,052 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 9,235 cars above the corresponding week in 1935, and 8,135 cars above the same week in 1934. In the Western districts alone, grain and grain products loading for the week ended August 1, totaled 32,371 cars, a decrease of 1,822 cars below the preceding week this year, but an increase of 6,859 cars above the same week in 1935.

Livestock loading mounted to 15,423 cars, an increase of 1,775 cars above the preceding week, and 5,892 cars above the same week in 1935, but a decrease of 12,323 cars below the same week in 1934. In the Western districts alone, loading of livestock for the week ended August 1 totaled 12,084 cars, an increase of 1,566 cars above the preceding week this year and 5,411 cars above the same week in 1935.

Ore loading amounted to 53,558 cars, a decrease of 1,616 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 20,650 cars above the corresponding week in 1935, and 23,388 cars above the corresponding week in 1934.

Coke loading amounted to 8,842 cars, an increase of 230 cars above the preceding week, 3,717 cars above the same week in 1935, and 4,107 cars above the same week in 1934.

All districts reported increases in the number of cars loaded with revenue freight, compared with the corresponding weeks in 1935 and 1934.

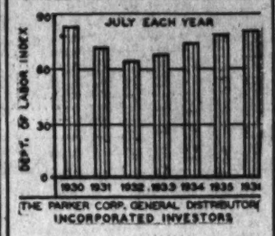
Commodity Prices 2½% Over Year Ago



Boston, Mass., Aug. 7.—Wholesale commodity prices have jumped up the past month and now stand about 2½ per cent higher than a year ago. Commodity prices, on the whole, have remained very steady during the past two years, with the greatest variation during that time of only 6½ per cent.

Curb Prices Firm; Oils in Demand

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Oils and industrial specialties, along with a few utilities, were the chief outlets for buying enthusiasm in a firm curb market today. Gains of around 3 points each were recorded for Pittsburgh Plate Glass at 134, Sherwin-Williams at 135½ and Chicago River & Michigan at 29½. Peperell added 5 points at 83. Other gainers of more than a point included Gulf Oil, Colt's Firearms, Creole Petroleum, Newmont Mining, Pan-American Airways and Mueller Brass.

American Gas & Electric was ahead nearly a point at 45½. Electric Bond & Share improved fractionally at 24⅝, but Niagara Hudson shaded lower at 17⅛ and United Gas was barely ahead at 7⅜. Transfers approximate 344,000 shares, compared with 263,000 shares the day before.

By the Associated Press.

Skittishness of European diplomats over the danger that Spain's struggle might spread to other continental countries sent gold bloc currencies lower against the dollar yesterday.

French francs in New York dropped .00⅛ of a cent to 6.58⅛ cents. Just .00⅝ of a cent above the point where gold can be shipped profitably from Paris to New York. Swiss francs eased 01 of a cent to 32.61 cents and Holland guilders .02 of a cent to 67.90 cents. The pound sterling improved ⅛ of a cent to 5 02⅛. The dollar added ⅛ of a cent in London to close at 5.02 to the pound, unchanged from the New York overnight rate. In Paris the American currency closed at the equivalent of 6.585 cents to the franc against the overnight New York rate of 6.590 cents.

Foreign Funds Favor Stocks Over U.S.Goods

June Brings $309,000,000 for Securities; Merchandise, $185,000,000.

New York, Aug. 7.—As in the previous months of the current year, the value of merchandise exported from the United States in June was larger than a year ago, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. Exports were valued at $185,000,000 in June this year as compared with $170,000,000 in the same month last year. Exports in June, however, were noticeably lower than in May, when the value was $201,000,000. This set-back was particularly unfavorable, since the export trade of the United States is still far from full recovery, despite the fact that 1936 represents the fourth year of expansion since the low for the depression was reached.

The extent to which America's export trade is still curtailed is indicated by the fact that the value of merchandise exported during the first half of 1936 amounted to only $1,154,000,000, as compared with $2,623,000,000 in the corresponding period of the predepression year, 1929.

The set-back in merchandise export trade in June was not due to the inability of foreigners to finance larger purchases of American goods, says the Alexander Hamilton Institute. Imports of merchandise into the United States in June were valued at $192,000,000, or $7,000,000 more than exports. In addition, foreign countries sent $302,000,000 in gold and silver to the United States. The excess of merchandise, gold and silver imports thus exceeded merchandise exports by $309,000,000.

Spurs Markets Here.

It is thus apparent that foreigners were in a position to purchase a much larger amount of American goods if they had not considered it more to their advantage to invest their surplus funds in American securities. The principal effect of the shipment of these funds to the United States was to contribute to the recent strength of the American security market rather than to stimulate the merchandise export trade of the United States. Funds shipped to this country for investment in securities were exceptionally large in June, thus renewing the movement which had shown a tendency to come to a halt in the early months of this year after featuring the situation in 1934 and, especially, in 1935.

1. Find the apartment that meets your requirement—in the section in which you want to live.

2. Note the key letters and the number at the end of the ad. For example: D-5.

3. Then find the letter of the alphabet (in this case, D) at the top of the map. This means the apartment is located somewhere between the D at the top and the D at the bottom of the map.

4. Then look for the numeral (in this case, 5) at either side of the map. Where the D and 5 meet is the vicinity in which the apartment is located.

AROUND THOSE WHARVES—AFTER THAT ROWBOAT THAT TOOK THE STURGEON AWAY—AND OPEN THE THROTTLE.
QUICK! YOU STUPID ONES—PULL HIM UP!
LOOK! LOOK!

JOE PALOOKA

Wrong Gloves?

By Ham Fisher

JARGE, PETER'S MANAGER, WATCHES JOE'S BANDAGES BEING PUT ON, WHILE KNOBBY WATCHES IN THE AUSTRALIAN'S DRESSING ROOM. RAY AND SMOKEY REMAIN WITH JOE
TH' BANDAGES IS OKAY. LET'S SEE TH' GLOVES.
YOU SAW 'EM AT THE WEIGHINS IN. THE COMMISSIONER MARKED 'EM.
I SAID LET ME SEE THEM GLOVES!
ALL RIGHT—SAY OFFICER—GET THE GLOVES FROM THE DEPUTY—WILL YA?
OH—LET THE BLIGHTER SEE 'EM.
THESE AINT TH' SAME ONES! THEY BEEN CHANGED!
THAT'S A LIE!
THESE IS LIGHTER THAN JOE'S. HE CAN'T WEAR 'EM." THESE AINT TH' COMMISHNERS MARKS—HO—HUM—

THE GUMPS

Soup to Nut.

ON A WRETCHED WATER FRONT ROOMING HOUSE, RUNT RADCLIFF KEEPS HIS "BROTHER" A CLOSELY GUARDED PRISONER—C'MON "BROTHER" DEAR—WE'VE GOT SOME BUSINESS TO ATTEND TO—REMEMBER, NO FUNNY STUFF, OR I'LL LOCK YOU UP AND THROW AWAY THE KEY!
HORS' D'OEUVRE, CONSOMME GARIBALDI-FILET MIGNON WITH MUSHROOMS-LYONNAISE POTATOES-WALDORF SALAD AND A DEMI TASSE FOR ME—AND A BOWL OF BEAN SOUP FOR MY BROTHER

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY

By Clifford McBride

NAPOLEON, WE'D BETTER DROP ANCHOR HERE FOR TH' NIGHT, BOY. WHAT A SURPRISE THIS WILL BE FOR TH' FOLKS IN THAT BIG RESORT ON SHORE WHEN THEY SEE A YACHT ANCHORED OUT FRONT IN TH' MORNING!
AND IN THE MORNING—

DIXIE DUGAN

Strange Doings.

By J. P. McEvoy and J. H. Striebel

IF YOU WEREN'T TRYING TO STEAL MY PET HONEY BEAR, WHY WERE YOU RUNNING AWAY?!
WHEW!—I-I THOUGHT YOU WERE THE MAMA BEAR!
COME BOO-BOO....!
COME! COME! BOO-BOO!
SAY!—YOU'RE JUST-THE-TYPE!
WESLEY AND MICKEY ARE STILL TRYING TO FIND DIXIE SO THEY CAN APOLOGIZE FOR MISJUDGING HER AND WILL HUSWELL, THE ACTOR.
GOSH! SHE'S BEEN GONE ALL NIGHT!

HAROLD TEEN

The Males Take to the Water.

YES! I'M ALMOST AFRAID TO GO TO THE BEACH!
ISN'T IT DISGUSTING! DID YOU NOTICE THE NUMBER OF MEN ON THE BEACH?
YES! WHEN THEY SHOULD BE OUT WITH THE STATE POLICE AFTER THIS BEAR!
